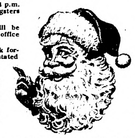
Santa Schedules Visit To Thief River Falls Saturday

Santa Claus has made special arrangements with his elves and the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce to take time off from his pre-Christmas duties and spend Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Thief River Falls, visiting with area youngsters about their Christmas gift wishes.

During his visit to the city, Santa will be headquartered at the chamber of commerce office in the Soo Line depot building on Third Street.

"We know how much the youngsters look forward to their visits with Santa each year," stated William Hogan, chamber president.



Hogan also noted that the chamber is helping Santa by distributing treats to the youngsters and by showing short movies which will run continuously during the hours Santa will be at the chamber office.

"We encourage all area youngsters to come and visit with Santa Claus during his trip to Thief River Falls," Hogan said.

Garbage Bags Discussed . . .

Four-Year Term For Mayor Aired By City Council

Garbage bags, mayor's term, Ben Franklin lot, and police car purchase were among topics at regular meeting of the Thief River Falls city council held last night in council chambers at city auditorium.

Matter of advertising for bids on garbage bags prompted considerable discussion after Mayor Bob Carlson questioned whether city was obligated to furnish bags. Stating, "We're one of the rare ones," he noted that few other cities furnished bags free of charge, and indicated that cutting the item could save $30,000 per year.

Alderman Bill Penning noted that bags were part of a system which he stated "right now is working pretty good." Concern was expressed that without bags garbage pickup could become a problem.

Penning said time-motion studies indicated bags could save hiring an additional person. Carlson noted that compared to other cities, "even without furnishing bags, we're still reasonable at $6.50 per month," and noted that people could still buy bags separately from the city. A suggestion that rates could possibly be increased caused Penning to comment the department was "operating pretty close to a balanced budget now."

Commenting, "I just wonder where we're going to cut when we're forced to make cuts," Carlson dropped the subject and a motion was passed to advertise for bids on bags, with an alternate bid suggested for a new type bag which is lighter in weight.

Carlson introduced subject of changing term of mayor from two to four years, stated that the recent election indicated mayor's position on ballot did not tend to "bring out the vote", which was apparently given as a reason for two-year during previous discussion. "My reasons are not selfish. I have no assurance who will be running for mayor two years from now," he stated.

Alderman Penning opposed the suggestion, stating that it was a habit, and that people tended to look at the mayor's office as being the executive branch of city government. "I like it this way, and I think the

Meet On Soil Management Here Thursday

A meeting on soil management for crop producers and agri-business men will be held in Thief River Falls on Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the courthouse meeting-room.

Pennington county extension service is conducting the meeting which will bring crop producers and agri-business men up to date on the latest research findings in soil fertility, soil applied herbicides and reduced tillage practices. Speakers for the program will include extension soils specialists William Fenster and John Grava, research scientist Gary Varvel and area extension agent Marlin Johnson.

County extension director Terry Courneya indicates that with the increasing costs of ag chemicals it is most important that accurate decisions be made on choice of materials, time and method of application and following crop choices. Reduced tillage has a significant effect on performance of soil chemicals and it is important that they be selected correctly and used according to recommendations.

'81 Deficiency Payment To Be Made On Crops

U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced deficiency payments will be made on the 1981 crop of wheat and barley. A deficiency payment is made when the national average price of program crops is less than the target (guaranteed) price. No payment will be made on corn.

Payment rate will be 15 cents per bushel on wheat and 11 cents on barley. Farmers who were enrolled in the wheat and feed grain program can compute their payment by multiplying their 1981 planted acreage times the established yield for their farm times the payment rate.

"The average payment for Pennington county will be very close to $5 per acre for both wheat and barley. Total payment in the county will be nearly $800,000," states Phillip Bergland, director of the Pennington county ASCS office.

The checks are prepared by the USDA computer in Kansas City, and forwarded to the local ASCS offices for verification, signatures and distribution. They fully expect to have these checks in the mail before Christmas.

In most cases, producers signed for these checks when they certified their crop acreage last spring and the checks will be prepared and mailed with no further action on their part.

Hazardous Waste Result Of Most Manufacturing

SPEAKING ON GRAIN marketing at seminar Thursday sponsored by Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee were Ken Egertson, extension marketing specialist, left, and Robert Dahl, professor of agricultural economics. Both men are associated with University of Minnesota. Evaluation sheets filled out by those attending the seminar indicated speakers were "on target with expectations" and follow-up sessions were desired.

Clothing. Television sets. Newspapers. Furniture. Tractors. Pesticides. Computers. Beet sugar. Medicines. Digital watches. Radios. Gasoline. Pottery.

All of these various products which are so much a part of our everyday lives have one thing in common. They all require the creation of hazardous wastes in their production.

Think about that for a minute. Ask yourself if you would prefer to do without these products to eliminate the creation of hazardous waste. Chances are, if you're honest with yourself, you would admit that creation of some waste material is a reasonable trade-off for the goods that we have come to accept as requisites for our standard of living.

If it is acceptable to create hazardous waste, how should disposal of that waste be accomplished? Historically, it probably hasn't been handled very well. Examples exist where indiscriminate dumping has caused serious health and safety problems. As need and demand for more consumer goods increase, the volume of hazardous waste created will continue to grow.

This is one of the problems being attacked by the Minnesota waste management board which met in Thief River Falls late last week. Minnesota wants to handle the hazardous waste which its industries create in the manner which is safest for the health and well being of the people of the state. The means to accomplish that end is the responsibility of the waste management board.

Among the materials made available to the public by the board is a listing of some of the products we use, components involved in their manufacture, waste created in the process and the type of hazard those wastes present. Here are some of the examples.

Electrical products such as televisions, micro-wave ovens, radios, stereos, toasters, blenders and typewriters use printed circuit boards and wire. Wastes include toxic cyanides, metal sludges and oil, toxic and flammable solvents and corrosive caustics and acids.

All clothing uses dyes which create toxic waste organic compounds and wastewater treatment sludge. Leather treatment requires toxic chromium shavings and synthetics involve flammable and toxic solvents and toxic waste organic compounds and metals used as catalysts.

Newspapers, books, magazines, pamphlets and brochures use paper and inks which create wastewater treatment sludges, organic by-products, solvents, waste ink and oils which are toxic and corrosive.

Wood furniture requires toxic chromium, lead and creosote. Wood fencing creates wastes including toxic oils, sediment sludge and pigments and corrosive caustics.

Automobiles, trucks and tractors involve engines, body materials and trim which create toxic, corrosive and-or flammable acids, metal sludges, heat treating wastes such as oils and salt solutions, paint sludges and solvents.

Petroleum products result in waste by-products and acid sludges which are toxic and corrosive.

Agricultural chemicals such as pesticides, herbicides and insecticides require materials which have flammable and toxic wastes such as solvents, waste organic compounds and sludges.

Instruments and related products such as computers, digital watches and clocks and medical diagnostic equipment involve wastes including ferric chloride, acids, xylene, methylene chloride, alcohols, acetone, cadmium, nickel and zinc, all of which are either toxic flammable or corrosive.

Even stone, clay and glass products such as pottery, knick-knacks and mirrors use solvents, oil and grease which is flammable and toxic.

Within the food industries, bottled beverages create corrosive lime sludge, prepared household foods result in flammable hexane solvent and vegetable oil and beet sugar extraction result in used laboratory oils which are

Grain Market Seminar Here Well Received

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

Grain marketing seminar sponsored by Thief River Falls area Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee Thursday, December 3, drew 108 registered participants to Best Western Motel, Thief River Falls, to learn from University of Minnesota marketing experts Professor Reynold Dahl and Kenneth Egertson.

Dahl, agricultural economics instructor at the university's college of agriculture, where he has been on faculty for 30 years, spoke on structure of U.S. grain market and alternatives it provides for grain producers to price their products, during morning session of the all-day seminar.

Dahl explained how the futures market operates, what a futures contract on wheat is, and how delivery month and price were related. He discussed advantages and disadvantages of various marketing and pricing alternatives, including forward pricing, selling at harvest, storing and speculating, storing and hedging, and delayed pricing. He said that marketing grain had become more complex now than ever before for two reasons: rapid demand fluctuations, and more options open to producer.

He noted that about 60 per cent of America's wheat was exported, which made exchange rate on the dollar a very important factor. He noted, however, that as the dollar's value decreased, other nations were able to purchase more American wheat, so that "what's bad for the country may actually be good for the farmer, to some extent." He said that with Russia purchasing about half of U.S. exports, future of their crop becomes a very important but difficult to predict factor.

Asked what his advice on marketing strategies for farmers would be, Dahl said they should look very carefully before entering price later contracts with elevators, and also look carefully at storing grain at harvest and pricing through futures to earn returns on basis appreciation. Finally, he recommended that those who hadn't marketed their wheat "hold on", as market indicators suggested that wheat prices would be likely to rise by spring.

Following buffet lunch, Kenneth Egertson, extension marketing specialist at the U. of M., spoke on supply-demand picture in grain stocks and how this affects outlook and pricing decisions for 1981 crops.

Promising that he would eventually make a prediction on what wheat price would go to, he first emphasized that producers must utilize "decision making process to set goals on what price would be satisfactory to them." He noted that any time they "held out for more" there was an element of risk, and they had to figure probabilities of getting their price.

To make his point, he polled some farmers present about what they thought price would go to by spring. Getting some answers over $5 per bushel, he noted that market was "bullish in the room anyway." Asking the same people to put probability on price going that high, he got a wide range of figures with high probability of 50 per cent, and most considerably lower.

"It all depends on the individual," he said, nothing that payments due, family size and other factors could affect how willing one was to gamble. "Set your goal first," he advised, "then don't lose too much sleep over it if the price goes higher after you've sold." He noted that cost of carrying interest had to be

TELLING TIME on a braille watch is one of several things Gayle Pearson learned to do while attending a school for the blind in Fairbault. She graduated from the school in 1966, and began working at the Occupational Development Center in Thief River Falls in 1972 where she was recently named employee of the quarter. Gayle, who was born blind, has never really thought of it as being hard not being able to see, she stated in a recent interview.

Gayle Pearson Feels Her Blindness Not Handicap

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

Every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday shortly before 9 a.m. Gayle Pearson makes her way up the stairs in the Occupational Development Center (ODC), in Thief River Falls to begin a day's work.

She returns home at 3:30 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays and at noon Wednesdays where she curls up with a favorite western novel. She reads her books just as she tells time each day — through the use of her fingers. Gayle was born blind.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pearson, Kennedy, has two sisters and one brother, and she will be going home this Christmas to spend time with all of them.

Gayle was recently named employee of the quarter at the ODC for "distinguishing herself in the areas of work performance, progress made toward goals, production and work attitudes."

"I guess I felt kind of excited about it (the award)," she replied modestly, the day we visited her at the ODC. "I didn't expect it."

Gayle was selected employee of the quarter for the work she has contributed to the ODC on a multi-step weighing and packaging operation. The process, done completely by touch since Gayle is blind, involves weighing tiny screws on a scale, then packaging the screws and attaching tags to the packages. Since each package must not contain more than 100 screws,

Inez Gunderson Weds Donn Haugen At Lengby

Inez Gunderson, daughter of Mrs. Alice Gunderson of Lengby, became the bride of Donn Haugen, son of June Rux of Vancouver, Wash., and Howard Haugen of Hinckley, at a recent ceremony at Fridhem Lutheran church at Lengby.

Officiating at the ceremony were the Rev. Marilyn and Bill Sass of Hinckley. Pianist Quinn Olson played "The Poet and I" as the processional, and Kenny Evje, Gail Pearson and Stephanie Roed sang "Endless Love," and "Wedding Song," with Diane Gutterud as accompanist.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Earl Gunderson of Rushford. She was attired in her mother's wedding dress, fashioned of off-white satin delicately embroidered with satin flowers. The gown was styled with a raised bodice with three-quarter length sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The full skirt was complemented by an overskirt of off-white lace edged with scalloped lace trim. Matching lace formed the floor-length veil held by a floral headpiece in dusty rose and off-white. Enhancing the bottom corners of the veil were embroidered satin appliques that graced the veil worn 65 years ago by the bride's grandmother. The bride carried a bouquet of dusty rose orchids, silk lilies of the valley, stephanotis, babies' breath and ferns.

Her jewelry consisted of diamond earrings, a gift from the groom, and the opal necklace, which the bride's grandmother received on her wedding day from her groom.

The bride's personal attendants were Julie Ness of Fosston and Roz Benthow of Greenbush.

Maid of honor was Julie Ness of Fosston. Bridesmaids were Elaine Lendobeja of Thief River Falls and Sandy Bjourud of Fosston. The flower girl was Chris Gunderson, the bride's niece.

Their dusty rosewood blouson-styled floor-length gowns were designed with a yoke featuring an off-white lace collar. Matching lace formed the cuffs on the long, full sleeves. At the waistline were tie belts of off-white satin ribbon. In their hair, they wore sprigs of babies' breath and miniature dusty rose flowers. They carried crocheted baskets filled with silk dusty rose orchids, babies' breath and fern, all madde by the bride's mother.

The groom wore a cherry brown tuxedo with an off-white shirt and a cherry brown bow tie. His boutonniere was an off-white carnation with babies' breath and fern. He was attended by his best man, Al Johnson of Thief River Falls, and his groomsmen, Gerry Ulferts, Thief River Falls, and Elwood Gunderson of Lengby, a brother of the bride. The ringbearer was Thomas Stumpf of Plummer, a cousin of the groom. He carried a heart-shaped pillow of off-white embroidered satin trimmed with tiny silk flowers. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a beige-brown tuxedo with an off-white shirt and an off-white and dusty-rose boutonniere.

Ushers were Paul Rambeck, Grand Forks, N.D., a cousin of the groom, and Brian Andrew of Lengby, a cousin of the bride.

Host couple at the reception that followed were Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Fischer of Lengby, uncle and aunt of the bride. Diane Gunderson, a sister-in-law of the bride, was at the guest book, and Debbie Holtan of Newfolden and Margy Smith, Thief River Falls, served the punch. Gift bearers were Debbie Andrew, cousin of the bride, and Natalie Ulferts of Thief River Falls.

The triple-tiered chocolate and white marble wedding cake, supported at the base by four round cakes, was iced in off-white, and decorated with rose-colored orchids and lilies of the valley. Supporting the upper tier were inverted crystal goblets filled with rose-colored fluff and babies' breath. The cake was topped by a crystal ornament featuring crystal roses inside two wedding rings topped by two crystal birds. The cake, all the flowers, and the table decorations were made by the bride's mother.

Cake servers were Allona Tomlinson, Wichita, Kans., and Jeanie Haugen, Minneapolis, sisters of the groom. Mrs. Ray Rambeck, Thief River Falls, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Edwin Gunderson, Grand Forks, aunt of the bride, poured the coffee. Waitresses were Shelia and Shirley Andrew, Lori Gubrud and Tracy Lusignan.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, the couple is now at home in Hinckley.

Legion Auxiliary Membership Is Nearing Goal

At the December meeting of the American Legion auxiliary held recently at the Legion club room, it was noted that the unit membership is now 520, only 93 short of unit's goal of 613.

Report was also given on the November meeting. Due to a power outage in the city, the meeting and dinner was held by candlelight with President Lovanell Kramer presiding. Special guests at the meeting were Ninth district President Mrs. Olive Dimmer and her secretary Louise Lindstrom. At that meeting, the budget was read and approved.

Betty Graff, chaplain of the unit, stated that several prayers had been received for the prayer book. She said that more prayers were needed and she reminded members to sign their names on the prayer submitted.

Home Service co-chairmen Stella Thomas and Evelyn Homewood reminded members to leave cancelled postage stamps at the club or to turn them in to them or one of the officers. The stamps are not to be removed from the envelopes. They may be cut off, leaving a quarter inch border around each stamp.

It was also reported that the Children's Christmas party will be held December 13 at the club. It was noted that this party is open only to Children of the members.

Donations made were to the American Legion Kidney House, in memory of Joan McCann, a long-time member of the unit; to the Servicemen center in Minneapolis, for a mattress; and to the local Friendship club.

Lunch during the social hour featured Christmas goodies, contributed by the members. Of special interest during the social hour was a newspaper from Kerkhoven provided by Peg Peterson. The paper contained a two-page feature article about Past Department President Genevieve Lueben Peterson, formerly of Kerkhoven and Thief River Falls and now of Willmar. Strandquist Reelected To National Post

Ervin Strandquist of Newfolden was reelected first vice president of the Minnesota Association of Township Officers and named to another one-year term on the board of directors of the National Association of Township officers at the state association meeting December 5 at St. Cloud state university.

Strandquist, who also serves as chairman of the Northwest regional development commission, will be serving his third year on the national association board. He will attend the annual meeting of that body December 15, 16 and 17 in Washington, D.C.

Other officers of the state association reelected at the annual meeting were Henry Schumann, Stewartville, president; Oswald Nord, Cokato, second vice president; and Darlene A. Vobejda, Grand Rapids, secretary. Paul Neumann Jr. of Little Falls was elected as a new member of the board to succeed Melford Venske of Little Falls and Lother Wolter Jr. of Norwood was elected treasurer to succeed Alvin Ost of Montevideo.

Convention activities began on December 4 with Strandquist, Schumann, executive secretary David Fricke and legal advisor Wallace Gustafson taking part in opening activities. Workshops were held during the afternoon with resources participants including Arne Carlson, state auditor, and Clyde E. Allen Jr., commissioner of revenue.

Participants on Saturday included U.S. Senator Dave Durenberger, Sen. Myrton Wegener and Rep. Gordon Voss of the state legislature, and Gov. Al Quie who delivered the banquet address.

A number of resolutions were adopted by the association during its business session, including several requesting legislative action. Through its resolutions, the association asked the legislature to: (1) Abolish the election of township constables and provide for their appointment; (2) require the person requesting an election recount to pay for the recount in any city or township that did not commit any errors in the election procedure or counting of the ballots; (3) remove the fire protection levy limit of one and two-thirds mills for special fire districts; (4) eliminate the vote of the electors in order to authorize the township to assess for improvements; (5) allow townships to establish a self-insurance program on tort liability, errors and omissions, and surety bonds; and (6) to require utility companies to submit detailed plans to local governing bodies of the location of underground transmission lines, pipelines, telephone and electrical conduits and other facilities.

Resolutions also called for no modification by the municipal board if a city and town jointly agree on an orderly annexation agreement; support by the association of removing the interest limit on state trunk highway bonds; and comparable reduction in state aids to all local units of government, including school aids.

Opposition was expressed for any legislation which would limit the amount of money that may be levied by townships to finance their annual budgets.

During the past year the association had total expenses and disbursements of $241,615. Pennington county paid dues of $4,405 (covering two-year payment) to the association during the past year. Marshall county paid $4,435 and Roseau county paid $3,050. Beltrami county added $2,815, Clearwater county $2,040 and Kittson county $3,155. Red Lake county was not listed as a contributor.

Governor Asks Declaration Of Disaster Area

Governor Al Quie has asked U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block to declare counties of Pennington and Red Lake an agricultural disaster area following unprecedented rainfall from May 22 to Sept, 30, 1981.

"Farmers in these counties have sustained substantial economic losses. Agricultural destruction and damage is severe, and I am urging Secretary Block to act as quickly as possible on this request for federal assistance. I hope Secretary Block will agree with my assessment and issue a disaster declaration so farmers of the area can receive assistance they so urgently require," Quie said.

If counties are declared disaster area, low interest loans would be available through Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). For uninsured crop loss or damage, FmHA offers loans up to a $500,000 manimum at 5 per cent interest.

New Law Aimed At Protection Of Children

Minnesota Legislature has passed a new law that will protect one of our state's most precious commodities, children.

According to Barbara Mittelstadt, traffic safety coordinator for Minnesota AAA, the law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, 1982, requires all Minnesota parents or guardians of children under four years to install child restraint systems in their automobiles.

Minnesota Statutes 169.685 reads as follows: "Every parent or leagal guardian of a child under the age of four years residing in this state, when transporting the child on the streets and highways of this state in a motor vehicle owned by the parent or guardian, shall equip and install for use in the motor vehicle, according to the manufacturer's instructions, a child passenger restraint system meeting federal motor vehicle safety standards."

"The fact that automobile accidents are the number one cause of death and injuries to children was a major reason for the law," Mittelstadt stated.

Statistics show that nearly 90 per cent of the fatalities and 80 per cent of the injuries caused by automobile accidents could have been prevented if a federally approved child restraint system had been used.

"It doesn't take a crash to severely maim or kill a child," she continued. "A sudden stop while driving 30 mph can propel an unrestrained child forward into the windshield or dashborad with the force equal to that of falling from a three story window."

Mittelstadt reported that there exists a common misconception that holding a child in the arms of an adult will protect him or her. "Because of the forces unleashed in just a 30 mph collision, a 15 pound infant would be torn from the adult's arms with the force of 450 pounds," she explained.

"The facts are startling enough to prompt conscientious parents and guardians to act," Mittelstadt said.

people are happy with it. I'm not going to change," he said.

Alderman Ambrose Wysoski commented, "I think it isn't fair," noting that the mayor had previously been only a figurehead, lacking vote, which he now has. Carlson added, "I just feel that with the responsibilities, whoever has the office ought to have the right to a four-year term." Aldermen Don Goodrich and J.M. Womack both indicated that they had no opinion either way on the matter, and Penning was the only one expressing opposition, but no resolution was introduced to either change the term or bring it to a referendum vote.

Cars using the site of the former Ben Branklin store for parking and causing a safety hazard by driving over curb and widewalk was discussed. Need for installing fence to prevent entrance from the front of the lot was established and discussion centered on responsibility for installation and maintenance.

Motion was passed to get agreement between owner Don Enright and the city so that city crews could install fence. Problems of responsibility for ice buildup on sidewalks brought comment that the city was "probably its own worst offender" in that regard, if sidewalks around parks were considered. Alderman Clayton Restad noted that keeping the lot clear of snow would not be given priority by city crews.

Three bids were received for a new police car. Purchase was approved from low bidder, West Side Motors for a Dodge Diplomat at $9,269 for a Chevrolet Impala. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser noted that the vehicle was smaller than previous cars, but this year's full-size offering from the manufacturer.

In other business the council:

—Approved paying 60 per cent of cost for purchase of a bus by Tri-Valley. Morris Owen was present to explain that bus was used primarily by senior citizens. Authorization of funds was previously delayed until more was known about what other cities paid for similar services. Owen noted that majority of use was by Thief River Falls residents.

—Approved proposed expenditures of revenue sharing money as part of a budget hearing. Notice was made that budgets would not be approved until legislative cutbacks had been established. Proposed budgets are available for public inspection in city clerk's office.

—Appointed Paul Ihle to another term on Housing and Redevelopment Authority.

—Approved dance permit for AVTI Student Senate at Armory on December 17.

—In a separate meeting at noon, Tuesday, with members of the planning commission representatives of Highway 59 South business community, and Minnesota Department of Transportation representatives, committee was appointed to work with MnDOT engineers to develop new plan for improving safety of business area of Highway 59 South. Council will be represented by Aldermen Womack and Penning. Planning Commission, area businesses, and MnDOT will also have two representatives each.

Sen. Boschwitz Applauds Ag Research Funds

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz has applauded the increase of over $50 million in funding for agricultural research and extension in fiscal year 1982 as part of the agricultural appropriations bill passed recently by the Senate. Vote on final passage was 69 to 15.

"The appropriations committee wisely chose to adjust the administration's request and allow for an increase in the budget for agricultural research," Boschwitz said.

Although the $50 million is less than the original proposal considered by the committee, it is $93 million more than the administration's request which reflected the 12 per cent budget cuts proposed in September, Boschwitz explained.

"I spoke with members of the appropriations committee to express my concern about the detrimental effect a cut in agricultural research money would have in the long run on the competitive position of U.S. agriculture in the world. I'm pleased that they saw fit to go along with my suggestions," said Boschwitz.

"I'm a big proponent of agricultural research because of the benefits to the agricultural community and society as a whole. Can you imagine where we would be today, for instance, if average corn yields were still less than 50 bushels per acre? Investments in agricultural research have combined with farmer's own ingenuity to bring about the remarkable increases in agricultural productivity we've seen over the last few decades."

KATHY MOORE is the liaison representative between local communities in this part of the state and the Minnesota waste management board. She was present during the tour of proposed hazardous waste disposal sites in Marshall, Kittson and Beltrami counties last Thursday, and the meetings of the board in the city auditorium Thursday evening and Friday. Moore is pictured during the site tour on Thursday afternoon.

Grain Market Seminar Is Well Received

considered, estimating cost of grain storage at 30 cents per bushel.

Egertson said he was pessimistic about prices for corn, barley and other feed grains with exception of oats which were in relatively short supply. "I don't predict much increase in corn prices," he said, noting that feed grains in general looked "relatively bad."

He said he was quite optimistic about wheat prices, predicting they would rise to "over $4, maybe $4.25 before spring." He suggested that producers should keep close watch on basis price and take active interest in marketing of their products.

Question and answer session followed with panel composed of Dahl, Egertson, St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator manager Robert Miller, farmer Clyde Christensen, and area extension agent Bill Penning commenting and fielding questions.

Questions were raised about differences in price paid here, and those paid in Duluth and St. Paul. Miller explained relationships between markets and transportation costs. One person asked about possible market control by big corporations through price fixing. Dahl noted that farmer-owned cooperatives moved over 40 per cent of local grain, and 20 per cent on regional basis, with GTA (a farmer owned cooperative) being the largest single buyer. "Common as that belief is, there's not much hard evidence to support it," he said.

Penning commented that farmers in northern Minnesota were "in a serious production situation" and recommended that those who rented land renegotiate with their landlords on a lower rental. He also suggested they "fine tune" their operations, and keep records of market prices to enable them to make better decisions when selling their crops. Christensen noted that by careful evaluation of markets he was able to get about 10 per cent better price for his crops than average.

Wide range of persons attending seminar included farmers, elevator operators, real estate dealers and bankers. In conversations afterward many positive comments were heard. According to Chamber of Commerce executive vice president Jerry Sandstrom, evaluation sheets filled out following the program indicated that all found it very informative and were interested in attending follow-up sessions going into more detail.

Sandstrom said that his office would be further evaluating suggestions made on the sheets to select a topic for future session. He commented, "I hope this will be just the first of many."

Manufacturing Is Hazardous Waste Producer

toxic in nature.

Medicine manufacture results in organic solvents and residues and heavy metals including mercury and zinc, all of which are toxic.

Ore extraction processes result in paint sludge, petroleum product wastes, alkaline sludge and mercury. Primary metal industries making pipe and wire as well as foundries have wastes such as oils, wastewater treatment sludge, leach residue of chromium, lead and arsenic, coking operation sludge, solvents including alcohols, acetone and trichloroethylene, paint wastes such as benezene, lead, nickel and chromium and corrosive caustics.

Public utilities and services such as telephone, electric power and gas produce wastes including oil, solvents, PCBs, gas-water and oil-water sludges, acid solutions, and metal plating. Colleges, universities and laboratories need to dispose of flammable and toxic formaldehyde, alcohols, acetone, paint residues containing heavy metals, petroleum products.

Technology is providing means by which some of these waste products can be utilized, and other means by which they can be neutralized, incinerated or encapsulated to eliminate, reduce or control the potential hazard. Even with these technologies, however, a certain amount of product in ash, sludge or other non-liquid form will have to be disposed of in some permanent manner. A secure landfill type of operation is most seriously considered for this type of disposal.

Waste managment board members here last week noted that the questions they are most often asked indicate that the public is generally not aware of the type of waste to be disposed of nor the type of facility which would provide for that disposal. They wish more people would become informed. The problem exists; the solution is elusive.

Merle Lundeen Seated On NFO National Board

Financial industry has demonstrated a tremendous interest in National Farmers Organization, NFO president DeVon Woodland told some 4,000 farmer delegates at the closing session of the group's national convention at the Indianapolis, IN convention center.

That interest stems from the bankers' knowledge that National Farmers is dealing with the cash flow problems that are crippling the nation's farmers in a better and more substantial way than any other organization, Woodland said.

In fact, he added, NFO has been asked to provide speakers for meetings of the group during the coming year.

Attending the convention from this area were Merle Lundeen, Bill Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Darrow Lundeen, Mr. and Mrs. Juell Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kotrba and Jens Steen, all of Pennington county.

Those from Red Lake county attending were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Boucher, Mr. and Mrs. John Ulrich and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harmoning. Merle Lundeen was also seated on the national board during an afternoon session at the convention.

Commenting on a convention speech by secretary of agriculture John Block, Woodland said, "The security reassures us that we have a job to do and we can't depend on the government.

"He was candid about it," Woodland said. "He speaks of doing it through a free market system. But if there is going to be a free market system, it ought to be total. Let Boeing and General Motors and the other large corporations operate in a free market system and go broke rather than farmers going broke alone."

Woodland said the administration's tax cuts for oil exploration purposes appear rather to be for "exploitation."

"The tax benefits have been used for corporate acquisitions with major corporations acquiring other major corporations. The tax program has been designed to benefit the upper class and large corporations," Woodland said.

"The proposed farm bill is an adjustment downward. Right now farmers and ranchers are selling commodities at about 55 per cent of their cost. So we are taking a salary cut of 40 to 45 per cent," he said.

"As soon as industry and other workers take a 40 to 45 per cent decrease in income, agriculture will be willing to consider another cut in income as suggested in the Farm Bill. Until then, it is unfair to ask agriculture to take another cut when it has already taken a larger cut than any other group of people," Woodland said.

Woodland noted that more young farm people were in attendance at the convention than ever before.

"Therein lies the future of any organization," Woodland said. "One of the encouraging things is their getting involved in agriculture as professionals."

How To Make Holiday Travel Economical

Whether vacationing or visiting friends and relatives, there are steps to take to make holiday travel more economical and enjoyable. Minnesota society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs) suggests planning a trip carefully, and researching costs before completing plans.

These are the busiest times of the year for domestic flights, say airline representatives, and travelers often make reservations as early as July. If travelers have thought this far in advance, CPAs say, there may be a budget set up for the trip, which would allow for transportation, accommodations, meals, tips and sight-seeing costs.

When making airline reservations, ask different lines about discount fares. Since discount fares are sometimes cancelled during peak travel times, be specific about available dates. Some discount airfares, such as super-savers, are offered on a limited basis and even then are contingent upon advance payment. These fares are unavailable at the last minute. Competition has generated lower fares that are usually offered for short periods of a month or two. If one airline advertises low fares, others are apt to respond with competitive prices, even if they do not advertise them.

To cut costs, CPAs suggest taking advantage of low fares. Most discount fares apply to heavily trafficked routes where competition is fiercest, such as coast to coast or to key vacation areas and distant ski resorts.

For those traveling on routes where discount fares are not available, travel agents should be contacted to see if costs of traveling can be lowered. Perhaps connections can be made where such fares are available. For example, if fares are lower from Houston to a destination, but Dallas is a more conveniently located airport, see how much a commuter flight between Dallas and Houston costs. If one lives near two airports, he or she may find out if carriers at the second airport offer lower fares.

If flights are booked in advance and full fare is paid, it may be discovered that the airline has since lowered the cost, and the traveler can exchange his or her ticket. If the airline balks, cancel your reservation and make a new one at the lower rate. On the other hand, CPAs suggest paying for any reservations as soon as possible to avoid fare hikes.

On shorter trips, look into alternative means of transportation. Compare the price of bus, train and plane fare, as well as rental car fees. Take into consideration time and money involved in traveling to the airport or station. Sometimes, time saved going to the train station balances out extra time taken by traveling on the train.

If traveling to an area that is difficult to reach, consider taking mass transportation to a nearby city and then renting a car for the remainder of the trip. For long periods of time this may be costly, but for weekend visits the rental may be less than the extra fare, especially if cost is shared. Car rental agencies frequently offer special weekend rates or lower rates by the week. Where the car is returned also affects costs. If a car is rented in Chicago, but dropped off in Indianapolis, $25 might be added to the cost.

When comparing costs, be sure to inquire about the fee for insurance for both the car and traveler, as well as tax. One may be able to rent a car for only $20 per day, but if complete insurance is added ($10 per day) and gas expenses (allow $5 per day), $35 a day is actually being paid.

Farm Prices Down 13 Per Cent From '80

Mid-November index of prices received by Minnesota farmers decreased 1 per cent from October and 13 per cent from a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Decrease in the farm index was due to lower prices for corn, soybeans, flaxseed, all hay, potatoes, hogs, slaughter cows, sheep, lambs, and milk cows. Prices for all other commodities were above a month earlier. Average prices received by farmers were the lowest since March 1977 for lambs, August 1977 for sheep and April 1978 for slaughter cows.

Crops index decreased 1 per cent to 121 during the month. This was 20 per cent below the index a year earlier. Mid-November prices and changes from last month are: all wheat, $3.89 per bushel, up 5 cents from the revised October estimate; corn, $2.16, down 8 cents; oats, $1.93, up 13 cents; barley, $2.25, up 6 cents; soybeans, $5.76, down 10 cents; flaxseed, $6.19, down 14 cents;potatoes averaged $4.20 per hundredweight for all grades, down 40 cents. All hay was down $11 per ton to $65; alfalfa hay at $75 was down $5; and other hay at $49 was down $9. All sunflowers at $10.80 were up 20 cents per hundredweight from the revised October price. Dry edible beans were up $3 to $25.50 per hundredweight.

Meat animal index at 132 was down one per cent from last month and 9 per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $41.60 per hundredweight were down $3.40 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $48.70, up 90 cents. Claves were up $4 to $65. Sheep brought $13.20, down 20 cents. Lambs were down $4.90 to $47.40.

Dairy index increased 1 per cent during the month to 150. This was 1 per cent below the index last year. Preliminary milk price at $13.20 per hundredweight was up 3 cents from the revised October price.

Poultry and egg index at 113 was 9 per cent above last month but 16 per cent below a year ago. Turkeys were 34 cents per pound liveweight, up 3 cents from a month earlier. Eggs brought 59 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-November, up five cents from mid-October and four cents above a year earlier.

MN Employers Needed For Energy Award

Minnesota employers with energy saving programs can earn credit for their conservation efforts and have an opportunity to win a statewide competition by entering the sixth annual energy saver's award of excellence. Competition is sponsored by the Natural Gas council of Minnesota (NGCM) and the Minnesota energy agency and is supported by several other community organizations.

Intent of the competition is to recognize employers who have implemented energy saving programs and to encourage an exchange of conservation ideas among organizations.

Any employer in Minnesota — large or small — who has had an energy saving program in operation during 1981 is eligible. Employer includes virtually any kind of organization — whether a business, local unit of government, government agency, hospital, church or school. Entry deadline is January 31, 1982.

Entrants will compete in one of five categories: large industrial, small industrial, large service, small service and institutional. Winners and runners-up will be selected in each category. From the category winners, a statewide winner and runner-up will be selected. Employers with energy saving transportation programs are also eligible to compete for a special transportation award.

Programs will be judged according to their innovativeness, effectiveness and adaptability to other organizations.

Judges will be selected from sponsoring and support groups. The NGCM is a non-profit group composed of representatives from various investor-owned gas utilities, whose purpose is energy conservation education.

Employers interested in obtaining a brochure with entry information, should contact the Natural Gas Council of Minnesota, 529 Butler Square, Minneapolis, MN 55403, or call (612) 333-3648.

Eckstein's To Close Clothing Store In RLF

Roger Eckstein, president of Eckstein's dpeartment stores, announced today that the company plans to close its Red Lake Falls clothing store. Eckstein's hardware store in Red Lake Falls will remain open as will the department store in Moorhead.

In making the announcement, Eckstein said the clothing store had suffered large losses in recent years and that it was no longer practical to keep it open. He said the store will be closed on Wednesday and Thursday to prepare for a going out of business sale which will start Friday.

Eckstein said he wants to thank his customers for their past support and patronage.

Although there has been some interest by other businesses in leasing the space being vacated by Eckstein's, at present there are no definite plans.

To Offer Loans For Energy Conservation

Gov. Al Quie has announced that, beginning in January of 1982, approximately $50 million in low interest loans will be available through the Minnesota Housing Finance agency (MHFA) for certain home improvement and energy conservation measures.

Loans, up to a $15,000 maximum, will be available at interest rates ranging from three per cent to 14.5 per cent, depending on the income of the borrower, for those improvements designed to make a home more liveable and energy efficient.

Eligible improvements include electrical wiring, plumbing, roofing, heating, accessibility improvements, improvements to increase compliance with applicable housing codes, and variety of energy saving improvements including insulation, storm windows and doors and solar equipment.

For property less than 15 years old, the only eligible improvements are those which repair damage from a natural disaster, correct items that are hazardous to health or safety or directly improve energy efficiency.

In order to qualify for a loan the borrower must meet the MHFA's income limits and must own and occupy the property to be improved as a principal residence. The property may not include more than four units. The borrower must be credit worthy and may not use more than 15 per cent of the home in a trade or business.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

Since November 2, the department has been actively enforcing calendar parking within the city. The first 30 days warning tickets were issued so that vehicle owners could become aware of the calendar parking ordinance.

Since December 2, regular parking tickets have been issued for violations. Patrolmen issuing the tickets inform me that compliance is starting to come around and we certainly want to thank you for your cooperation.

As people are coming in after they receive tickets, suggestions and concerns have been expressed. One area seems to stand out the most, that being the time period from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. This time period is set so that the street department has sufficient time to complete its work without interference of vehicles parked on the street.

We can recall that prior to enforcement the street department did need all day to complete the task of snow removal and this still may be the case in extreme emergencies.

Since it is quite apparent that citizens need to park on residential streets and avenues during the day, and the street cleaning process is usually completed by 9 a.m., we will enforce the calendar parking only between the hours of 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. This means that after 9 in the morning residents need not worry about their vehicle receiving a ticket for violation of calendar parking.

Calendar parking will be enforced from 6 to 9 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday on avenues and Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday on streets.

Farmers Ass'n. Approves '82 Action Program

Twenty-ninth annual convention of the U.S. farmers association was conducted recently in Mason City, Iowa where delegates from a dozen states approved a new board of directors and action program for 1982.

Setting the tone for the entire convention, national president Fred Stover outlined the current farm crisis in his annual report. Stover stated, "It is imperative that we understand just what we are up against. Average farm prices are at an all-time low. Corn prices are down to 43 per cent of parity, with livestock near 50 per cent. With farmers home loans in arrears up to 70 per cent in some states, we are facing a crash. Thirty years of government programs designed to drive out family farmers by enforcing below-parity prices has brought us ruin in both the farm economy, and in farm-related industries."

Targeting farm foreclosures as one of the most critical problems, the convention voted to begin organizing foreclosure action committees throughout rural America to assist threatened farmers.

In addition, plans were made to host the first national conference on the role of agriculture in world peace. Delegates felt that the enormous military spending of the Reagan administration was bankrupting both rural and urban economies.

U.S. farmers association was formed in 1952. Its stated goal is to insure farm and national economic prosperity through the maintenance of parity prices for farm products and a foreign policy committee to world peace.

A DISCUSSION of hopes and fears for the future, and the problems teenagers, Ann Frank (Sue Rosetta) and Peter Van Daan (Alan Lull) are experiencing as they are confined in the attic hiding place with their parents, takes place during "The Diary of Anne Frank" to be staged beginning this evening at 8 p.m. and continuing through Sunday in the Northland community college theater. Production is under the direction of Roger Vaughan. All performances are at 8 p.m. except the Sunday performance which will be a 2 p.m. matinee.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

When labor and management get into a dispute over wages, benefits and working conditions, it often results in a strike being called. More often than not both sides suffer damages but so does the public. However, the public is not given any consideration or opportunity to participate in a settlement despite the fact that it might be the biggest loser of all.

A year ago while the grain handlers were on strike in Duluth, the farmers suffered great financial losses and stood by in a helpless fashion at the mercy of the disputing parties.

The air traffic controllers strike is another glaring example of the damage that can be done to third party people who are forced to sit idly by. The airlines suffered great losses. The public suffered untold inconveniences and the air traffic controller's families will now suffer greatly. All because of a two-way argument that was not brought to a quick settlement.

Hundreds of farmers in Minnesota and North Dakota ran the risk of losing their entire sugar beet crop, all because a labor-management grievance caused labor to go out on strike just as this perishable crop was due to be harvested.

We have seen this same thing happen time and time again in the coal industry, the auto industry, in transportation, in manufacturing plants and other industries that serve the public. Now the problem has spread to our schools where many teachers are on strike or are threatening to do so with little concern as to its effect on the children or their parents.

The evidence is clear that the present method is not a satisfactory way of handling labor disputes. Even a person with dark glasses ought to be able to see that.

The time has come to change our out-moded and unsatisfactory labor laws. We need a quick and positive method to resolve these differences and do it in a fashion that will not permit two parties to not only damage themselves but the innocent third party public as well.

Why can't the law be amended so as to make it mandatory that they be required to use a pattern similar to what individual parties use when they have a dispute. More often that not when a dispute occurs the matter is argued before a presiding officer or judge and a selected panel of jurors to hear the merits of the complaint and render a decision. In a labor dispute a similar pattern should be used.

The trial and jury system has served this nation since its founding. Why not apply this basic idea to our labor disputes and use it to settle these labor quarrels that disrupt our economy? The end results would be the elimination of these long and costly work stoppages and the hardships they bring to the families of the working men and women, the companies involved and the long overlooked and negelected public.

Looking ahead to what may become the longest recession in thirty years, with business failures and bankruptcies at a all time high, we need to take a serious look at strike demands for more fringe benefits, cost of living increases and higher pay on business and industry that now cannot pass these costs on to consumers.

One does not need a telephoto lens to understand why car dealers are having trouble selling cars to people earning $7 an hour while union labor making the cars is paid $20 an hour. High cost of management and labor — with increasing competition from goods from overseas — will not now stand the glare of the economic searchlight here in America.

Sincerely,
Delmar Hagen

Farm Income Record Dulled By Expenses

Once again, Minnesota's gain in total realized gross farm income reached a record. And once again, this gain was wiped out by soaring farm production expenses, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Setting a record for the fourth straight year, total gross income reached $7.12 billion, up 14 per cent from 1979. Farm expenses gained a sharp 17 per cent to $5.9 billion, led by increases in energy-related items, feed, fertilizer and interest. This left a realized net farm income of $1.20 billion, up only one per cent from 1979.

But when the net change in farm inventories is figured in, the total net income lost a lot of ground from 1979. (The "net change in farm inventories" reflects the change in farm commodities held by farmers between January 1 and December 31.) Consequently, Minnesota's total net farm income plummeted 20 per cent from 1979 to $1.16 billion, the lowest since 1976.

On a "per-farm" basis, the average farmer grossed $68,468. His expenses were $8,000 higher than 1979, at $56,912. After changes in his inventory were figured in, his total net was $11,120 versus $13,820 in 1979.

Minnesota's total cash receipts for farm products in 1980 came to $6.29 billion, up 13 per cent from 1979.

Leading the way were higher receipts for corn, soybeans, dry beans, cattle, hogs and milk. Dairy continues as the state's leader in receipts, accounting for 19 per cent of the total; cattle and calves, soybeans, corn, hogs and wheat followed. With both a larger supply and higher average prices, receipts from corn jumped 34 per cent from 1979, the biggest increase among all of Minnesota's farm products.

Increase In Truck Weights Permitted

All authorized trucks will be allowed to carry up to 10 per cent more than the legal weight limit when hauling on 10-ton routes yearly beginning December 1 in a northern Minnesota zone and January 1 statewide, according to Curtis Christie, maintenance engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT). On nine-ton routes, weights are not to exceed 80,000 pounds, even when the increased weight limits are in effect, he said.

Annual permits costing $60 for increased weights on Interstate highways are available at Mn-DOT permit offices to trucks licensed to carry up to 88,000 pounds gross weight. Permits will not be required on other 10-ton routes, he said.

Northern zone boundaries extend along US 61 at the Pigeon river (Canadian border) south to TH 210 at the southwest edge of Duluth; along TH 210 west to US 10 at Motley; along US 10 northwest to US 59 at Detroit Lakes; along US 59 north to US 2 at Erskine; along US 2 northwest to TH 32 at Marcoux; along TH 32 north to TH 11 at Greenbush; then north to the Canadian border and back along the border to the Pigeon river on US 61.

New weight limits will remain in effect statewide until March 7 each year, Christie said, unless otherwise determined by the commissioner of the Minnesota department of transportation.

REPORT

Santa is coming to town! He'll be at the Chamber office on December 12, from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. to receive requests from all the children of what they want for Christmas. While they are waiting to sit on Santa's knee, 2 special movies will be shown. One entitled "Me and You Kangeroo", and the other is "Friendly Fire Fly".

The following information has been received by the Chamber office that may effect your pay roll: Beginning January 1, On Sick Pay, employers should plan on paying Social Security Tax on the first six months of paid sick leave. Currently there is a bill before Congress which is expected to pass soon, which will not exempt sick pay under insured plans. Instead the tax will help pay for restoring minimum social security benefits of $122 per month for those now receiving them.

The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, acting as agent for Red River Trails Buslines, has had an active first two months of operation. During October and November, 348 people purchased tickets for transportation on the bus and 78 parcels were shipped or received at our office.

Summer 1981 was a busy time at the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber extended its hours from Memorial Day through Labor Day, running from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. This pilot program was designed to encourage tourists and visitors to spend more time and shop in Thief River Falls. There were times visitors were stacked five deep at the counter asking for additional information as to where to stay, where to eat, where can I camp, where can I shop and what can I do in Thief River Falls. Because this program was deemed a complete success the Chamber of Commerce board of directors elected to continue for the summer of 1982.

The Minnesota Historical society stopped by the chamber office last fall to discuss the preservation potential of two buildings in the community. The buildings which they were considering — of which they took pictures and background data — were the Soo Line depot and the old Carnegie library. As it is a long slow process, no decision has been reached. When one has been received, appropriate information will be given to the local media.

Chamber of Commerce board of directors will be holding its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, December 15, at 7 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce board room. A few of the items on the agenda which will be receiving close attention are approval of the 1982 budget, discussion of the old Carnegie library, downtown parking and annual meeting scheduled for January 9, 1982.

State Spending Cuts Would Ease Budgets

Legislature should adopt reductions in state spending to cope with fiscal problems and budget deficits, the president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation said.

Merlyn Lokensgard, St. Peter area cash crop and livestock farmer, shared the general farm organization's position recently in a letter to lawmakers.

A Farm Bureau family with a dwindling checking account, said Lokensgard, would curtail its spending and the state should do no less — "make cutbacks in spending as opposed to index tampering, tax increases or borrowing."

State spending slashes won't necessarily mean automatic hikes in property taxes, Lokensgard said. In fact, he added, he would expect increases to be minimal if local officials, with citizen input, are determining them. State directives and regulations themselves, he pointed out, tend to mean additional property tax burdens.

Long a strong advocate of maximum local control, Farm Bureau feels the state's "heavily funding" and directing local school, county and municipal operations contributes to "lack of interest and involvement" in grassroots government and education as well as to "little incentive to economize."

Allowing local governmental units "more of a voice" would result in taxpayers who are "more cost-conscious, more a part of decision-making, and more insistent that locally elected officials be fiscally responsible," Lokensgard said.

Beef Cattle Day Held At Crookston

Beef Cattle Day, revived after 1980 budget cuts grounded many agricultural extension programs, was held December 2 at Northwest Experiment Station (NWES), Crookston. About 125 persons attended full-day session of reports by University of Minnesota researchers. Harvey Windels, NWES, presided over program which included reports on animal nutrition, physiology studies, feedlot practice, vaccination procedures, growth stimulants, and checklists for maximizing feedlot returns. Drs. Richard Goodrich, Jay Meiske, and Dale Haggard from U of M department of animal science, St. Paul, along with J.E. Garrett and B.L. Miller spoke. B-vitamins, high calcium levels in feeding, protein levels and feed from alcohol by-products were other special topics.

In final analysis of economic future for beef industry, Dr. Goodrich stated opinion that conditions which lead to development of huge feedlots as against farmer feeding setups are changing. Presently only two per cent of feedlots are feeding over 1000 cattle, but market over 70 per cent of cattle in U.S. These feedlots have developed in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas. Minnesota markets about 800,000 cattle per year from 11,000 feedlots, obviously all small units.

Goodrich predicts this condition will change over next 10 years, citing interest rates for large units and high capital, labor and transportation costs, as discouraging further development of large systems. Farmers who raise own calves and have facilities paid for will be better able to profit than big operators. Further, Goodrich stated that irrigation and production costs in area now supporting heavy corn production in Kansas and Oklahoma will rise and further depress large feedlot operations.

Cattle feeding will move north and slightly east as factors affect present feeders more each year. This will mean more feedlots in southern Minnesota, Iowa, and southeastern South Dakota. High interest rates, if continued, would encourage feeding high grain rations to move cattle out of feedlots faster thus reducing costs. Long range, more grass fed cattle may be accommodated, but only in special areas, according to Goodrich.

Relatively new problem of combating hemophilus Somnus in feedlot was addressed by Dr. Dale Haggard, extension veterinarian, St. Paul. Guidelines for observing and treating were given.

EAGLES AUXILIARY members composed about 95 per cent of blood donors during the drive held at Northwestern hospital Monday by United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest. Auxiliary assisted in community project by calling and registering donors and providing and serving lunch. Registering here with Eagles auxiliary president Helen Brandt and Juanita Dahl were first time donors Susan Solberg and Linda Johnson.

'U' Faculty Is Upset By Proposed Cuts

A faculty member at the University of Minnesota told legislators recently that "the depths of anger, frustration and demoralization" within the faculty are the worst he has seen in his 17 years at the university.

Richard Purple, professor of physiology and vice chairman of the University senate, was among 25 faculty members, students and university officials who spoke at a hearing of the education division of the House appropriations committee on the Twin Cities campus.

Hearing was conducted on campus to give people at the university a chance to respond to Gov. Al Quie's proposed budget cuts, which would include a cut of $63.7 million in the university's appropriation for the 1981-83 biennium.

"Short-term problems require short-term solutions, not budget slashes that cripple institutions and the dedicated people in them to the point that rebuilding will take at least a generation," Purple said.

State's investment in the university has been a long-term investment, said Regent Wenda Moore. "Protecting it over the short term may mean increasing taxes, but failing to protect this investment now means substantially increasing the likelihood that his year's short-term budget problem will degenerate into a permanent problem."

"Damage to the university is damage to the state," said Andrea Hinding, associate professor and director of Walter Library on the Twin Cities campus. A regional concern was voiced by Thomas Bacig, associate professor of English at the University of Minnesota, Duluth. The Duluth area is already suffering from the highest unemployment in the state, he said, and the cutbacks in campus programs could contribute to turning the area into "a northern Appalachia ful of poverty-stricken people."

Much of the discussion at the hearing focused on the impact of proposed tuition increases. Most assumptions about dealing with big budget cuts have included a 20 per cent tuition increase for 1982-83, added to an already planned 10 per cent increase.

Vice president Stanley Kegler pointed out that such an increase would dramatically change the percentage of instructional costs paid by students. Over the past decade the percentage has ranged from 23.7 to 27.7 per cent. If budgets were cut by 11.8 per cent and tuition were increased by 30 per cent, the percentage of instructional costs paid by students would jump to 40.4 per cent.

Students would be hit two ways by the cuts, said Wally Hilke, a senior in the College of Liberal Arts (CLA) and the legislative director of the university student senate. Tuition would go way up, and the quality of education would go down. At the same time, Hilke said, students are faced with a decrease in student financial aid.

"Students on campus are scared," said student body president Bruce Thorpe. Another student concern is for their jobs, he said. "There are 6,000 students employed here. When a department is asked to cut its budget, the first positions to be cut are the student positions."

Bridget Hagerty, a CLA student and a member of the Minnesota student association, said that at least 500 students from all colleges of the university have written letters to Quie. Students are worried about rising tuition, she said, but they are equally worried that programs may be cut.

Hagerty summed up the feelings of the students who wrote letters and other students she has talked to: "We're concerned about this university. We want to be able to afford to attend it. And we want to attend a good school."

At a hearing of the full house appropriations committee, university president C. Peter Magrath said cuts proposed by Quie would hit the university even harder than administrators and regents featred in late October.

A worst-case senario presented at an emergency regents' meeting outlined some possible consequences of a $57 million cut at the university. Now Quie is proposing a cut of 11.8 per cent or $55.8 million in the university appropriation, but an added blow is the application of the 11.8 per cent cut to the amount set aside for faculty and staff salary increases, Magrath said. This would cut $7.8 million more from the university budget, for the total reduction of $63.7 million.

"We would not come out of this leaner but stronger," Magrath said. In addition to the proposed state cuts, he said, the university has already retrenched internally by 2.16 per cent or $8.4 million, and "inflation continues virtually unabated."

Some people thought earlier that university officials might be crying wolf, Magrath said, but "the wolf we were accused of crying about is at the door now."

Real issue is not the well-being of the university but "the invaluable contributions the university makes to Minnesota's economy and its life," Magrath said. Those contributions, he said, are "unequivocally jeopardized should the university be forced to absorb the most staggering retrenchment, to the best of my knowledge, ever imposed on an institution of American higher education."

VA Notes Gain In Mobile Home Loans

In fiscal year just ended, the Veterans Administration (VA) hit an all time high in mobile/manufactured home loan guarantees with a 13.4 per cent increase over last year's total, the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI) reported.

The VA mobile home loan program guaranteed 9,389 loans during fiscal year '80. Increases continued through October which posted an 11.8 per cent jump over the VA loans guaranteed in the same month a year ago.

According to George Alexander of the VA loan guaranty service, 38 per cent of all the mobile home loans made in October were for multi-section (double-wide) homes at an average of approximately $24,500 each.

Alexander said that, to date, the VA has guaranteed 52,689 mobile home loans for a total value of some $771.2 million. Majority of those outstanding VA loans, about 77 per cent, covered mobile/manufactured homes placed in rental parks, said Alexander.

"Clearly, the VA is playing an important and expanding role in helping Americans purchase the affordable mobile-manufactured housing that they want and need," Alexander said. "The mobile/manunfactured home is a vital source of decent, quality housing for veterans, and all homebuyers."

MHI president Walter L. Benning says the VA increases "reflect the growth of the industry in general."

"With less than four per cent of potential homebuyers even able to qualify for the loan to purchase a new site-built house today, more and more people are seriously considering mobile/manufactured housing," Benning said.

"In fact, some experts predict that by 1990 fully 75 per cent of all new housing will be factory-built to some degree."

MHI is the Washington, D.C. area national association representing manufactured home builders and their supplier companies.

Farm Show Set January 22-23 In Minneapolis

Everything from Claas combines made in Germany and Steiger tractors from North Dakota, to lawn and garden tractors made in Japan will be exhibited at the 1982 Northern farm show, says Bill Ryden, show director.

Over 230 exhibits of equipment for crop and livestock farmers of the Midwest will be on display.

Show is set for January 22 and 23, at the Minneapolis auditorium. A 50 per cent increase in the number of exhibits at the show has required expansion of the show to two full floors of the auditorium.

"Farmers attending the show will see more minimum-till equipment than ever before," says Ryden. "This has been our biggest growth area in terms of exhibit numbers. Farmers are concerned about soil loss, saving fuel and cutting out extra trips across fields and farm equipment companies are answering these concerns."

Northern farm show offers an opportunity for farmers to window shop points out Ryden, since no sales can be made at the show and there is no pressure to buy on the part of the farmer or pressure to sell on the part of company personnel. Show offers a chance for farmers and company representatives to get together on a neutral ground to exchange information on equipment, he adds.

Machinery dealers also see the show as an opportunity and a chance to gauge the reaction of their farmer customers to new equipment in the market place. Many dealers provide transportation to the show for their customers and depend on feedback to help decide what equipment orders to place for the coming year.

An expanded farm energy exhibit at the show will also attract exhibitors, with many types of alternative energy firms represented at the show. Wind energy, alcohol, solar and methane production will all be well represented, as well as more traditional forms of heating systems such as kerosene and wood heating units, says Glenn Klecker, secretary of the Minnesota gasohol commission and coordinator for the energy exhibit.

Event will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. January 22, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. January 23.

Northern farm show is sponsored by the retail farm equipment association of Minnesota and South Dakota. Association is comprised of nearly 900 farm equipment dealers serving farm customers across Minnesota and South Dakota. Free tickets are available to the show from these dealers. Farm customers are asked to stop at their local farm equipment dealer for free tickets to the show.

Do-It-Yourself

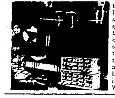
Tips from Stanley

How To Organize Your Fasteners

How many times — in the middle of a project — have you frantically dumped one jar after another of screws, bolts, nails and washers onto your workbench, table or floor to find just the one size you need? Sound familiar? Maybe you found it and maybe you didn't. But, if you're like me and most do-it-yourselfers you're not that organized. You just can't have that many jars anyhow — and they're breakable.

However, there's something on the market now which is a natural when it comes to organizing all the many types of fasteners you need at your fingertips. It's a plastic storage cabinet that holds 15 spill and impact-resistant drawers.

Just buy the fasteners you want for your workshop from tacks to toggle bolts in your local hardware and building supply outlets, slit the label naming the product on the end of each drawer, remove the clear cover and slip each into the Organizer. The packages become drawers. Cabinets can be stacked on the workbench, or mounted on the wall. There are over 450 different items to choose from. Stanley Hardware recognizes that some d.i.y.'ers want larger quantities of different fasteners, so now you can also obtain the latest economy see-thru boxes and stack them too. Just think of it... they're all labeled for you and there are extra blank labels for storing other items. They're organized. What else can I say?



Gayle Pearson Feels Blindness Not Handicap

weighing must be done accurately. To make sure tags are properly placed on packages, they are placed writing-side down so Gayle can easily turn them over, fold them, and staple them to the packages.

"It took a while, but I learned to do it," she exclaimed proudly.

She also works on bean bag chairs produced at the ODC, where she turns the bags inside out once they are sewn and trims side-seam threads, and sorts materials when her other duties are complete.

Gayle enjoys her job "when there is something to do," she stated.

Employee of the quarter has assumed the responsibilities of employee representative for the past two years at the ODC. Her job, she said, involves meeting with counselors to discuss improvements, if any are needed, and to keep track of supplies needed for workers. "We talk about anything having to do with the shop that would value us here," she said. Representatives are elected by fellow employees each year, and Gayle now feels that her term has expired. "I'd kind of like to give others a chance," she said.

Reading, listening to music, singing and writing poetry are among the hobbies Gayle enjoys. "Okinawa Trail," "High Lonesome," "Valley of Wild Horses," and "Portrait of a Sioux," are only some of the many titles familiar to her. Besides Westerns she also enjoys books on different countries, and autobiographies and biographies, she said, even though she sometimes has difficulty determining the difference between the two. "I get them mixed up," she giggled, "kind of like fiction and nonfiction. But I like them all."

"It depends on the person," Gayle replied to our question of how difficult it is to learn braille. "For me, at first, it took a while to learn," she said. She began attending a school for the blind in Faribault when she was six years old, graduating in 1966. In 1972, she moved in with Ardelle Ostgarden of Thief River Falls and began working at the ODC. She now lives independently with assistance from Mrs. Ostgarden.

Books on records and cassettes can be obtained from Faribault, as well as from other lending libraries. She obtains magazines in braille from libraries in Lincoln, NE; New York; and St. Louis, MO.

Gayle also enjoys singing and has sung in her hometown church in Kennedy and for the Sons of Norway in Thief River Falls.

Collecting charms is another of Norway in Thief River Falls.

Collecting charms is another of her hobbies, and in her collection are several charms of different states and of Canada. "I guess I like to collect something when I've been somewhere," she said. "I get more out of that than I would with pictures!"

She also collects perfumes and jewelry and records, since she enjoys listening to music, especially if it's country Western. "I've got a lot of American and Canadian records," she said. She has traveled to Canada a few times for vacations, and to learn of Canadian history. She also used to write letters to Canadian pen pals.

Gayle has braille playing cards as well as games in braille such as checkers, monopoly and scrabble, which she has ordered through a special catalog.

She enjoys going out to eat, although admitted she doesn't like to go out too often since then it isn't fun anymore. Her favorite foods are hamburgers and "anything with French fries," she said.

Gayle is eager to learn to do new things. She hasn't really given much thought to the fact that she is blind, and that she cannot see things others can see. Sometimes she develops her own picture of what people look like when she meets them. "You just have to go by what people tell you," she said, "and figure it out for yourself. I've never really thought of it as being hard not being able to see."

She has learned to respect people and their feelings. "If you want them (fellow employees) to accept you, you have to learn to accept their feeling with their handicaps."

Her pet peeve is when people think that just because one blind person can do something all blind people can do that same thing. "people with the same handicaps can't all do the same things," she said. "Blind people are all different, just like people who can see are all different."

Gayle began "examining" her watch as our visit neared its end. She assured us, however, we weren't keeping her from anything. "I look at it too much," she said. "I guess it's just a habit."

We received some of her poetry before we left the ODC. Gayle used to write poetry for the ODC newsletter, although she admitted to not having written for some time. "I'm going to try again," she affirmed. "I should keep up with it; it's kind of fun." ODC counselors encouraged her to begin writing poetry, and a team effort enabled her works to be printed. "I put words down in braille and they'd take dictation," she said.

Following are some of Gayle's poems, along with a poem contributed by her, reprinted from "The Behive."

Happiness

Happiness is what you make it,
Making friends and having fun,
In our work and homes, hearts are warm,
Smiling faces bring forth signs of love.

The Rain

I am the rain,
I pitter-patter o/ the window pane,
I pitter-patter on the window flowers grow,
And send the water to make the rivers flow.
I water the soil for the farmers to plant their wheat,
So the people around the world can eat.

The last poem, submitted by Gayle from "The Behive," expresses several of the feelings she portrays.

Seek

Always seek to do good,
Look for ways to be kind.
Try to find helpful things to do;
Keep love in your heart and mind.
Always seek to do good,
Wherever you may go;
Look for ways to bring
Happiness to everyone you know.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, "Why do you always say that Jesus is the only way to God? Aren't there many ways, but we're all heading for the same place?"

A. People are constantly asking, What's so special about Jesus? Why is He more important than baptism, church membership, living a good moral life, doing good deeds, financial giving to the church, or faithful church attendance, etc.

All of these are excellent Christian virtues, but none of these in themselves could forgive us of our sins or make us a child. People for years have tried to let these be the way to God.

If these virtues could save us from our sins, then God made a mistake sending Jesus, His only begotten Son to us. We had all of these virtues before He came, but God recognized that they were not cleansing our hearts or purging our conscience from dead works to serve the living God. Only Christ and His shed blood could accomplish that (Hebrews 9:12-14).

Hebrews 9:22 says "Without the shedding of Christ's blood there is no forgiveness of sin."

In Matthew 1:21, God told Mary, "Thou shalt call His name Jesus: for He shall save His people from their sins."

Acts 4:12 says, "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under Heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

I Timothy 2:5 teaches, "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus."

John 14:6 Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man can come unto the Heavenly Father but by me."

Galatians 3:26 teaches, "For ye are all the children of God by Faith in Christ Jesus."

John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him (Jesus) should not perish, but have Everlasting Life."

These are just a few of the Scriptures that let us know why Jesus is so special and why He is the only way to God.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Canadian Firms Boost Demand For Fed Cattle

Doug Appleby of Central Livestock association, a South St. Paul livestock marketing firm which first introduced Canadian buyers to South St. Paul, notes that there has been a feed cattle shortage in Canada.

"Packers came from Toronto and Winnipeg looking for an additional source of feed cattle to fill the demand for dressed meat," Appleby says.

"The price differential between Canadian markets and South St. Paul dictates the amont of trade they do with us. They pay about 20 cents per pound more in Canada for comparable cattle, but it costs that much money to ship them up there when the exchange rate, duty and transportation costs are included. As long as we can meet and beat the 20-cent difference, they will continue buying in South St. Paul."

Appleby points out that the major Toronto packer he represents prefers the middle weight — 1,075 to 1,300 pounds — number one or two grade steers available at South St. Paul. Canadian markets offer leaner and lighter livestock.

"They'll buy anywhere between 40 and 200 head a day," Appleby notes. "This type of buying has been a boon to our market because it has increased the demand for feed cattle at a time when the market as a whole has been depressed."

All in all, the Toronto packer bought approximately 5,500 head in its first two-and-a-half months of buying in St. Paul, according to Appleby. By continuing that rate of buying, the Canadians are purchasing cattle that, left on the market, might force down the overall price of cattle.

Several experts close to the market predict that cattle trading north and south between the U.S. and Canada may become a trend.

Dudley Kaushagen, manager of Farmer's Union marketing association and who represents East-West Packers Limited of Winnipeg, envisions a stronger trade commitment between the two countries in the future.

"Winnipeg packers are 450 miles from South St. Paul, and Toronto is 800 miles away," Kaushagen points out. "But that is closer than the 1,000-mile distance to the western Canada livestock markets.

"The way fuel costs are skyrocketing, the shorter distances between packer and market will be of more importance than the country in which the market is located," Kaushagen concludes.

Quie Requests Completion Of Redistricting

In a letter to legislative leaders today, Gov. Al Quie asked for completion of the congressional redistricting plan during the December special session.

The governor also outlined the guidelines he will use in judging a congressional reapportionment plan in the letter to Sen. Roger Moe, Sen. Robert Ashbach, Rep. Harry Sieben and Rep. Glen Sherwood.

"It occurs to me that the elections and reapportionment committees could be making use of this special session to complete part of your work. In fact, the legislature's tardiness on this matter is especially discouraging when I realize that one third of the state legislatures in the country have already enacted their plans into law," he wrote.

Quie said passing a congressional redistricting plan this month is a "reasonable charge because there are only eight congressional districts and minimum change in those district lines will be required."

"If action on reapportionment is postponed, it will be the people of Minnesota who will be the losers. Therefore, it is essential for you to act immediately on this issue."

MANAGER of Agassiz national wildlife refuge, Joe Kotok, explained characteristics of the refuge and property on the refuge which is included as one of 20 candidate sites for hazardous waste disposal. The explanation was given during a site tour Thursday by the Minnesota waste management board. Kotok and the U.S. fish and wildlife service contend that the disposal site is not compatible with refuge purposes and objectives. Waste management board members believe federal lands should be treated no differently than private or state public lands.

Quie laid out the following five principles that he will use in evaluating the congressional redistricting plan:

(1) One Person One Vote. The principal and overriding objective must be to build districts with population deviation as small as possible. I am requesting a maximum population deviation between districts be plus or minus .5 per cent or a total of one per cent deviation.

(2) Minimum Change. To minimize voter confusion, district lines should be changed only as much as is necessary to achieve one person, one vote.

(3) Minority Sensitivity. Districts should be designed to avoid, where possible, splitting areas where there is identifiable and protected minority population as determined by the census figures. This will allow minority influence in the legislative process.

(4) Preservation of Civil Boundaries. I believe we should strive to protect the integrity of those units of government closest to the people. To the extent possible, cities, townships or counties should not be divided into more than one district. When any city, township or county must be divided into more than one district, it should be divided into as few districts as possible.

(5) Compactness. The districts should be as compact as possible consistent with the above considerations.

Students Gain In Basic Skills

Sixth, seventh and eighth grade students at Franklin middle school demonstrated improved performance on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skill, according to James Fremstad, counselor at the school.

The tests which were given in September measure student progress in vocabulary, reading, language skills, work study skills and mathmatics. Students are compared to their counterparts throughout the United States in proficiency in these basic skills areas.

This year the sixth graders did better than 75 per cent of all sixth graders in the national norm sample, seventh graders better than 77 per cent and eighth graders did better than 69 per cent of the comparison group. Educationally, the gain from the 1979 and 1980 testing sessions was significant, Fremstad said. Seventh graders improved six per cent in their standings compared to last year. This amounts to a gain of 1.17 grades as measured by their grade equivalent composite score from last year. Eighth graders have improved 12 per cent from 1979 when they enrolled at Franklin. They improved by 2.33 grade equivalents over the two-year period.

The 1981 testing data reveals that the composite score of the sixth grade class is at the 6.73 grade level. The seventh grade composite score is at the 7.77 grade equivalent and the eighth grade composite is at the 8.64 grade equivalent level.

Students in special programs appear to have made excellent progress since the bottom 10 per cent of the students gained 1.22 grade equivalents between the seventh and eighth grade testing sessions and 1.20 grade equivalents from sixth to seventh grade. Franklin has had both Title I and S.L.D. programs for students who learn at a slower rate and for handicapped students, Fremstad added.

Areas of greatest improvement in the seventh grade were the language and math skills. Capatilization skills improved by 1.67 grade equivalents. Students in grade eight showed the greatest improvement in math and work study skills. Math computation improved by 1.5 grade quivalents in the one year period. Billie Blankenfeld, seventh grade math instructor, attributes this strong gain to, "a renewed emphais on drill and repetition in math computation in contrast to the 'new math' of several years ago where concepts were emphasized."

Dr. Milton Hoff, Franklin middle school principal, indicates that, "The data suggests that the middle school concept where sixth graders are exposed to a wider range of curriculum areas such as shop, home economics and art, in addition to the more intensive involvement in physical education and music, has worked well at Franklin. We not only teach the basic skills but also incorporate them into other curriculum areas," he continued.

Parents will be sent copies of their child's Iowa Tests of Basic Skills, and conferences will be held on December 7, 8, 14 and 15 from 6 to 10 p.m.

"Parents may wish to compare their child's performance to his or her past record along with visiting with teachers," Fremstad commented. "Teachers will have the results of the tests and a new format used for the first time this year will allow parents to see exactly where their child's strengths and weaknesses exist, and the teachers may be able to gear their curriculum to specific needs in reading and math." Fremstad concluded.

Wildlife Group Offers Grants For Research

Graduate students doing research in fields related to wildlife, resource management or protection of environmental quality may be eligible for grants of up to $4,000 through the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) environmental conservation fellowship program.

Applications are also being accepted for fellowships jointly supported by the NWF and the American petroleum institute. Research for these fellowships must deal with some relationship between petroleum and natural resource conservation.

Application deadline for both programs is December 31, 1981.

Proposed areas of study must be relevant to NWF interests and of value to other researchers in natural resource conservation. Appropriate topics cross a whole spectrum of academic areas, including environmental education, land use planning, wildlife habitat management, systems ecology, population manipulation, environmental pollution, environmental law and public policy, socioeconomic aspects of natural resource management and environmental aspects of energy development. Both programs are designed to assist a large number of research projects, and will give emphasis to topics of immediate concern.

Eligible applicants must be involved in research rather than course work, and must be U.S., Canadian or Mexican citizens who are pursuing a degree in a college of university graduate program or law school.

For information on either or both fellowships, including a list of priority topics and application forms, write the Executive Vice President, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 Sixteenth St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Boschwitz Is Appointed To Task Force

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz has accepted a position on a special task force that will investigate the economic and budgetary effects of federal credit assistance.

The subcommittee will examine:

+Relationship between federal credit activity and the congressional budget process, the unified budget and the deficit;

+Economic impact of federal credit assistance on market allocation of credit, interest rates, inflation and other economic factors;

+Proposed legislation before the budget committee that addresses federal credit; and +Congressional control mechanisms.

Temporary subcommittee will begin its work subsequent to the budget committee's markup of the second budget resolution. It will issue a final report March 5, 1982, in order to be considered with the first budget resolution for fiscal year 1983.

Installment Of Payments On Income Due

Fourth installment of estimated Federal tax payments on 1981 individual income is due by January 18, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service says.

This installment should be paid using Declaration Voucher four found in the Form 1040-ES package, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals."

Taxpayers whose anticipated income changed during 1981 may have to file an amended declaration. Space is provided in the estimated tax package to compute an amended estimate.

For more detailed information, the IRS Publication 505, "Tax Witholding and Estimated Tax," is available free by calling the IRS forms-tax information number in the local telephone directory.

Local Dealer Sponsors Rodeo Final Telecast

Furuseth & Nelson Inc., Thief River Falls, will join over 1,000 other participating farm equipment dealers across North America in sponsoring a special telecast of the 1981 national finals rodeo from Oklahoma City.

Program will appear locally on WDAY-TV, Fargo, ND, and WDAZ-TV Devils Lake, ND, December 16 at 8 p.m.

This makes the eighth consecutive year that the local company has joined in televising the national finals rodeo. The N.F.R. is recognized as the "World Series" or "Super Bowl" of professional rodeo and climaxes nearly 600 professional rodeo cowboys association (P.R.C.A.) sanctioned rodeos conducted throughout the country during 1981.

Corporations Must Pay '81 Estimated Tax

Corporations operating on a calendar year basis and having an expected federal tax liability of at least $40 for 1981 are required to make a payment of 1981 estimated tax by December 15, 1981, the Internal Revenue service says.

Amount due can be computed on Form 1120-W, a worksheet for computing corporation estimated tax. Form should not be filed with the IRS, but should be kept in the corporation's records.

When payments are deposited in authorized commercial banks or Federal Reserve banks, they must be accompanied by Federal Tax Deposit Form 503.

Supplies of Form 1120-W and IRS Publication 542, "Tax Information on Corporations," are available free by calling the IRS forms-tax information number in the local telephone directory.

Land O' Lakes, Midland To Merge Jan. 1

Midland Cooperatives, Inc. will merge with Land O'Lakes, Inc. Jan. 1, 1982. Both are farmer-owned agricultural supply cooperatives based in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota. Land O'Lakes is also a major producer and processor of agricultural projects and marketer of packaged foods for consumer and other markets.

Plan to consolidate operations developed after a study of nearly five months, was approved by 96 per cent of the Midland members and 91 per cent of the Land O'Lakes members who voted in recent referendums conducted by each cooperative. A two-thirds majority of the votes cast by each group was required for ratification of the merger.

Results from balloting were announced jointly following a special stockholders' meeting conducted by each cooperative in Minneapolis.

Plan of merger had been unanimously approved previously by the boards of directors of Midland and Land O'Lakes and discussed in detail by the membership of both groups at a series of 33 informational meetings conducted throughout the Upper Midwest area in which the members are located.

For many years Midland and Land O'Lakes have shared, in part, the same geographic area and membership roster, and both organizations make available to their members similar product lines and services. Merger is expected to increase efficiency and provide members with additional economic savings of from $5 million to $7 million annually by eliminating excessive duplication of manufacturing and wholesale distribution functions.

Midland and Land O'Lakes affiliated local cooperatives across the region can also anticipate substantial long term savings as a result of this merger.

In a joint statement, Delbert Burns, Wausau, WI, chairman of the Midland board, and Claire Sandness, La Moure, ND, chairman of the Land O'Lakes board, said, "No two O'Lakes board, said, "No two cooperatives have alike than those now enjoyed by the organizations which we represent. We will carry on with these philosophies, as assured in the plan of merger which our memberships have endorsed so enthusiastically."

Midland, based in Columbia Heights, is owned by more than 650 community cooperatives, representing nearly 300,000 individual members and patrons. Sales in 1980 were $523.5 million.

Land O'Lakes' headquarters are in Arden Hills, about three miles east of Midland headquarters. Company is owned by nearly 950 community farm supply and dairy processing cooperatives and 10,000 individual farmer stockholders. Total Land O'Lakes membership exceeds 250,000 family farmers. Sales in 1980 were $3.3 billion.

GAYLE PEARSON, an employee at the Occupational Development Center (ODC) in Thief River Falls, was recently selected employee of the quarter at the ODC. Major reason for her selection by ODC staff focused on the work she has contributed on a multi-step weighing and packaging operation. Process, done completely by touch since Gayle is blind, involves weighing tiny screws on a scale, then packaging the screws and attaching tags to the packages. Gayle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pearson of Kennedy.

You might be surprised to learn that the most common opponent on the 1981-82 Northland community college winter athletic schedule is Arrowhead community college. Northland teams are scheduled to face Arrowhead teams some 22 times during the course of the regular season, with the hockey teams playing 12 times while the men's and women's basketball teams face one another five times each.

Arrowhead community college? Actually things will not change in regards to athletic scheduling. Arrowhead community college is the new name for the administrative merger of the five northwestern Minnesota community colleges — Itasca in Grand Rapids, Mesabi in Virginia, Rainy River in International Falls, Vermilion in Ely and Hibbing. The regional concept is seen as a method of strengthening small rural campuses now faced with financial cutbacks by the state.

Merger has given Arrowhead community college a total full-time equivalent student population of 2,682, making it the third largest community college in the state.

So this weekend when Northland opens its 1981-82 hockey season the Northmen will not be hosting Mesabi community college in the sports arena, rather they'll be entertaining Mesabi campus of Arrowhead community college. Same thing for the rest of them: Hibbing campus of Arrowhead community college; Vermilion campus of Arrowhead community college, etc. . .

Miscellaneous

+Final 1981 football statistics showed that Detroit Lakes high school quarterback Dan Douglas, who was impressive in a 12-for-23, 182-yard passing performance in a 13-8 Laker victory over the Prowlers, finished the season with 113 completions in 212 attempts for 1,331 yards and seven touchdowns. He became the first Detroit Lakes quarterback to pass for over 1,000 yards in successive seasons (throwing for 1,031 yards in 1980), finishing with a career mark of 195 completions in 416 attempts for 2,369 yards and 14 touchdowns. Holder of the single-season Detroit Lakes passing record is Kevin Shipley, currently an assistant on the Lakers' staff, who was 94-for-184 in 1972 for 1,684 yards and 14 touchdowns. Only other Detroit Lakes quarterback to go over the 1,000-yard mark for a single season was Jeff Hanson, who was 69-for-134 in 1976 for 1,114 yards and 12 touchdowns. Wide receiver Todd Jorgenson, a 6-5 target, caught 38 passes this fall for the Lakers for 630 yards and 6-6 Mike Hutchinson caught 34 for 376 yards. Jorgenson finished with 79 catches for 1,165 yards in his high school career. Only Laker to gain more yards in receptions is Jon Dahl, who caught 57 passes for 1,233 yards during the 1975-76 seasons. Holder of the single-season school pass receiving record is Tom Evans with 46 catches for 875 yards in 1972.

+ Grand Rapids high school hockey coach Jim Nelson says the Indians will be hard-pressed to continue its Section 7 domination this winter, citing Hibbing, Virginia, International Falls and Greenway-Coleraine as top threats. "Hibbing has definite scoring potential in the Pat Micheletti, Gary and Greg Hopper line," he said. "They're probably the best single unit we've seen since the Broten-Broten-Erickson line in Roseau. I wouldn't want to get in a shootout with them. Hibbing is a solid club and one to watch." Grand Rapids has won eight straight Section 7 tournament titles.

+ One-time Northland community college basketball standout Vince Parker of Inkster, Mich. scored 20 points to lead the University of Minnesota-Morris to a 77-75 victory over St. Thomas in the Mustangs' 1981-82 basketball home opener. Parker is a 5-7 senior guard.

Prowlers Beat Spoilers At Final Buzzer 41-40

Eric Bondy scored on a rebound shot with one second remaining Tuesday to give Thief River Falls a dramatic 41-40 high school basketball win over Grafton.

The visiting Prowlers, trailing 40-39, called time-out with 32 seconds remaining to set up their final play.

Mark Gere, their leading scorer with 14 points, was short on his try for the game-winning basket, but Bondy grabbed the rebound and went up in heavy traffic to beat the buzzer.

"It was just a basic basketball play. We were just fortunate it came at the end of the game," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We wanted to take the best shot availbale. Bondy happened to be in good rebounding position."

It was a come-from-behind effort by the Prowlers, who trailed at every quarter break, 10-8, 20-21 and 30-27. The win improved their record to 2-0. They'll be idle until Thursday, December 17, when they host defending North Half Region 8AA champion Moorhead in their 1981-82 home opener.

Kevin Sanders joined Gere in double figures for the Prowlers with 10 points. Graftson standout Lance Anderson, a 6-5 senior, scored a game-high 24 points for the Spoilers, who were making their season debut, but he got only four of those points in the second half.

"That was the key to the game," said Hunt. "Anderson couldn't operate as freely on offense in the second half." Thief River Falls' switch to a triangle-and-one defense — zone coverage except against Anderson — held him to just a single second half field goal.

"He's a very talented basketball player," said Hunt. "He's probably the best individual we'll see at a forward postion this year — at least I hope so."

As was the case in a season-opening 39-30 win at Roseau Friday, the Prowlers played well defensively again last night, but still had their problems on offense, although Hunt was quick to point out "it was a lot better than it was against Roseau."

Thief River Falls was 19-for-42 from the field (45 per cent) but only 3-for-10 from the free throw line (30 per cent). Grafton was 17-for-40 from the field (43 per cent) and 6-for-10 from the line (60 per cent). The Prowlers owned a commanding 26-16 advantage on the boards. "We did an excellent job on the defensive boards," noted Hunt. They also topped the turnover charts 19-13.

BEATING EVERYONE downcourt, Northland community college freshman guard Derek Stokes went in for a fast break lay-up ahead of James Spence of the Grand Forks Air Force Base during the second half of Tuesday's basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Stokes scores 17 points as the Northmen defeated the Eagles 83-77.

Northmen Outlast Eagles With Final Minute Stall

Fast-breaking offense and high-scoring games have been Northland community college basketball trademarks under coach Chet Engelman. The 1981-82 Northmen showed they'll follow that same pattern Tuesday against the Grand Forks Air Force Base, but while the offense was running at full speed most of the night, it was an uncharacteristic stall in the final minute that salted away a hard-earned 83-77 victory over the Eagles.

It was not a typical ragged Air Base team; it was probably one of the best teams the Eagles have brought to Northland since they began playing each other back in the 1968-69 season. They showed their character by not getting rattled when Northland ran off a 15-2 tear early in the second half to open up a 57-46 lead with 14:38 remaining.

At that point a lot of visitors have succumbed to Northland's pressure defense and its perpetual motion offense. But instead and Eagles answered with eight straight points and out-scored Northland 18-6 over the next 4½ minutes to go ahead 64-63 with 9:20 left.

"We had some dead spots," admitted Engelman. "We have a tendency to get pretty with the ball instead of being effective."

It remained close the rest of the way, with the Eagles' Franklin Evans hitting a base line jumper to pull his team within 78-75 as the game entered the final minute.

That's when Northland abandoned its fast break for the stall, moving the ball around sharply as the seconds ticked off. "That seemed like a good idea," said Engelman about the slow-down tactics.

Forced into a must-foul situation, the Eagles sent Northland's Kyle Hams to the free throw line on a two-shot intentional foul with 34 seconds to play. Hams, the lone sophomore on the team and the offensive quarterback, made one attempt for a 79-75 game.

Mark Mitchell followed with a quick base line jumper for the visitors to pull them within 79-77 with 29 seconds showing, but another two-shot intentional foul produced two free throws for Northland's Derek Stokes with only 13 seconds to play in an 81-77 game. Stokes added a fast break lay-up with three seconds on the clock for the 83-77 final.

Matt Fontes, who staked Northland to a 36-33 halftime lead on a three-point play with three seconds left, led all scorers with 25 points. He had 17 and was the only effective Northland scorer in a very rugged first half. The Eagles had a 34-33 lead and the ball entering the final minute, but their stall, unlike Northland's at the finish, ended with a turnover that led to Fontes' 18-foot jumper and free throw.

Mark Simon added 18 points to the Northland attack, Stokes 17 and Duncan Gregory 10. Mitchell, a six-footer from San Antonio, Texas, led the Eagles with 16 points.

"They're a good ball club," confirmed Engelman. "I hate the thought of going over there to play them again (Jan. 9 in Grand Forks).

Northland made 31 of 67 field goal attempts (46 per cent) and 21 of 33 free throws (64 per cent). Air Base out-scored Northland from the field, hitting 38 of 87 shots (44 per cent), but made just five of 15 free throw opportunities (33 per cent).

The Northmen, 2-0, will compete this weekend in the Red River Community college basketball tournament in Winnipeg, a tournament they've won the past three years.

Prowler Relays Set Saturday

After serving as head coach of the Lincoln high school girls swimming team for the past eight years (including the just-completed 1981 season), John Hustad will make his official debut as head coach of the Lincoln boys' team Saturday when the Thief River Falls swimmers open their 1981-82 season by hosting the Prowler relays in the Franklin middle school pool.

"We're young, we're inexperienced and I have no idea what's going to happen," admitted Hustad, who succeeded John Kopari as coach of the boys. "But I do know the kids are enthusiastic and they're working hard. I'm anxious to see what they can do."

Park Rapids, Bemidji, Moorhead and Fosston will join Thief River Falls for Saturday's competition that will get underway at 2 p.m.

The 16-member Thief River Falls squad is headed by co-captains Keith Grochow, a senior, and Rod Helm, a junior. Others on the team include seniors Matt Grabanski and Dean Booth; juniors Chuck Lowell and Curt Hanson; sophomores Dave Ose, Jay Achenbach, Curt Rude, Craig Goodrich, Darren Bentow, Jon Jacobson, Rob Hogan and Jeff Rosetta; freshman Todd Wing; and eighth grader Eric Ose.

Hustad expects the Prowlers to be strong in diving where Rossetta, Wing and Eric Ose, although young, are experienced and improved. He says Grochow and Grabanski have "a lot of potential," along with Dave Ose, one of the team's top all-round swimmers.

"I've got swimmers, but I don't know where I'll place them," he noted.

DISPLAYING HIS passing skills, Northland community college sophomore guard Kyle Hams drove the lane, then shoveled the ball off to a wide-open teammate under the basket as defender Steve Hairston (10) of the Grand Forks Air Force Base got turned around on the second half play in Tuesday's basketball game played at Northland. Franklin Evans (20) and Louis Faison (30) of the Eagles, along with Matt Fontes of Northland watched the play. Hams' ball-handling and quarterbacking led the Northmen to an 83-77 victory over the Eagles, improving their season record to 2-0.

Jeff Dahl Hits 32 As Nordics Top Badger 69-53 In Opener

Jeff Dahl poured in 32 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, and Rick VanCamp, while excelling on defense also found time to score 20 points Tuesday as Marshall County Central opened its 1981-82 high school basketball season with a 69-53 win at Badger.

The highly regarded Nordics, made the pre-season favorite in the North Border Conference, struggled at the start, trailing 14-12 at the end of the first quarter and down 26-25 at halftime. But they got things going in the third quarter when they out-scored the Rockets 26-14 to carry a 51-40 advantage into the final quarter.

"We started out slowly," admitted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, "but we had a real good third quarter.

VanCamp keyed the third quarter turnaround with 14 of his 20 points that period, mostly on fast breaks and steals. "He played a real good defensive game on their point guard," praised Ueland. That made the difference in the game."

Ueland also cited the play of Dahl inside, who helped himself with 12 points at the free throw line, and Dave Kragness, who had seven assists.

Marshall County Central was 27-for-64 from the field (42 per cent) and 15-for-26 at the free throw line (58 per cent), while Badger was 21-for-52 from the field (40 per cent) and 11-for-22 from the line (50 per cent). The Rockets finished with a 33-30 rebound edge.

"We're statisfied," reported Ueland. "We didn't play great, but we're saving our greatness for March."

The Nordics visit Roseau Tuesday.

Red Lake Falls 45
Plummer 36

First-year Plummer coach Jim Baron said the Cardinals' performance was "vastly improved" over a season-opening 78-35 loss to Oklee a week earlier, but it still wasn't enough to produce a win as Red Lake Falls triumphed 45-36 Tuesday.

"They played a good ball game," reported Baron. "They're starting to believe in themselves."

Red Lake Falls took a 5-2 lead in a slow-starting first quarter and went into halftime with a 22-10 edge. Plummer cut the margin to 32-25 in the third quarter.

"In the first half we gave them too many inside shots," mentioned Baron. The Cardinals shut those shots off after intermission, but they had troubles of their own on offense, making just 15 of 44 field goal attempts (34 per cent) and only six of 23 free throws (26 per cent). Red Lake Falls, meanwhile, was 18-for-57 from the field (32 per cent) and 9-for-19 at the line (47 per cent).

"Our shooting percentage and our free throw shooting hurt us," confirmed Baron.

Tim Gagner led the Cardinals with 13 points. Warren Tvedt had 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Plummer will be on the road for the third straight time Tuesday at Fisher.

Cardinals Win First Decision In Wrestling

Erskine - Plummer cooperative high school wrestling team broke into the win column for the first time in three starts Tuesday with a 41-31 dual meet victory over the Crookston junior varsity at Plummer.

"Most of the kids wrestled pretty well," noted coach Gary Brantl of the Cardinals. They'll host Roseau Friday.

Meanwhile, Oklee watched an early lead disappear last night as East Grand Forks won five of the last six matches for a come-from-behind 38-27 vicotry over the Bobcats at Oklee.

Oklee was coming off a surprising championship performance Saturday in the Bagley invitational where the Bobacts finished with 145 points, East Grand Forks 144, Hibbing 142, Deer River 141, Blackduck 139, Roseau 118 and Bagley 105.

"We didn't expect that one bit," admitted Oklee coach Charles Bishop.

Five Oklee wrestlers were champions — Gary Parenteau, 98 pounds; Jim Bergeron, 105; Darrin Tougas, 112; John Cyr, 132; and Rick Dulka, 185. Don Tougas reached the finals at 126. Cyr won the meet's pin trophy for the most and fastest pins.

Oklee will be idle until Friday, December 18, when the Bobcats visit Waubun.

Grygla-Gatzke 34

Middle River jumped out to a 14-4 first quarter lead and went on to a 72-34 season-opening victory over Grygla-Gatzke Tuesday.

The defending North Border Conference champion Skippers had a 39-9 halftime cushion.

"Grygla is a scrappy team, but they couldn't handle us inside and they couldn't handle our press," pointed out Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "At times we looked sharp, but most of the time we didn't play all that well."

Jon Neumann led the Skippers with 26 points, even though he played sparingly in the second half. He also had 12 first half rebounds. Doug Kilen added 13 points and Kevin McKeever hit 10. Mike Brateng led Grygla-Gatzke with 12 points.

Middle River will host Lake of the Woods Friday in the Sikppers' home opener. Grygla-Gatzke, 1-1, will be at Roseau that night.

Northland Opens Hockey Season With Mesabi, BSU

With nearly two months of practice time behind them, members of the Northland community college hockey team will finally be involved in game situations this weekend as the Northmen begin their 1981-82 schedule with a three-game set in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland starts with a two-game Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) series against defending state champion Mesabi Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m., followed by a single game against the Bemidji State University junior varsity Sunday at 7 p.m.

"Physically we're ready for a game," reported Northland coach Tom Goddard. "Hopefully we'll be mentally ready, too. We're very anxious to play a game and find out where we're at."

Northland practice has included four scrimmage sessions, and Goddard says, "We played reasonably well in all four of them."

Both goalies — Thief River Falls freshmen Jeff Mongoven and Greg Harder — will play this weekend, according to Goddard, "but I don't know where and when."

He isn't sure about his defensive pairings, either, with all eight defensemen looking for ice time: Trent Peabody, Paul Storhaug, Dean Dokkin, Brian Ranum, Esko Salemla, Keith Huerd, Scott Wiebolt and Myles Lund, switched to the blueline after playing as a forward with the Northmen last winter.

Forward lines are set, with Dave Lansing centering Gary Usitalo and Darin Olimb; Wade Hoppe between Jim Thompson and Murray Jorde; Todd Gregoire with Roger Olimb and Mike Schmitt; and Pat Boline skating with Tony Loeffler and Jeff Sund. Nate Kiel, just coming off an automobile injury, rounds out the 23-man squad.

"I think we'll be right in there," said Goddard in reference to the MJCAA race. "We'll be in the thick of it, I'm sure."

Much of Goddard's optimism deals with the return of nine regulars from a year ago, mostly in the forward lines. "We're going to rely on their experience," he acknowledged. "Hopefully they'll be smarter the second time around."

Ranum is the only experienced defenseman on hand, but Goddard said, "I feel our defensive play, especially our defensemen, will be improved over last year. We have seven new defensemen, and they all have good size."

MJCAA play began last weekend when University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) swept Mesabi 7-6, 9-2 in Crookston. The Trojans trailed 4-0 in the first game and were behind 6-3 in the third period when Mesabi ran into a rash of penalties and surrendered three goals in 83 seconds. Bart Grafstrom then got the game-winner with just 46 seconds left.

Elsewhere in the MJCAA this week, Rainy River is at Mesabi tonight (Wednesday); Rochester is at Rainy River for a Saturday-Sunday series; and Hibbing visits UMC.

LHS Basketball JV wins 49-34 Over Grafton

Trailing 8-5 at the end of the first quarter, Thief River Falls out-scored Grafton 18-4 in the second period Tuesday enroute to a 49-34 junior varsity high school basketball win.

John Kinsman led the winners with 16 points and Jeff Hamerlinck added 12.

Schroeder junior high, of Grand Forks jumped out to a 30-2 lead before the first quarter was even completed Tuesday en route to a 55-18 victory over the Lincoln high school freshmen.

Ryan Drees led Thief River Falls with 14 points. Valley junior high of Grand Forks will play Thief River Falls Monday at 4 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) teams opened the 1981-82 season by playing eight weekend games.

Pee-Wee B Whites split a pair of games, losing to Hallock 9-2 while beating Red Lake Falls 5-4 as Jason Bronkhorst scored on a third period breakaway to tie the game 4-4 and Tom Koppenhaver got the game-winner at 8:30 on assists from Aaron Wedul and Lynn Skibicki.

Pee-Wee Blues lost their opener to Crookston 6-1, with Mike Nelson scoring the lone Thief River Falls goal.

Pee-Wee A team opened with an 8-1 triumph over Grafton as Kent Hamre collected a three-goal hat trick and Jason Hallamek, Steve Gillespie, Troy Hanestad, Brad Olson and Blair Lund added single goals. Thief River Falls lost a 6-4 game to Crookston Sunday, with Hamre getting three more goals. Shayne Anderson played well in goal, making 28 saves, 13 in the third period.

Bantam A team lost twice, dropping a 7-2 game at Bemidji and a 5-2 contest at Crookston, while the Bantam B team fell to Bemidji 11-2.

Games Sunday will have the Bantam A and B teams at East Grand Forks, while the Pee-Wee A and Pee-Wee B Blues visit Bemidji.

Lichens may be nature's toughest plants, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. Composed of both algae and fungi, they can flourish in temperatures 450 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, and live where the air is twice as hot as boiling water. They are also among the slowest growing plants on earth — it takes some arctic lichens more than a thousand years to grow one inch.

High-Scoring MCC Girls Roll Up 88-40 Victory

Displaying its offensive prowess, the Marshall County Central high school girls basketball team ran up an 88-40 North Border Conference win over Warroad Monday at Newfolden.

The unbeaten Nordics, who have racked up 219 points in three games (73 points-per-game average), had a 38-26 halftime lead, then blitzed the Warriors in the second half.

"It was a close ball game in the first half," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "but we played an excellent second half and pulled away."

Jill Johnson led the winners with a 26-point, 10-rebound performance. Sue Olson scored 18 points and had 14 rebounds, while Brenda Dahl hit 17 points, Debbie Peterson 11 and Julie Gustafson contributed 13 rebounds. Janet Marvin scored 25 points for the Warriors.

"We like to fast break; get the ball downcourt quick; and use the press to get the ball back," explained Mjelde. They certainly accomplished those goals Monday, getting off 105 shots. They made 41 for a 39 per cent shooting night. Warroad, meanwhile, made 13 of 50 shots for a 30 per cent figure. From the free throw line the Nordics were 6-for-15 (40 per cent) and the Warriors were 14-for-22 (64 per cent). Marshall County Central owned a 56-31 rebound advantage, including a remarkable 40-23 edge on their own boards.

Badger will arrive in Newfolden Thursday.

The Cardinals, whose starting line-up features one player in each of five grades — eighth, freshman, sophomore, junior and senior — were led by freshman Jody Pahlen's 23 points and a 10-point, 17-rebound game by sophomore Sheila Sorenson.

Plummer was kept busy putting up 82 shots, making 27 of them (33 per cent). The winners were 7-for-19 at the free throw line (37 per cent. Climax as 12-for-50 from the field (24 per cent) and missed all four free throw attempts.

Now 1-1, Plummer hosts Fisher Thursday and visits Strandquist Monday.

Small, thorny, bull's-horn acacia trees of Central America have their own "maid service" which keeps them clean and shiny, reports Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. Colonies of ants live inside the trees' huge thorns and keep the acacias free from dust and leaf-eating enemies. In exchange for their service, the trees provide their insect "partners" with safe homes and plenty of food.

Research Continues On Valuable Metal Deposits

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

Scruffy old prospector on a mangy donkey is gone. He's ridden off into the sunset, gold pans clattering in his saddlebag. Exit Gabby Hayes. Enter geologists and mining companies.

The two-week "grub stake" of money and supplies is also a thing of the past. Now it can cost $200,000 to drill a single exploratory hole in search of valuable metals. Knowing where to look for gold, silver, copper, tin, molybdenum, tungsten, zinc and nickel has become very important.

"Any geologic pattern that can be found is useful," said Frederick Sawkins, economic geologist at the University of Minnesota Institute of technology. Sawkins's geological research on metal deposits, supported by the national science foundation, is receiving attention from Exxon and other major resource companies.

Some new prospecting methods involve looking for signs of interaction between the plates that make up the Earth's surface. Plates are like enormous puzzle pieces that move continuously, some slowly colliding and some separating.

An arc or chain of volcanoes is evidence of an immense underground collision of plates. Below the plates magma (underground lava) swells through rock fractures moving metal that concentrates as it cools under the volcano.

Underground ore deposits of this type can reach one billion tons, Sawkins said. These single-stage deposits are generally fewer than 100 miles apart throughout a volcanic arc and are 700 to 2,000 yards deep.

Many volcanic systems also generate two-stage deposits that are formed when water leaches metal from rocks, creating veins that are relatively shallow, wide and close together. These deposits begin at 300 to 600 yards below the surface, may extend 2,500 yards horizontally and may be only a few miles apart, Sawkins said.

Searching for metals among volcanoes is a difficult task since not every volcanic arc has formed metals. Also, old, eroded volcanoes — the best prospects for drilling — are often not visible on the surface. Sawkins has found, however, that individual volcanoes tend to be 35 to 70 miles apart within known arcs. Signs of metal deposits can occasionally be seen on the surface as rusty outcroppings, which show that iron-bearing minerals have been weathered.

This volcanic prospecting is now going on in Chile and Peru where enormous metal deposits have been found, and in North and Central Mexico and the western United States, Sawkins said. Mount St. Helens, America's most famous volcano, is still too young to yield metal economically, he said.

Rifting zones, where the Earth's plates have separated, also seem to be associated with large deposits of metal ore, sometimes hundreds of millions of tons, Sawkins said. Geologists are not sure how these metal concentrations were formed, but melting and ground water seem to have been part of the process.

Ancient rifting zones are often hard to find since terrain has moved and been buried. But Sawkins said evidence shows these four types of geological formations should be investigated: ocean rifting zones, where the ocean floor is spreading apart; "hotspots," isolated melting areas on continents; rifting areas near plates that are converging; and rifting zones near mountain belts formed by collision.

'U' Officials Dispute Charge By Teamsters

University of Minnesota officials recently disputed the charge made in a suit filed by Teamsters Union Local 320 that the university is being deliberately slow in paying the raises, benefits and back pay in a pay plan approved by the Legislative committee on employee relations.

Suit was filed recently in Hennepin county district court on behalf of 2,000 Teamsters employed by the university.

University plans to provide increased wages and benefits in the Jan. 15, 1982, paycheck, said Roger Forrester, payroll manager for the university personnel office. Retroactive raises to July 1, 1981, will be provided later. "We haven't finalized when the retroactive pay will be sent out," Forrester said, "but our thinking is that it will be February 15 if we can include it in the regular payroll check and March 15 if the civil service workers prefer separate checks."

Normally, pay contracts are agreed upon before July 1 and there is no need for retroactive pay increases. "This is by far the most difficult year I've ever had to deal with as a payroll manager," Forrester said. "Not only do we have to figure six months of retroactive pay, but the pay plan is very complex. There are special adjustments for certain jobs and different effective dates for some raises. We also have to figure retroactive pay for employees who left the university after July 1. You can't just plug this plan into a computer like an across-the board cost of living raise."

Besides paperwork for the 2,000 Teamsters, Forrester's office is handling the raises and retroactive pay for 10,000 civil service employees who are not unionized and 6,400 students workers.

"We weren't given the go-ahead from the legislature to start work on the pay plan before November 19," Forrester said. "My people are going full bore on this. We've cancelled vacations and we're working overtime."

Teamsters got the same raise as state employees, basically a raise of 51 cents an hour or an 8 per cent raise, which ever is higher.

State Auditor Says Cities' Revenue Grows

State auditor Arne Carlson has announced that revenues for Minnesota cities continued to grow in 1980 at a faster pace than in 1979.

In his annual report on revenues, expenditures, and debt of cities, Carlson noted that revenues increased during 1980 by 15.3 per cent to $1.41 billion. This percentage increase was after factoring in a change in reporting procedures for sewer operations. Percentage increases for 1979, 1978 and 1977 were 9.4 per cent, 12.7 per cent and 13.2 per cent respectively.

State and federal aids to Minnesota cities which make up 40.6 per cent of total city revenues, increased by 17.8 per cent for 1980, as compared to 4.4 per cent for 1979, 18.7 per cent for 1978, and 18.4 per cent for 1977. Federal aids increased $26 million over 1979, or 16.3 per cent, and state aids to cities increased $60 million, or 18.6 per cent.

"Those figures indicate that the cities had not yet felt the stress of fiscal cutbacks in 1980," Carlson said.

Minnesota cities spent $1.46 billion in 1980, according to the auditor's report. This amounted to an increase of 16.8 per cent, when adjusting for an accounting change for sewer expense.

Cities borrowed $360.9 million in total during 1980, increasing outstanding indebtedness by 9.9 per cent over 1979. Total debt of cities in Minnesota amounted to $2.075 billion, or $665.94 per capita.

Undesignated general fund balances for the largest 180 cities in Minnesota totaled $99.9 million, or $37.03 per capita, at the end of 1980. Carlson noted these resources amounted to 7.6 per cent of total annual city expenditures and act as a cushion in times of economic stress.

However, Carlson added, "These balances amount to less than one month in terms of city expenditures, and can serve only for a limited time when spending down balances."

"Minnesota cities," he continued, 'must carefully monitor their revenues, expenditures and borrowing in times of fiscal stress. This office will have a fiscal health program operating for all cities over 2,500 in population by January 1982, whch will help cities spot signs of trouble."

ONE OF THE OLDER buildings in the downtown Thief River Falls area is being demolished this week as the Mervin Prestebak construction company is razing the former Lind Motor Supply building presently owned by Jobs, Incorporated. A boost for the Times photographer in Prestebak's Hydra-Mac loader permitted this vantage point to photograph the demolition effort. Jobs, Incorporated believes the property has more value without the building which has been condemned by the city, according to Bob Dondelinger, president of the organization.

Demolition Of Building Opens 96-Year Past

Demoltion of the former Lind Motor supply building on LaBree avenue in Thief River Falls is now underway with Mervin Prestebak construction company of Thief River Falls doing the work. The building was purchased by Jobs, Incorporated in 1978.

Bob Dondelinger, president of Jobs, Incorporated, said that the building has been condemned by the city and that the Jobs organization believes the property has more value as a vacant lot than it does with the building in place. The two lots on which the building stands has been considered in the plans of the downtown parking committee for several years.

Jobs, Incorporated purchased the property from Mr. and Mrs. Alan Thompson, who had owned it since 1966 and operated the hotel and motor supply business. It was previously owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Carlson who purchased it in 1947.

G. Nohrald Lawson, who sold to the Carlson's purchased the hotel property from the James E. Cosgrove estate in May of 1945 for $14,500. Cosgrove was the first joint owner of both lots, with the exception of Carl Kretzschmar, on whose property that portion of the original townsite of Thief River Falls was platted.

According to Eugene Prestebak, county recorder, Cosgrove purchased Lot 17 from George W. Harris in 1936 after purchasing Lot 18 from Peter Eberhardt in June of 1935.

Lot 17 was sold by Kretzschmar in 1885 to Frank Kratka, who in turn sold it to Truman S. McFall in 1889 for $137.50. James Meehan Jr. purchased the lot in 1900, sold it in 1901 to Gust Bostrom and bought it back in 1905. In 1908 he sold it to George W. Harris, who held title until the sale to Cosgrove in 1936.

Lot 18 was sold by Kretzschmar in 1889 to Viola Sanders, and she sold it in 1893 to Carl Hendricksen, Lewis Ellington, Adolph G. Gallasch and Jerome Wheeler for $376. They sold it in 1901 for $400 to the Northern real estate and mortgage company, which in turn sold it later that year to Ethel M. Staples for $775. Two years later, in March of 1903, Staples sold to Eberhardt for $1,000. He held title until the sale to Cosgrove in 1935.

The building was apparently constructed as a hotel, and is believed at one time to have shared a common hallway with the adjoining hotel.

Regents Note Full Agenda Thurs., Fri.

University of Minnesota board of regents will have a packed agenda when it meets this Thursday and Friday.

Proposed loan agreement between regents and the state to finance the hospital renewal project through the sale of $190 million in state bonds will be up for action at a meeting of the committee of the whole at 10 a.m. Thursday in 238 Morrill Hall. Before voting, the regents will discuss an up-to-date study on the feasibility of financing the project through a bond issue and retiring the debt through patient revenue.

Regents' policy on selective divestment of holdings in companies that do business in South Africa will also be reviewed in a report by finance vice president Fred Bohen. Report describes financial impact of selective divestment on the university over the past few years and recommends that the university stick with the current system.

Three years ago the board approved a plan to avoid investment in companies with holdings in South Africa unless they were signers of the "Sullivan Principles," a detailed code of conduct regarding equal employment and equal treatment practices in the workplace. Discussion of this report will be at the physical plant and investments committee meeting at 3 p.m. Thursday in 238 Morrill hall.

Regents are also expected to approve pay plans for faculty and civil service employees at the committee of the whole meeting at 8:30 a.m. Friday in room 155 of the Earle Brown center on the St. Paul campus. Pay increases for both groups have been held up since July 1 awaiting salary settlements by other state-supported groups of employees.

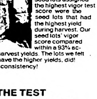
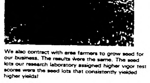
WE'RE NOT PERFECT BUT...
Our Research Lab has 93% Accuracy!



In 1981, our research laboratory predicted, through vigor testing, which seed lots would be the highest yielding during harvest. The seed lots assigned the highest vigor test score were the seed lots that had the highest yield during harvest. Our seed lots' vigor score compared within a 93% accuracy to actual harvest yields. The lots we felt confident would have the higher yields, did! And they did with consistency!
TESTING THE TEST
We maintain field test-plots at various locations throughout northeastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota. By doing so, we can verify the accuracy of the vigor test in the lab; measure the predictability of the lab tests, and prove that our vigor tested seed will be more consistent with higher yields than regular seed.



We also contract with area farmers to grow seed for our business. The results were the same. The seed lots our research laboratory assigned higher vigor test scores were the seed lots that consistently yielded higher yields!
Find out how you can improve your farming profitability with vigor tested seed from Stephen Seedhouse! See your area dealer, or call us today!

Dairy Profits Related To Udder Health

As most dairy farmers know, profits realized in milk sales are directly related to the health and soundness of their cows. In light of today's economy, each farmer must capitalize on his milk profits.

"Udder edema can be one of the most costly problems a dairyman faces," states Dr. Dan West, a clinical veterinarian in Schering Corporation's Animal Health Division. "The congestion and discomfort that accompanies udder edema or caked udders can mean reduced profits, unless the condition is treated quickly."

Naquasone ®, a combination steroid-diuretic drug available in bolus form, is helping dairy farmers restore and maintain healthy udders in their herds. The only combination steroid-diuretic available for udder edema, Naquasone relieves udder inflammation and swelling through steroid action while the diuretic helps alleviate udder congestion and blockage.

Untreated, udder edema can contribute to more serious udder damage. Due to the increased udder weight, suspensory ligaments may be damaged which could lead to a pendulous udder.

"Premature culling is the worst possible result of untreated udder edema or caked udders," notes Dr. West. "Unless a dairyman treats udder disease quickly, he could face a substantial profit loss. Considering today's economic situation, no farmer can afford to take the risk of udder damage caused by edema."

The Public Contracts (Walsh-Healy) Act of 1936 established labor standards on government contracts, including minimum wages, overtime compensation, child and convict labor provisions, and health and safety requirements, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's "Important Events in American Labor History."

The SNOWMAN

Maggie and June worked all morning making their snowman. He got so big that they had to fetch a stool and stand on tiptoe to make his arms and to cinder-button him. The mailman helped put on his head.

When they napped that afternoon, the sun shone hot and bright, and the south wind blew. When they woke, their snowy pal had dwindled and his cinder face cried dirty streaks. Sadly they turned away.

Sometimes life is like that snowman — grand and glittering with all the things we have. Then the hot winds of disaster blow, and their importance vanishes and we are left with emptiness.

What makes life meaningful? If possessions can't make us happy, what can?

Our churches have the answer. Through worship and prayer they teach us to find the joys of spirit.

Senator Says Block Grants Are Efficient

". . .the block proposals would landmark legislation, eliminate essential programs and undermine principles of fiscal accountability and lay the groundwork for confusion, neglect, and new bureaucracy at the state level. . . many believe these proposals are the first steps in a strategy of abondonment of federal involvement in meeting human needs. . ."

"That is a statement from one of the many special interest coalitions so adamantly opposed to President Reagan's block grant program," states Sen. Rudy Boschwitz. "It represents a widespread attitude among these organizations that block grants allow the federal government to shirk its responsibility of caring for the disadvantaged and that the states, which would be implementing these grants, are unable or unwilling to respond to the needs of their citizens. That attitude was, perhaps, justified in the 1960s and early 1970s, but is no longer defensible.

"Such accusations have whipped up hysteria in some quarters. Opponents of these grants have tried convincing the public that block grants will wipe out the social mandates of the past two decades and will disregard millions of low-income or disadvantaged people. That is just not the case," Boschwitz said.

"Two misguided notions about block grants are largely responsible for the confusion. First, to assert that block grants radically alter the nature of social programs for the poor is incorrect. In fact, they provide for an orderly transfer of decision-making authority back to the states and localities with ample safeguards to assure the continuation of programs for the disadvantaged.

"Secondly, there have been significant changes in the state and local governments over the past two decades that have substantially improved their ability to respond to the needs of their citizens. The federal government is no longer the only branch of government with the staff, resources and commitment to care for the disadvantaged," the senator added.

"A close examination of the block grants as they have emerged should assuage the fears of those who have objected so strenuously to the move to replace the narrow categorical grants with the border block grants. In fact; many proponents of the new federalism argue that the present block grant programs are little more than a minor consolidation of categorical programs.

"The block grants that were adopted in the human services area are rather narrow grants laden with 'maintenance of effort' requirements, set-asides for specific levels of funding, numerous exclusions from the grants of the big-budget programs, etc. so unless you believe that state and local government are totally inept, and intentionally neglectful of the poor, it would be difficult to argue that these grants do not contain adequate safeguards for the disadvantaged," Sen. Boschwitz added.

"In fact, those organizations which are truly devoted to helping the needy should look favorably upon the new system. Block grants offer increased flexibility and responsiveness to local needs over categorical programs.

"Overall, the nature of state government has changed significantly since the early 1960s. States and municipal governments have shown a genuine commitment and sensitivity to the needs of the disadvantaged.

"In my view, the time has come when block grants — with safeguards against possible abuses — ought to be given a chance. I am not a proponent of repealing all landmark social legislation of the 1960s and 1970s, or of eliminating the essential services for our needy populations. I do, however, feel it is time to begin returning the reins of power back to state and local governments. If we only give the block grant proposals the chance they deserve, they will have the potential of improving rather than hindering the delivery of federal funds to those in our society who truly need it," Sen Boschwitz concluded.

Practical Tips To Help You

A versatile cleaning product is helping homemakers stretch their home care budgets.

If cleaning dirty windows, walls and appliances big and small give you a pain in the pocketbook, there could be a better way.

In spite of inflation, you may be able to buck the trend of the shrinking buck and stretch your home care cleaning budget.

Packaged in convenient trigger spray or aerosol dispensers, glass cleaners that make such easy work of windows are proving effective for most other hard surfaces around the home. More and more homemakers are taking advantage of this versatility and eliminating the extra housekeeping costs of buying a variety of special purpose cleaning products.

Researchers for the Drackett Co., makers of Windex, say studies of consumer use patterns show that nearly 60 percent of the product's users shine far more than windows with the light blue chemical cleaner. Everything from painted walls, refrigerators, ranges and small appliances to car interiors.

The convenient spray dispensers make cleanup fast and economy-sized refills—up to two liters—mean plenty on hand for a variety of jobs.

The combination of detergents and solvents blended for no-streak, no-rinse window cleaning, say the scientists, makes the product ideal as a general purpose cleaner around the house.

A new six-page booklet from Drackett provides a guide to the use of Windex on many surfaces. For a free copy, write: The Drackett Co., Box PR2, Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio 45232.

Not An "Other Guy" Issue

Siting of a hazardous waste disposal facility in this area is a potential which has attracted a great deal of area attention. Attendance at the meetings of the state waste management board Thursday and Friday attested to the interest — and the fears and concerns — of area people.

Regarding opposition to location of the waste disposal site in this area, it is more than a "dump it on the other guy" situation. More and more it appears that the waste management board and staff are ignoring the selection criteria which the board imposed upon itself.

The criteria would seem to make a good deal of sense. Major consideration should be given to such things as surface water and flood potential, distance from the major generators of hazardous waste, potential damage to the environment including wetlands and wildlife, roadway and transportation problems, protection of farmland and other factors. It would seem that such criteria should have resulted in rejection of candidate sites in this area out of hand.

Such, however, is not the case. The sites continue under study and the testimony of concerned citizens — informed, knowledgeable concerned citizens — is politely listened to, duly accepted and carefully recorded and filed away.

People appearing at the board meetings Thursday and Friday received little satisfaction other than having listeners to hear their testimony. They reinforced their opinions that there is yet much unknown about the hazards and disposal methods of the waste products in question, and confirmed fears that the unknowns and the uncertainties could be very harmful at some future point.

Residents of this area are as concerned as anyone that the state find the most suitable means for hazardous waste disposal in the most suitable location. They are concerned that projections and calculations — educated terms for ifs and maybes — may well be inaccurate. And they are most concerned that selection criteria so carefully developed may be set aside or circumvented in the interest of expediency.

They are mindful of a waste management board member's comment that the board has set up rules, one of which is that it will develop its own information and the other that it will not take the path of least resistance.

And they are aware that in the very next action — the test drilling of candidate sites — the board staff took the path of least resistance by electing not to follow permit procedure on an Agassiz wildlife refuge site. Decision was made instead to drill outside of the proposed site and consider the data from those drillings to be "close enough" to what might have been found on the actual site itself.

Should local people worry that the waste management staff develops its own information in that fashion, a procedure which could be considered comparable to losing a quarter on a busy sidewalk and looking for it around the corner where there are fewer people? Should they worry that the path of least resistance was taken when circumstances dictated expediency: We would say there is justification for worry.

Yes, there is more to the question than letting the "other guy" worry about it. There is the question of how well the board and its staff will adhere to the criteria established for site consideration. So far, it would seem, there hasn't been much attention paid to the criteria at all.

Learning The Language

Publisher Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer-Journal came up with the following definitions to assist with understanding what is taking place during this special session of the Minnesota legislature:

Indexing modification — Increasing income taxes without having to vote on it.

Freeze indexing — see indexing modification.

Transfer payment — increasing your income taxes to hold your property taxes at the same level.

Revenue shortfall — you expected to get $150 on payday and you only got $100.

Homestead credit — Government takes your money in income taxes and gives it back on property taxes, minus the handling charge.

Circuit breaker — The government takes your money and gives it back in October, minus the handling charge.

They Deserve Our Thanks

It was appropriate that the city of Thief River Falls used the occasion of local government day to pay recognition to members of the boards and commissions which serve various areas of city activity. This was the second annual event and appears headed for repeat status.

By and large those board and commission members give of their time on a willing and generous basis without receiving anything in return except for some self-satisfaction. They recognize that tasks must be performed and they borrow time from their families and businesses to accomplish those necessary tasks.

All deserve the thanks of the community for their efforts in behalf of the community good. We are all fortunate that public-spirited individuals can continue to be found to answer our needs.

Bruised Shins

It was with a wry smile that we read where the Secretary of the Interior James Watt suggested to some of his top employees that they stop meeting with the "hired guns" of environmental groups. After a person gets his shins kicked enough times, he stays away from little boys with hardsoled shoes.

As might be expected, the "hired guns" Watt referred to were quick to jump on the suggestion with both hard-soled feet. "It is like a return to the Nixon enemies list," stated William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness society. "He is saying government officials cannot meet with legitimate public citizen groups."

Not at all, Mr. Turnage, and you know it as well as anyone. But your statement gives insight into Watt's apparent sensitivity. He is tired of having his statements misinterpreted and his views examined with the narrow vision of many so-called environmental groups.

An Associated Press story mistakenly referred to the conservation movement. Most environmental activist groups are not concerned with conservation but with preservation, and often preservation at all costs. Wise use of resources has no place in their programs and their motivation is most often emotion rather than objectivity.

Leaders in the evnironmental groups promote their own following and often become the paid executives of the tax exempt organizations. It is those single issue, special interest types that Secretary Watt has had banging away at his shins since well before his nomination was confirmed. We can't blame him much for not wanting to visit at their houses any more, and for advising his associates how they might avoid some of the pain as well.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Dear Editor: Should a father of 50 get married again?

Dear Reader: Probably not; that's enough children for any man.

"Hello! Is this the welfare department?"

"Yes it is; what can we do for you?"

"I need a crib for my baby."

"What does the baby sleep in now?"

"The box my new color TV came in."

After crashing into a telephone pole, being thrown from his car and knocked unconscious, the inebriated driver came to clutching a handful of wires. "Thank goodness!" he cried in relief. "It's a harp!"

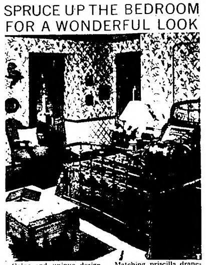
SPRUCE UP THE BEDROOM FOR A WONDERFUL LOOK



Color and unique design concepts are the keys that turn this bedroom into a winning combination of contemporary and traditional style trends.

The focal point is the beautifully crafted, romantic bedspread in rich blue highlighted with white satin and floral printed ribbons framing the bedspread and shams and accenting the pillows.

Matching priscilla draperies and tie-backs edged with floral trimming complete the decorator look by Dakotah, Inc. The pattern is called "Belinda."

Color accents are echoed in the dual patterned wallpaper and chest cover, and there are blue touches in the wall decor as well.

It's one way to give your bedroom a completely new look.

RDC To Study Movement Of Commodities

Northwest regional development commission has received a grant from the Minnesota department of transportation to conduct an agricultural commodity movement study.

According to the commission office, the study will document quantity of agricultural commodities produced within the region on a township basis and provide an overview of the present system by which agricultural commodities are transported to markets.

"An understanding of the crop production, changes taking place in crop production, modal freight rate differences and changing market destinations is necessary to analyze the routes and modes by which these agricultural commodities will be transported to various markets," the RDC said.

"As governmental units are faced with reduced fiscal resources and increasing highway maintenance costs, this information will be useful for determining which routes should receive priority maintenance based on their importance in providing an efficient transportation network for the movement of agricultural commodities.

"Impact which the large volume of agricultural commodities shipped from Region I has on the transportation network needs to be recognized," the RDC report continued. "It is imperative that planning for future transportation system development take these commodity movements more fully into account."

Approximately 96 per cent of the 1979 non-farm shipments of agricultural commodities by elevators in the region were destined for markets outside the region, the report notes.

Care Report On Terminally Ill Available

Report on the care of terminally ill nursing home residents in Minnesota has been published by the Minnesota Coalition for Terminal Care, Inc., an association of persons interested in improving care of the dying.

Result of a seven-month study by the long-term care committee of the coalition, the report was prepared by Peter Thoreen.

"Death, Dying and Terminal Care: Issues Faced by the Long-Term Care Facility" summarizes mortality statistics for nursing homes in Minnesota and nation-wide. The statistics show that while only five to seven per cent of people over 65 live on long-term care institutions, 25 per cent of all deaths of people over 65 occur in nursing homes. That percentage has doubled since 1960.

The coalition study includes results of a 1981 survey of 116 licensed nursing homes in Minnesota. The survey documents many problems that nursing homes have in caring for terminally ill patients: Not enough nursing personnel, poorly trained personnel and a sense of uneasiness among staff members in dealing with impending death of residents.

Respondents to the survey revealed that more than 60 per cent of the deaths in their facilities were preceded by a period of time in which the patients were known to be terminally ill. However, nursing home staff members receive little training in care of the dying or dealing with bereaved family members.

The report includes a number of recommendations, including incorporating more hospice-care principles into nursing home procedures and working more closely with other providers of services for the terminally ill in the community.

The report also contains a list of Minnesota hospice programs, resources for inservice training of personnel and a bibliography of hospice literature. It is available for $8.50 (postage and handling included) from Long-Term Care Report, Minnesota Coalition for Terminal Care, 1101 University Ave. S.E., Minneapolis, Minnesota 55414.

Guidelines For Vet Health Care Act Announced

Veterans administration recently announced proposed guidelines for carrying out provisions of the "Veterans' health care, training, and small business loan act of 1981" which was signed into law November 3.

The Act, Pulic Law 97-72, authorized the Veterans administration to provide certain health care services to any veteran of the Veitnam-era (August 5, 1964-May 7, 1975) who, while serving in Vietnam, may have been exposed to dioxin or was exposed to a toxic substance in a herbicide or defoliant used for military purposes.

Guidelines which VA will furnish to its medical facilities, on an interim basis, will be published in the "Federal Register" and public comment will be invited.

Helath care services may not be provided under this law, the guidelines point out, for the care of conditions which are found to have resulted from a casue other than the specified exposures.

Health care services authorized under this provision of the law are limited to hospital and nursing home care in VA facilities, and outpatient care in VA facilities on a pre- or post-hospitalization basis or to obviate a need for hospitalization. These services will be provided without regard to the veteran's age, service-connected status or the inability of the veteran to defray the expenses of such care. Veterans furnished outpatient care under this authority will be accorded priority ahead of nonservice-connected veterans and equal to former POWs receiving care for nonservice-connected conditions.

Congress made it clear that this law provides for health care only. A determination that a veteran is eligible for such care does not constitute a basis for service connection or in any way affect determinations regarding service connection.

VA guidelines provide also that a complete medical history, physical examination and appropriate diagnostic studies will be developed for each veteran who served in the Republic of Vietnam and who requests VA medical care. For those who have been examined within the prior six months, only those procedures which are medically indicated by the current circumstances will be repeated. Where the findings reveal a condition requiring treatment, the responsible staff physician shall make a determination as to whether the condition resulted from a cause other than the specified exposure. In making this determination, the physician will consider that the following types of conditions are not ordinarily considered to be due to such exposure:

(A.) Congenital or developmental condition, e.g., spina bifida, scoliosis;

(B.) Conditions which are known to have pre-existed military service;

(C.) Conditions resulting from trauma, e.g., deformity or limitation of motion of an extremity;

(D.) Conditions having a well recognized clinical course, e.g., tuberculosis, gout;

(E.) Common conditions having a well recognized clinical course, e.g., inguinal hernia, acute appendicitis.

On occasion, the guidelines continue, the responsible staff physician may find that a veteran requires care for one or more of the conditions listed (above), but that the case presents complicating circumstances that make the provision of care under this authority appropriate. In such instances, the physician should seek guidance from the chief of staff regarding authorization for treatment. If treatment is so authorized, reasons will be clearly documented in the medical record. Veterans who are not provided needed medical care under this circular may be furnished care if they are eligible under any other statutory authority.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS AROUND THE WORLD

As you happily and excitedly unwrap your festively beribboned gifts on Christmas morning, are you aware that millions of people throughout the world are sharing in this delightful tradition? No matter where you go during the holiday season, gift-giving is one of the most popular customs.

In Mexico, a large ceramic pinata is stuffed with presents and hung from the ceiling. Blindfolded children and adults strike at it with long poles. When it finally breaks, everyone has a gift.

The poet Dylan Thomas immortalized some of the gifts exchanged in his native land in his "A Child's Christmas in Wales," in which he tells of receiving "useful" presents like mufflers and gloves and a crocheted nose bag, and "useless" presents like "fudges and toffees."

Americans like to give gifts that will remain treasured and useful throughout the year to come. Such gifts often include sets of new hand tools, such as those from Cooper Tools, and they make handy stocking-stuffers. One might be a set of the same tool in different sizes, such as Crescent adjustable wrenches or screwdrivers of bright chrome, or their pocket-size set of an adjustable wrench, pair of pliers and a screwdriver in a Christmas-red vinyl pouch. An ideal under-the-tree gift for the hobby and crafts artist is a Weller Mini-Shop for carving, sanding, drilling and more.

Yet another country where Christmas gifts are often beautiful as well as useful in Sweden. In that nation, families with daughters choose the prettiest to serve as the "Queen Lucia" of the household for one day. Her "gift" is to wait on everyone else for the day!

A Renewed Look at Property Tax Relief

Minnesota is not immune from national economic downturns; and, when our nation's economy is underperforming, it is time to review where state revenues are being spent.

This past spring we increased income and sales taxes to cover shortfalls in expected revenue. Now, once again faced with a sagging economy and resultant shortfalls, we must look at reductions in the aids and credits which have made increasing demands on our revenue.

Therefore, in making my budget recommendations to solve our current budget shortfall, I recommended an 11.8 per cent across-the-board reduction in state spending. This included a reduction in aids and credits.

Over the years, we have poured ever-increasing amounts into aids and credits and property tax relief. For example, homestead credit amounts almost doubled from $243 million in 1980 to $469 million in 1982. That's the amount of state tax dollars it takes to feed a system in which the state pays 58 cents of each new dollare levied on homestead property, up to a maximum of $650.

The "circuit breaker" or Property Tax Refund must also be reviewed. Started as a refund for senior citizens and the disabled, the program now provides refunds for all property tax payers earning up to $36,000 per year.

In addressing these two problems, I have recommended to the Legislature that the state's portion of a person's property tax bill be reduced from a maximum of 58 per cent or $650 to a maximum of 45 per cent or $500. I have also recommended that property tax refunds be limited to persons with annual incomes below $20,000.

It is important to note that even after the proposed cuts in aids and credits are enacted, property taxes on homes and farms in Minnesota would still remain among the lowest in the nation.

Indeed, the average property tax of Minnesota homeowners, expressed in constant 1977 dollars and taking into account my proposed changes, will be lower in 1982 than in 1975 (see charts).

Our programs reflect the economic reality of the day. Thus, when we are faced with budget shortfalls our more generous programs, established when we could afford to be generous, must reflect the economic changes.

Because the state is committed to returning three out of every four dollars collected in revenue to support local governments, schools, and property tax relief, three-fourths of the state's expenditures are locked into formulas that are difficult to change. This limits our ability to reflect economic changes and is, therefore, a matter we must reconsider.

The reduction in aids I have recommended will result in a small percentage decrease in the total budgets of local governments and school districts. This is because aids are only a portion of these units total budget. Cities receive about 30 per cent of their budgets in state funding; counties, 40 per cent; and schools, 60 per cent. My proposal represents a reduction of 11.8 per cent of these figures; that is about 3.5 to 8 per cent of their total budget for the biennium.

Further, I have proposed that these entities be allowed to borrow up to half the reduction of their aids through a State Aids Stabilization Authority. However, should local governments and school districts choose to raise property taxes instead of reducing their own budgets, that would be strictly a local decision.

The process of reducing state aids and credits will undoubtably create a stir among proponents of expansion of the programs. Our national and state economic health is such that we cannot continue with "business and usual." Rather, a prudent review of state policies must be accomplished in order to keep Minnesota competitive with surrounding states in attracting and retaining jobs and a strong economy.

What's In It For You???

More money, lower prices, more available energy and less environmental pollution. All those good things can come in glass packages — used glass packages.

America's glass packaging industry wants to recycle glass—and it's willing to pay for it. Some people are earning up to a penny a pound turning in old glass at recycling centers.

As for the environment, for every pound of glass recycled, one less pound of glass enters the waste stream as litter or solid waste.

Furthermore, since recycled glass melts faster than virgin raw materials, its use allows manufacturers to conserve energy and reduce emissions.

For years consumer research has consistently demonstrated that glass is the preferred packaging material for taste protection and product quality.

To help you learn more about how glass recycling can benefit you, the Glass Packaging Institute has published an informative booklet, which formally introduces the Institute's "Glass Recycles" logo. The 24-page booklet includes a compilation of all U.S. glass container manufacturing plants which engage in recycling. The listing includes the location and telephone number of each plant.

GLASS RECYCLES

All Americans might cull some benefits from recycled glass.

The booklet also provides recommended guidelines for establishing successful community glass container reclamation programs.

For a free copy of the booklet, write to the Glass Packaging Institute, Communications Department, 2000 L St., N. W., Suite 815, Washington, D. C. 20036.

SOLVING PROBLEMS BEFORE THEY HAPPEN.
Lutheran Brotherhood announces MagniMed... a major medical program with 100% coverage for outpatient surgery and generic drugs.

A major need. What would happen if you or a member of your family suffered a major illness or injury requiring an extended hospital stay, long term treatment, major surgery or a combination of all three? Are you really covered against such catastrophic costs by your current insurance?

Improving on a good thing. Lutheran Brotherhood has recently introduced an extraordinary new major medical plan called MagniMed. It's designed to provide quality coverage at an affordable cost. Broad coverage, too. Unlike most other plans, for example, MagniMed pays a full 100% of your outpatient surgery and generic drug costs after the deductible has been satisfied.

Flexible, million dollar coverage! Among MagniMed's many other features are these:
- There are a number of deductible options so that you can tailor your coverage to what you can afford.
- There's no limit to the number of days or scheduled amount of benefits provided under the plan for intensive care and room and board is provided based upon average local semi private room rates.
- Coverage is provided either while confined in a hospital or while being treated as an outpatient.
- Each covered family member is eligible for up to $1,000,000 of lifetime benefits.

Taking the lead. Once again Lutheran Brotherhood has spared no effort to provide Lutherans with the very best in insurance benefits, at a very competitive cost. Once again we're ready and able to help you solve problems before they happen.

Find out now. Don't wait another minute to protect yourself from the kind of calamity that could happen any minute. And if you already have major medical coverage, it could still be very worthwhile to compare it with what MagniMed offers. Call your nearby Lutheran Brotherhood representative today and find out all about MagniMed.

Hypothermia Is Real Danger To State's Elderly

Old, alone and on a low income — those three risk factors form the deadly equation for the majority of accidental hypothermia cases each winter.

Hypothermia is the medical term for what happens to your body when its internal temperature drops up to 40 degrees, a drop of only 10 degrees in your "core" temperature can lead to death.

In states like Minnesota, where high heating costs are a fact of life, the temptation to turn down the thermostat to save money is strong. Yet even mildly cool indoor temperatures can set the stage for accidental hypothermia in elderly persons, according to Dr. Philip Segal, St. Paul. The risk is particularly high for persons overy 75 years old, for whom the risk of dying from exposure to the cold is at least five times greater than for younger persons.

Why are the elderly particularly vulnerable to hypothermia? "Older persons just don't respond to cold in the same ways that younger people do," Dr. Segal said. "When college-age persons get cold, they shiver. But older persons ofen don't shiver appropriately and don't perceive cold normally. That's because their bodies' warning systems are defective."

Persons who are physically disabled, mentally impaired or both may not be able to leave a too-cold environment, particularly if they live alone. Diseases of the veins or arteries and treatment with certain drugs make some older persons more susceptible to hypothermia. Persons who have had a previous bout with accidental hypothermia may well have a recurrence.

If you suspect hypothermia in an older person (on the basis of symptoms or if a fever thermometer fails to rise above 94 degrees), call a doctor immediately. (If you don't have a special low-reading thermometer, be sure to shake the mercury all the way down.) Warning signals may be limited to sluggish speech and movements. Victims may feel drowsy and experience dizziness when they are moved.

"Remember that an old person can be in bed, covered with blankets and still become hypothermic," Segal warned.

Blankets and warm drinks (not alcohol) are the best first-aid remedies until medical help arrives. Don't try to warm the limbs because this could further reduce core temperature.

"If you find someone who appears to have no vital signs, make as little commotion as possible and seek immediate medical help," Dr. Segal said. "Hypothermia makes the heart irritable and commotion could set off cardiac dysrhythmia."

To help prevent hypothermia among the elderly:

+ Keep indoor temperatures above 65 degrees (in the coldest part of the house) for persons between 65 and 75 years old. If you're over 75, your thermostat should read at least 70 degrees.

+ Wear adequate clothing, including long underwear, an outside sweater, a stocking capandthicksocks. Remember you lose 40 per cent of your body heat through your head.

+ Don't drink alcohol or smoke. Smoking lowers body temperature and the warm glow alcohol produces in your stomach is really driving out the warmth.

+ Drink plenty of warm fluids and eat a diet high in fats and carbohydrates.

+ If you take medicine to treat anxiety, depression, nervousness or nausea, check with your doctor to determine if the drug is a phenothiazine. (The most commonly used names are Thorazine and Mellaril.) These drugs can impair your body's response to cold.

+ Have plenty of blankets on your bed. Electric blankets are great but keep them set on "Low" and follow usage instructions.

+ If you live alone, arrange to be in daily contact with a friend or relative during the winter months.

Gold coins have been an enduring medium of exchange for over 3,000 years since the Daric coins were minted in quantity Circa 521 A.D. And here's one of the world's newest gold bullion coins.

It's the Mexican one-ounce, the even-weight gold bullion coin, recently introduced to the United States by the Western Hemisphere's oldest mint—Mexico's Casa de Moneda—renowned for over four centuries for its superb quality and craftsmanship.

This one-ounce coin is one of three new gold bullion issues that the mint has launched here this fall. The new coins are also available in half-ounce and quarter-ounce sizes.

These new coins join the more than 75 million contemporary Mexican gold bullion coins in worldwide circulation.

The beautifully sculpted coins are the product of a land which, from the days of the Aztec civilization, has prized gold highly. Now our coinage history is enriched with new golden ties to our neighbors just beyond our borders. Gold bullion coins can make unique and enduring gifts and many consider them good investments.

Study Genetic Markers In Allergy Work

A University of Minnesota study of genetic markers may someday enable physicians to predict who will suffer from allergic disease and who will not.

"And this information," says Dr. Malcolm Blumenthal, an immunologist at the medical school, "should help us in managing and treating people who develop allergic problems."

Blumenthal heads a National Institutes of Health-supported study of hereditary influence in allergies. He is studying family groups to understand how allergies may be passed on from parent to child. At the same time, the researcher is questioning "why some individuals, born of the same parents, living in the same environment, develop allergic disease and others do not."

Since genetics-allergy research began 15 years ago, investigators have identified two genetic markers on human chromosomes which apparently determine if a person develops allergic problems. Blumenthal suspects there are probably more.

"We need further evaluation of these genetic controls," he said. "We also plan to look for other markers to help us determine who is going to develop an allergy and who is not."

Existing data suggest that environmental elements trigger an allergic reaction, but Blumenthal says little is shown about how environmental and hereditary factors interact to cause allergy problems.

"This study is fairly exciting in several ways," Blumenthal said. "First, we will be able to better understand the mechanism by which an allergy develops. As a result, we will be able to predict which groups of individuals are more susceptible to developing certain types of allergies. Therefore, we will possibly be able to offer genetic counseling to parents when there is the likelihood of their children getting allergies."

Physicians would then be able to develop preventive treatment programs for children when they are young, thus avoiding later complications of allergic reactions which include asthma and rheumatic heart disease, Blumenthal said.

Blumenthal's study may yield more immediate results which could improve the treatment of individuals suffering from allergic disease. Researchers are learning to identify specific categories of allergic disease.

"By subdividing individuals into specific groups, we will be better able to determine which type of therapy is more effective in treating one type of asthma, for instance, compared to another type. Overall, it will give us a more rational approach to the management of allergies," Blumenthal said.

Blumenthal's latest study involves ragweed allergies, one of the most common allergic diseases in the Midwest. An estimated eight to 15 per cent of persons in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois are ragweed-sensitive.

A total of 200 families from the Minneapolis-St. Paul area are needed to participate in the investigation. Blumenthal is looking for families with a minimum of four members in which at least one individual is ragweed-sensitive sometime between August 15 and the middle of September. A second group to serve as controls for comparison is also being sought. "Ideally, these people (controls) would be selected just because they are interested in the study," Blumenthal said. "They should be relatively healthy. Whether they are allergic or not doesn't make any difference."

Volunteers are required to spend two or three hours in the Clinical Research Center at University of Minnesota hospitals, completing a medical history questionnaire and undergoing simple blood and skin tests. Volunteers will be paid for their assistance. For information and an appointment, call 373-4328.

Former prisoners of war who were incarcerated for as short a period as 30 days may now have certain disabilities accepted as service connected without having to furnish medical proof of the fact, according to the Veterans Administration.

UND Foundation Gets Gift From Late K. Hyslop

University of North Dakota foundation is the beneficiary of a $2 million testamentary gift from the late W. Kenneth Hyslop, according to Earl Strinden, UND foundation executive vice president.

Hyslop, a 1906 UND graduate, died May 30 in Racine, WI. He was a long-time benefactor of the University, and in his later years made several major gifts to the UND foundation, including a sizable contribution of stock and land holdings in Canada, and, in January of 1980, 4,196 acres of Red River Vally farmland with an appraised value of $5.2 million.

Including the testamentary gift, Hyslop's contributions to the University of North Dakota foundation total approximately $8 million.

Strinden noted that up to $700,000 of the bequest has been committed by the foundation board for an entrance addition for the UND winter sports building.

Strinden said he and Clair Moore, Hyslop's farm manager, had met with Hyslop about a year and a half before Hyslop's death. At that time, according to Strinden, Hyslop appointed Moore, his attorney Roy Stewart of Racine, and Strinden to select a project to be supported by his testamentary gift. Sports center project was recommended to the foundation board of directors by the committee.

Strinden said the committee made this choice because of Hyslop's lifelong interest in athletics and his love for the University and his home community of Grand Forks. Strinden said the committee felt this project will directly benefit both the University and the Grand Forks community.

Balance of the gift will be added to the Hyslop Endowment. Proceeds from the Hyslop Endowment, which now total over $6 million, will be allocated by the University of North Dakota foundation board of directors for priority projects at the University of North Dakota.

Hyslop's earlier gift of land was one of the largest gifts to higher education in 1980. These assets were placed in an endowment, with only the income to be expended.

Hyslop died at 96. He had started with a UND degree and a $3.50-a-day job in a New Mexico copper mill in 1907, and retired 43 years later in 1950 as chariman of the board of Massey-Harris Co. (now Massey-Ferguson), manufacturer of farm equipment.

During his more than 30 years of retirement, Hyslop kept active managing his investments, including his extensive holdings of farm land acquired over the years in Canada and the Red River Valley. He returned annually to the Valley to witness the harvest, and to stay in touch with his alma mater.

This past summer, after learning of Hyslop's death, the state board of higher education renamed the UND fieldhouse in his honor. Henceforth the building — and its new addition — will be known as the Hyslop sports center. Hyslop was a star baseball player during his UND days, and continued to play low handicap golf until he was 90.

"Ken Hyslop was a modest man who always shunned publicity for his many contributions to the University of North Dakota," noted UND president Thomas J. Clifford. "He appreciated the value his pioneer parents placed in higher education, and believed in giving young people every opportunity to develope themselves to the best of their ability. Generosity Ken displayed at the end of his long, productive life will have a positive effect upon higher education in his native state for generations to come."

Interest Revived In Vanishing Victorian Era

by Mary Combs
Smithsonian News Service

For most of the 20th century, historians, critics and designers treated the architecture and decorative arts of the Victorian era in America as if a kind of aesthetic insanity had afflicted the nation between 1840 and 1900. When the topic arose, it was hastily recovered, the styles almost universally dismissed as an illogical and incomprehensible jumble.

Indeed, "Victorian" and "in bad taste" became synonymous. Nineteenth century architecture was relegated to the covers of Gothic novels. Victorian furnishings, even bona fide antiques, were banished to second-hand furniture stores.

This anti-Victorian attitude was best summed up in the Metropolitan Museum of Art's 'Guide to the Collections' of 1931, which warned unwary visitors to its tiny 19th-century decorative arts gallery: "Some of the exhibits . . . are shown not because they have artistic merit, but because they illustrate certain phases . . . that could not be omitted."

Today, the United States is experiencing a major revival of interest in Victoriana. Museums nationwide take new pride in their collections, research on the era thrives and reproductions of Victorian furniture and accessories are being produced by top manufacturers. Prices of fine pieces, no longer relegated to junk sales, have soared in the past few years, and one prestigious auction house now has a separate establishment for 19th-century furniture and objets d'art. Membership in preservation organizations and in the Victorian Society in America continues to grow; buildings that would have been torn down without a second thought 20 years ago are being carefully restored.

Rejection of all things Victorian in favor of earlier American styles, and the current renaissance, can be traced in part to specific influential events, according to historian James Goode, curator of the Smithsonian Institution's first building, the "Castle" on the National Mall in Washington, D.C. Goode has been restoring that 1855 Norman Revival landmark and enriching its furniture collection, even finding some original Castle furniture sold at auction for a few dollars in the 1940s.

The glorification of the 18th century at the expense of the Victorians — "the Chippendale syndrome," as Goode calls it, dates from the 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia where an exhibit on early America was a huge success. Eventually, the Colonial and Federal periods became the only "excellent" periods in American design of the past. The restoration of Colonial Williamsburg in the 1920s sanctified this trend.

The antipathy toward Victorian style sometimes took extreme form. Washington, D.C., for example, was a swamp during the Colonial era; nearly 70 per cent of the residential city was built at the height of the Victorian period. Yet today many areas in the capital city present a spurious Colonial/Federal appearance. This goes back, Goode says, to the 1930s, when the now-elite Georgetown area was ruthlessly reworked — doors and windows of Victorian houses were altered and ornamentation torn off — to conform to the demands of 18th-century fever.

Of course, every city across the nation saw the destruction of old buildings to make way for new. Ironically, some of the finest examples of Victorian neighborhoods survived simply because they had become neglected slums. Then, in the late '70s, came the rehabilitation boom; tax breaks, soaring re-sale values and the high cost of new construction made restoration lucrative.

Yet, more than economic benefit spurs the Victorian revival. Another factor is the complex way in which taste changes and fluctuates within our culture. "Modern" designs and styles, once described as sleek, streamlined, pure, functional, are seen today by some critics and consumers as boring, featureless, mechanical — or simply old hat. The appeal or ornamentation, an appreciation of craftsmanship and quality of material, a sentimental attachment, a sense of continuity with the past — these are the elements people mention when asked why they have chosen a Victorian home or office.

Goode also points to two landmark exhibitions — one in 1960 at the Brooklyn Museum and another 10 years later at New York's Metropolitan — which forced collectors, dealers and design historians to take a second look at their image of Victoriana. Continued study over the past 20 years has increased the store of knowledge in such areas as construction techniques, the identity and history of specific cabinetmakers, the correct attribution of pieces. Exploration on this frontier, Goode says, has only just begun.

Once the Victorian era in America became fit for study, it became apparent that the jumble was understandable after all but on its own terms. In every era, Americans' aesthetic choices have been shaped by their view of themselves and of the world in which they lived. Eighteenth-century leaders saw themselves as the inheritors of the austere, rational, classical virtues of ancient Greece and Rome. The "Victorian" Americans, children of the industrial revolution, increasingly envisioned themselves as a totally new society, a democratic nation of individualists in a land of opportunity where hard work was rewarded and the measure of a man was not in his birth but in his successful enterprise.

The 19th-century American home, inside and out, was intended to express the individuality of the owner, to display the family's pride in its accomplishments and its aspirations for the future. Democratic price, however, did not conflict with a desire to imitate the taste of contemporary European aristocracy; it was hardly surprising that successful first-generation immigrants would wish to recreate the symbols of wealth and power and styles they remembered from their homelands.

Middle and working-class folk wanted their own versions of the latest in furnishings, and the market served them all, from the prosperous merchant commissioning a solid mahogany parlor suite to the factory hand choosing a mass-produced painted pine chair. Unlike 18th-century furniture, crafted in a tradition little changed in 2,000 years, Victorian furniture was the product of a mechanized age. Even cabinetmakers who served the wealthiest patrons relied to a degree on the latest inventions — power saws, veneering and shaping techniques. The individual craftsman/designer was in the main replaced by the manufacturer/upholsterer.

He gave Victorian housewives plenty to choose from. At least a dozen furniture styles developed and continued to coexist in eclectic harmony or counterpoint. For example, a cabinet presented to singer Jenny Lind by New York City firemen combined Elizabethan, Rococo and Renaissance elements. As these names indicate, most of the styles were historical revivals, free and sometimes widly inaccurate adaptations from furniture and architectural motifs of previous centuries.

On the other hand, convenience and comfort were far more important to the Victorians than historical accuracy. The new art of upholstery — born of the invention of powered fabric looms and the coil spring — encouraged ballooning, cushioned forms not seen before. The sofa and overstuffed chair came into their own — along with footstools, ottomans, meridiennes, love seats and S-shaped tete-a-tetes. All were luxurious, comfortable — and suitable settings for languishing Romantic heroines.

A tremendous variety of design was apparent in architecture as well. A 275-year-old ideal of symmetrical simplicity was rejected for a "picturesque" style that was purposefully irrecular. In 1850 New York landscape-architect, author, taste-maker A. J. Downing spoke for his time when he described the period as "the experimental state of . . . taste. With the passion for novelty, and the feeling of independence that belong to this country, our people seem to be determined to try everything." And, with the help of the upholsterers, they did.

A Gothic house might have a Norman hall, Elizabethan chambers, a Rococo drawing room and a Renaissance dining room, boasting of new types of furniture — whatnots, etagers, jardinieres, brackets, encoigneurs — that provided the shelf space necessary to display a host of articles calculated to reflect the family's history, taste and interests.

The housewife took pride in displaying personal mementoes, elaborate silver (or plate); figurines in porcelain (or plaster); toilet articles in mother of pearl (or papier mache), desk sets, smoking sets, books, bibelots, photographs, handcrafts — and carefully tended houseplants. All this was tastefully arranged against a background of figured carpet — what one critic described as "dangerous labyrinths of Rococo ornament" — drapery and/or wallpaper, doubled and redoubled in ornamental mirrors.

As random and chaotic as such a scheme of decor may appear, the Victorian housewife would never have admitted to disorder. "A place for everything and everything in its place" was her motto. She simply wanted a great many things and a great many places in which to put them. Still, by the end of the century, many rooms were obstacle courses and parlor maid's nightmares.

The reaction began as early as the 1870s, when reformers wrote scathing and vivid condemnations of contemporary taste. England's Charles Eastlake in many ways spoke for five generations of future critics when he described Victorian furnishings as vulgar, degenerate, degraded and dishonest, "only fit to be burnt for firewood." The very best, he declared, "will not survive the present generation."

As often happens, time has confounded prediction. It is true after all — and a guiding principle of Victorian aesthetic theory — that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. And whether we now describe the creations of this period as frantic or exuberant, dishonest or ingenious, anarchic or democratic is a matter of personal taste — and perspective.

HOW MANY DISABLED PEOPLE?

How many disabled people are there in the United States? Good question, but did it ever occur to you how difficult it is to answer?

The reason: two other questions have to be answered first. What is a disability? Who decides who's disabled?

In most disability surveys in the USA, a sampling of people are asked whether they have any handicapping conditions which stand in the way of working or going to school or keeping house or whatever. They have to decide for themselves whether to answer "yes" or "no."

With many, there's no problem. You're blind or you're not; deaf or not; in a wheelchair or not. But with many more, the answer could go either way: controlled epilepsy; history of mental illness; heart condition, some hearing loss; some vision loss; some trouble walking; and so on.

If you're in one of these "iffy" categories, whether you answer "yes" or "no" depends on many things:

- Are you working or not? Somehow, people at work are less likely to think of themselves as disabled as people not at work.
- How do your family and friends consider you? If they constantly concentrate on your disability, if they constantly try to do things for you rather than let you do things for yourself, you are likely to think of yourself as disabled.

So you can see that we can never get a completely accurate count of all the disabled people in America. But we can get a fairly accurate estimate. And in doing so, we learn a couple of important truths about disabled people:

- It is important for disabled people to work, not just for the obvious reasons of making a living and being independent, but also for the less-obvious reason of thinking more positively about themselves.
- It is important for families and friends to think positively about disabled people as whole people and not just as bundles of disabilities. Positive thinking by families leads to positive thinking by disabled people.

P.S. How many disabled people are there in the United States? The U.S. Census Bureau, in a hefty sample in which people were asked to define themselves, found that one in eleven adults is disabled, physically or mentally. It's a good rule of thumb to apply to our own communities - one in eleven.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Predicting our Economic Future for 1982

Predicting the future has never been easy. It is hard enough when the possible outcomes can be narrowed to two, such as in sports — let alone in economics, where the possibilites are endless.

Economic forecasting is at a crossroads right now. We have witnessed this year a sharp break with the economic policies of the past 40 years. Unless they choose to continue to be as wrong as they have been about Reaganomics over the past few months, the economic astrologers who make their bread, butter and notoriety by issuing predictions will now have to change their assumptions as well.

Take interest rates for example. When the prime rate was stuck above 20 per cent in late September, economist Henry Kaufman sent shock waves through Wall Street when he said, "I continue to believe that we have not yet seen the high in interest rates, either short term or long term."

MIT economist Lester Thurow was more direct: "Reagan's program will not work," he wrote in Newsweek on Sept. 21. What about the administration's predicted decline in interest rates? "They have been making that promise since January," Thurow declared. "It isn't going to happen."

It did happen. As I write, the prime rate stands at 15½ per cent at some banks, a 25 per cent drop since those doomsday forecasts were made.

In the same article, Thurow questions the basic premise of Reagan's supply side tax cut, and issues a common prediction: The tax cut would be spent and not saved, thereby depriving the economy of the investment capital needed to drive interest rates lower and productivity higher. "The President says that if Americans are given a 25 per cent across-the-board tax cut they will suddenly become big savers," Thurow writes. "The most likely hypothesis is that they will consume most of their tax cut."

Yet, during October, the first month of the Reagan tax cut, a significant increase occurred in the rate of personal saving by Americans — from 5.3 per cent in September to 6.5 per cent in October. On an annual basis, that increase amounts to some $28.5 billion in additional dollars saved, or almost double the amount of the entire October tax cut.

Like it or not, these and other economists are heeded by the people who make major political and business decisions in this country. In fact, their dire pronouncements about Reaganomics this fall contributed to an atmosphere of panic and retrenchment on Capitol Hill, among investors and even among some administration officials.

It is time to discard that foggy crystal ball for one that accurately gauges the new economic policies of our country. And, if I may take the first gaze into this supply-side crystal ball, I see, on balance, a robust economic performance in 1982.

The economy will rebound strongly in 1982 for three reasons: (1) the sharp decline in interest rates that is currently underway, (2) the 1981 tax bill, which was designed precisely to unleash economic growth in a period of slowdown by encouraging saving and investment, (3) an explosion of pent-up consumer demand for homes, autos and durable goods. Americans have been delaying these purchases for some time due to prohibitive interest rates and the lack of economic certainty. Both of these factors are changing.

RELUCTANT TO LEAVE northern Minnesota's temperate climate, this robin was among a group of four gathering Friday to feed on fruit of the flowering crabapple tree in the yard of Mrs. Pearl Haugen, 1013 Arnold av. N. Perhaps today's zero reading will convince the birds that migration is really the thing to do, or perhaps feeding on the frozen fruit has affected their senses. Mrs. Haugen speculates the birds may be from an extremely late hatch that was too young to migrate earlier. At any rate, she has enjoyed the added color and life which the birds have provided in her yard.

Child Restraint Can Save Lives

New Minnesota law, effective January 1, states: "Every parent or legal guardian of a child under the age of four years residing in this state, when transporting the child on the streets and highways of this state in a motor vehicle owned by the parent or guardian, shall equip and install for use in the motor vehicle, according to the manufacturer's instructions, a child passenger restraint system meeting federal motor vehicle safety standards."

Census figures one year ago, indicated there were 841 families in Thief River Falls school district with 1082 children between birth and kindergarten age. A significant number of those will be affected by that law.

Each year more than 1,000 children under age five die from injuries received in highway accidents, making them the number one killer of children. Tens of thousands more are injured, many of them permanently, according to the National Safety Council. Safety belts, child restraints and infant carriers do two important jobs. One they help keep people from hitting hard surfaces and each other, and two, they spread the force of stopping over the strongest body areas.

Because children under four are top heavy and have softer bones, seat belts are not effective protection for them. Child restraints are designed to spread pressure of stopping force over largest area possible. As of June, 1980, 29 models of infant car carriers had undergone stimulated crash tests and were found to provide effective protection for infants and small childre. While many designs are available, they fall into three basic types:

Infant car carriers are designed to carry babies from birth to approximately nine months. In most, the baby rides backwards in a semi-reclining position, held into the carrier by a built in harness. The carrier is secured by the car's safety belt. Tiny infants can be snugged in with rolled up towels or small blankets at the sides. Some

SOME PEOPLE SAY that child restraints are too expensive and too much trouble to use. Low cost models with a few "teething scars" may be available from parents of children who have outgrown them. However, even the most expensive models are still cheaper than a visit to the hospital emergency room for x-rays, and probably less trouble than the paperwork too.

Elect ASCS Community Committees

Voting for ASC community committeemen in Pennington county ended on December 7. Chairman, vice chairman and regular member of each of the six communities have been named, and the first and second alternates will be asked to serve in the absence of one of the regular members, according to Phillip Bergland, director of the Pennington county ASCS office.

Newly elected committeemen will hold their county convention in Thief River Falls on December 18. Meeting will be called to order at 1:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room in the courthouse.

Among the agenda items will be the selection of one person to a three-year term as a member of the county committee. Olaf Olson of Hickory township has served on this three-man committee for the past nine consecutive years, and is not eligible to succeed himself. Other duties of the committeemen will be the naming of the chairman and vice chairman of the county committee for the coming year.

In addition to Olson, who now serves as vice chairman of the county committee, Harold Kalsnes is the chairman and Duane Vatsaas is the regular member.

Community committeemen and alternates for 1982 are as follows:

Numedal, Bray, Sanders and Polk Centre — Curtis Swanson, TRF, chairman; Warren Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, vice chairman; Chester Swanson, TRF, regular member: Charles Naplin, Red Lake Falls, first alternate; and Clarence Anderson, TRF, second alternate;

Norden, North and Rocksbury — Kermit Finstad, chairman; Andrew Skaar, vice chairman; Clayton Mathson, regular member; Scott Olson, first alternate; and Donavon Dyrdal, second alternate (all are from Thief River Falls);

Smiley, Wyandotte, River Falls and Black River — Verndeen Grove, TRF, chairman; Arnold Hammer, TRF, vice chairman; Robert Peterson, St. Hilaire, regular member; Kenneth Schroeder, St. Hilaire, first alternate; and Bryan Steiger, Red Lake Falls, second alternate;

Silverton, Cloverleaf and Kratka — Donald Longevan, TRF, chairman; Carl Lindbloom, Goodridge, vice chairman; Clayton Hanson, TRF, regular member; Ivan Downs, Goodridge, first alternate; and Daniel R. Johnson, Goodridge, second alternate;

Dr. Knapp Has 20 Years As Hospital Consultant

PHYSIATRIST Dr. Miland E. Knapp of Minneapolis assists a patient at Northwestern hospital services during a recent visit here as a consultant in physical medicine. He defines physical medicine as that branch which involves diagnosis and treatment of disability and injury by physical means, including heat, light, water, electricity, massage, exercise and climate. He adds that rehabilitation is an important part of physical medicine and involves restoration of the individual to the highest physical, mental, social and vocational level of which he is capable.

If a perpetual motion machine could be personified, it would probably resemble Dr. Miland E. Knapp. The Minneapolis physician, who has been coming to Thief River Falls on a monthly basis for the past 20 years as a consultant in physical medicine, doesn't know how to stop.

"I've cut down to about half time now," the 76-year-old doctor chuckles. "That means to about 40 hours a week."

Despite the distance from Minneapolis to Thief River Falls, Dr. Knapp maintains he has always enjoyed coming here for his consultations. "I suppose the main reason I love to come here is because of the staff," he said. "They're all great people, interested and cooperative in every way. And the physical medicine department is among the best set-ups around the state."

Dr. Knapp may be a bit biased about the department. He was relied upon heavily for the planning of the department which was opened in the north addition to the hospital in 1964. At that time he already had bee coming here for three years, holding clinics with the medical staff and having an open exchange of ideas.

The consultation visits began when hospital administrator Norman Peterson and chief of staff Dr. H. Paul Wendt attended a Sister Kenny meeting at the Nicollet hotel in the Twin Cities and met Dr. Knapp there. They were looking for a University of Minnesota resident practitioner to help organize the physical medicine unit here and Dr. Knapp offered his services.

Soo Line railroad still offered passenger service at the time and Dr. Knapp would board the train at night in Minneapolis, arrive in Thief River Falls at 4 a.m., spend the day seeing patients and giving a lecture to medical and nursing staff, then board the train here at night and be back at work in Minneapolis the next day.

"When train passenger service died I had to make the trip by plane," the doctor said. "It's faster, but in many ways the train schedule was better for me. I never minded the ride although the equipment wasn't the greatest.

Dr. Knapp was the first

2nd Annual NW Senior Federation Meet Held

Approximately 100 area delegates gathered at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls last Thursday for the second annual convention of the Northwest Senior federation.

Area covered by the federation includes the counties of Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods and the northwest portion of Beltrami.

Registration, which began the day's activities at 9 a.m. was followed by a call to order by Alton Clark, president of the Northwest Senior federation. Rev. J.M. Hovland, Trinity Lutheran church, gave the invocation.

Following the pledge of allegiance, a welcome by Thief River Falls Mayor Bob Carlson and the introduction of guests, regular business was conducted. Included were approval of minutes of the last meeting; adoption of various reports including the treasurer's report and the nominating committee report; adoption of an issues priority report and operating budget, election of officers, setting of annual membership dues, and the ratification of county vice-presidents.

Power, action, unity and dignity — those items stressed by the Minnesota Senior Federation — were evident throughout the day Thursday as delegates gathered to discuss issues with which seniors are often confronted.

Emphasized as problems that rural seniors are presently facing were loneliness, isolation, poverty and despair, as well as lack of transportation, inadequate nutrition, and inability to participate in social and recreational activites.

Northwest Senior federation, acting in harmony with action of the Minnesota federation, submitted various issues and resolutions at the convention for consideration, participation and adoption.

Included were their opposition to reducing medical assistance eligibility standards, opposition to sharp cuts in social security benefits, opposition to future cuts in Medicare-Medicaid benefits; urging the development of improved affordable health care insurance coverage and control, opposition to any cuts in legal services; and their recommendation for continued and adequate fuel and energy assistance to needy by federal

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Brenda Kay Nelson And Scott A. Molstad Wed

Brenda Kay Nelson and Scott Allen Molstad exchanged marriage vows recently at a 2:30 p.m. ceremony at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Nelson, rural Oklee, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Molstad, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the ceremony before an altar flanked by candelabra and baskets of red gladioli. Sherry Hanson was the organist and Jeff Liden sang "Endless Love," and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white satin A-line gown with a sheer overlay. Chantilly lace graced the fitted bodice and flowed down the front of the skirt. Matching lace motifs enhanced her sheer long sleeves that came to a point over her wrists. Her veil, bordered with Chantilly lace, was held by a lace headpiece embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a silk cascade of blue and yellow carnations, white miniature roses, daisies and babies' breath.

Maid of honor was Julie Helm, a friend of the couple. She wore a baby blue sheer floor-length gown accented by white lace trim at the neckline and around the hemline. Her flowers were similar to the bride's.

Shirley Weber was the bride's personal attendant.

The groom was attired in a light blue suit, matching the blue in the bride's bouquet. Attending him as best man was Randy Liden, a friend. Serving as ushers were Clayton, Jr., and Patrick Molstad, brothers of the groom.

A reception was hosted in the church parlors for approximately 150 guests. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Art Nelson, uncle and aunt of the bride. Crystal Liden was at the guest book and Shirley Weber and Shelly Molstad ladled the punch.

Centering the reception table was a three-tiered wedding cake with each tier supported by filigreed pillars. White wedding bells graced the sides and clusters of blue roses were between the pillars. Topping the cake, baked and decorated by Olive Wiskow of rural Goodridge, was an ornament featuring a cluster of wedding bells, cherubs and wedding doves. The cake was cut by Jeanette Hoffman, rural Goodridge, a friend of the family.

Presiding at the coffee service were Anne Heden, aunt of the bride, and Kathy Hume, aunt of the groom. Waitresses were Connie Hume and Shawn Hume.

Honor guests at the ceremony and reception were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Lavina Crisman, her great-grandmother, Mrs. Violet Messig, both of Minneapolis; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nelson of Champlin; her godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Heden of Oklee; her uncle and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Crismon and Karl of Dwight; the groom's grandmothers: Lena Molstad and Mrs. James Kelley; and his grandfather, James Molstad.

Linda Helgeland, rural Thief River Falls, made all the silk flowers for the wedding party and honored guests. Flowers worn by those assisting at the reception were made by Mrs. Jeanette Hoffman and Mrs. Kenneth Nelson.

Following the reception the gifts were opened and viewed at the home of the groom's parents, who hosted a supper later in the evening.

Deer Park Yule Party Held At E. Prestegaards

Contests, games and relays highlighted the Deer Park garden club Christmas party held recently at the Eugene Prestegaard home at 314 North Sherwood.

For the occasion, the recreation room featured a flocked Christmas tree with colored ornaments. Decorations both inside and outside the home were in the Christmas decor.

The evening began with a designing contest. Six models were chosen and two designers were appointed for each model. By folding, twisting, tearing and tieing newspaper, crepe paper, Christmas wrappings and ribbons, costumes were created. First prize was awarded to Lynn Hanson and his designers, Helen and Orlando Chervestad. Lois Swanson and her designers, Dorothy Svanjord and Mary Kusmak, received second place.

Couples participating in the Newly-Wed game were Elvon and Gladys Mae Hamilton, Lynn and Norma Hanson, Jesse and Thora Anderson and Eugene and Willia Prestegaard. The winning couple, knowing the most about each other, were Elvon and Gladys Mae Hamilton.

Ernie Swanson placed first in the Christmas quiz and Lois Swanson and Irene Ellingson tied for second. In the Christmas card puzzle, the winners were Gladys Mae Hamilton and Ethel Wiseth. Everyone participated in the relay with the participants walking across the room holding a penny between their knees.

Serving on the committee planning the games and arranging the party were President Marion Marquis, Norma Hanson and Lauretta Stucy and the Prestegaards, who served as host and hostess.

Guests included Jean Berndt, Sara Kusmak, and Clara Hauger of Big Fork, Mont.

Refreshments featured cheese, crackers, buns and a variety of salads.

The January meeting of the Deer Park garden club will be held at the home of Marion Marquis. Topic for the afternoon will be "Flight of the Bluebird — What kind of a house for him."

Stephany Larson And Dean Wilkens Married

Stephany Sue Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Larson, rural Thief River Falls, became the bride of Dean E. Wilkens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilkens of rural Grygla, at a recent ceremony at Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt.

Rev. Rick Lund officiated at the seven o'clock double-ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 200 guests. A program of nuptial music was presented by Rev. Nancy Lund as the guests were seated by the ushers, John Olson, Baudette, brother-in-law of the bride; and Michael Benke, Brandon, a friend of the groom. Rev. Lund also played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional, and "Wedding March," as the bride proceded to the altar. During the ceremony, Stacy Martin sang, "Wedding Song," and "Annie's Song;" and the assembled guests sang 'O, Perfect Love."

Bouquets of carnations, daisies, and babies' breath graced the altar. The pews were marked with large pink bows and greenery.

The bride was attired in a gown of white organza and reembroidered Chantilly lace, featuring a fitted bodice, a lace mandarin collar, and a sheer yoke with a deep Victorian lace ruffle touched with pearls and iridescents. Complementing the yoke was an English embroidered motif. Her long, tapered, sheer sleeves were appliqued with Chantilly lace. Matching lace was appliqued on her bouffant skirt which flowed into a chapel-length train edged with lace and organza ruffles. Her veil of bridal illusion was attached to a derby hat. She carried a lace-edged colonial bouquet of deep red roses, pink carnations, white Majestic daisies, babies' breath and flowing streamers.

The bride's personal attendant was a friend, Rose Strandberg of Viking.

Matron of honor was Stacy Martin. Bridesmatron was Gloriann Olson of Baudette. Both are sisters of the bride. They wore identical gowns of pink tinaseta chiffon featuring crystal pleated skirts, butterfly sleeves edged with matching Venise lace, and shawl collars in swag effect, both front and back. Their headpieces were pink derby hats. They carried lace edged colonial bouquets of carnations, daisies, babies' breath and ribbon streamers.

The groom, in white attire, wore a Saratoga tailcoat with satin lapels and trim, a cummerbund, and a ruffled shirt with burgundy trim. His boutonniere consisted of deep red Sweetheart roses and babies' breath. He was attended by his friends, Fred Sorensen, rural Red Lake Falls, and Bruce Anderson, rural Goodridge. Their plum colored Regency attire featured regular length, single-breasted coats with contrasting velvet trim.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Larson selected a cream-colored polyester gown with a lace edged sheer print jacket tied with a large bow at the front neckline. Her corsage was of deep red roses, daisies and babies' breath with matching ribbon. An identical corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who wore an orchid floor-length gown with cap sleeves.

Honored guest at the ceremony was Reinhardt Holthusen, grandfather of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Danny and Kim Larson, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. Flower hostess was Sharon Knutson, a cousin of the bride.

The serving table was centered with a tiered wedding cake supported by ornate pillars. On either side were small tiered cakes, also iced in white and decorated with daisies. Topping the center cake were a miniature bride and groom under a double lace arch, topped with a bell. The cake was cut and served by Doris Wilkens and Lorraine Holthusen, sisters of the groom. Judy Benitt and Kirsten Kjellberg, cousin and friend of the bride, were at the coffee service.

The guests were registered by Roger and Elaine Hoeper, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. Allan and Jean Berndt, also a brother-in-law and sister of the groom, ladled the punch. Waiter and waitresses were Charlie Riesen, Norma VanCamp, Gail Waterworth and Gwen Gonsorowski, friends of the bride. Gift bearers were Dana Sellnow, Stacy Holthsen and Bobbie Jo Hoeper.

The bride is a graduate of Marshall county central high school, Newfolden, and is attending the Thief River Falls AVTI. The groom is a graduate of Goodridge high school and Northland community college, and attended Bemidji State university.

Following a brief wedding trip to points of interest in Canada, the couple is now at home in rural Grygla, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Officiating at the ceremony, which included Holy Communion, were Rev. Joseph Nystuen and Rev. Jerry Jefferies of Hazard, Neb. Nephews and nieces of the bride furnished both vocal and instrumental music. The group, forming the Cousin Chorus, sang "Bless This House," "Bind Us Together, Lord," and "The Gift of Love." The assembled friends and relatives sang "Praise to the Lord," after the invocation, "Let Us Break Bread Together," during communion, and "the Lord's Prayer." Organist Kathy Serie and pianist Margaret Beck, nieces of the bride, played Greig's "Wedding Day at Trollhaugen" for the processional.

Bruce Johnson, a nephew served as usher, Pat Thomas, a niece, was floral designer, and Lee and Kay Kjos presided at the guest book.

The Reinerstons are making their home in Ravenna, Neb.

Dr. Knapp Has 20 Years As Consultant

physiatrist in Minnesota, certified in physical medicine and rehabilitation in 1947. He is a 1929 graduate of the University of Minnesota medical school, interned at Minneapolis General hospital in 1929-1930 and received a fellowship in surgery at Minneapolis General from 1930 to 1933.

From 1933 to 1970 he was chief of physical therapy at Minneapolis General hospital. He was director of physical medicine and rehabilitation at Elizabeth Kenny institute from 1948 to 1964, area chief of physical medicine and rehabilitation for the Veterans administration from 1946 to 1960 and currently practices with the Metropolitan Medical center.

His work with Northwestern hospital initiated a statewide teaching and lecture program which he continues at the present time. While he consults at Northwestern each month or every six weeks, he spends most of his time with nursing home consultation at eight nursing homes in the Twin Cities area.

So intense is his interest in physical medicine that he has often hired assistants to help him in positions where he has served at no salary, including head of the department of physical medicine at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Knapp became interested in physical medicine during his residency at Minneapolis General. He was fascinated by fractures and the interplay of muscles, joints, ligaments, tendons and nerves with the bones in making an extremity function as it was intended.

He describes physical medicine as dealing with diagnosis and treatment of disability or injury by physical means, including heat, light, water, electricity, massage, exercise and climate. He couples this with rehabilitation, which is the restoration of an individual to the highest physical, mental, social and vocational level of which he is capable.

Treated primarily are functional disabilities as a result of injuries, arthritis, strokes or paralysis. Dr. Knapp has worked with patients from less than a year of age to those over 100 years old. In 1952 the state had its largest incidence of polio with 2,900 acute cases in the state. Developement of the Salk and Sabin vaccines reduced the disease to the point that only one case was reported last year.

On his present schedule, Dr. Knapp arrives here on a Wednesday, works with physicians and referral patients on Thursday and Friday and returns to the Cities on the afternoon Friday flight.

Dr. Wendt, who spent a number of years in practice in consultation with Dr. Knapp prior to his retirement several years ago, said that local doctors benefitted greatly from the consultation. He said that having a physiatrist come here was a stimulant to local physicians, showing them what could be accomplished through various physical means. Physical medicine was given very brief treatment in medical schools, he said.

Physical medicine has developed to the point where there are now about 30 practicing physiatrists in the state and 19 residents being trained at the University of Minnesota. Only the state of New York has more practicing physiatrists in relation to population then Minnesota.

Most remarkable case in Dr. Knapp's memory was that of a Wisconsin man who suffered severe muscle contractions as an early teenager and spent 22 years — from age 15 to age 37 — in a fetal position. After 13 months of treatment, which included some surgery to relieve the contractions, the man was restored so that he was able to do some work. On his last visit to the Kenny Institute, he pushed his mother about two miles in a wheelchair from the bus depot to the institute.

"And the most significant thing is that we couldn't do it now," Dr. Knapp said. "It wouldn't be cost efficient from the government's standpoint. Cost was some $50,000 15 or more years ago. It would be half a million dollars now. Government wouldn't be willing to pick up that kind of a welfare bill."

Dr. Knapp has authored or co-authored more than 100 articles and publications pertaining to physical medicine and rehabilitation. He is a consultant to the department of public welfare on the aid to the disabled program, he has held chairmanship of the section of physical medicine and rehabilitation of the American Medical association and serveed on the executive council of the American Congress of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation.

In observance of his 20 years of service here, a luncheon in his honor was held with attendance including medical staff and hospital administration and board.

"Retired?" Dr. Knapp asked. "If you mean am I tired again, the answer is yes. If you mean that I'm not working, the answer is no. I intend to keep on doing this as long as I'm feeling well and the people here will 'put up with me."

A BIT UNSURE of just exactly what to do was this youngster who stopped in to visit with Santa Claus Saturday afternoon in the chamber of commerce building in Thief River Falls. Although most of the chilfren did not hestiate to climb aboard Santa's lap and chat with him that day, a few were fearful of the jolly fellow in his red and white suit, and kept their distance after accepting the candy cane he offered each child he visited with.

Restraint Law Aimed To Save Life Of Child

models convert to forward facing seats so that they can be used up to age four. Not all infant carriers are designed for protection in the car.

Harness restraints come across both shoulders, the hips, and up through the crotch, with one buckle to fasten all straps. Straps should be at least one and one half inches wide. Because they offer little side protection, harnesses are best located in the middle back seat position. This is the best position for all restraints.

A variation on this system is the harness in a wraparound seat which offers better protection. All models are secured by car safety belts which either go around the front or thread through the back. Some models sit higher on the car seat, and come with a top tether to keep the seat from pitching forward. This tether must be attached firmly to the car. Seats which merely hang over the back of the front seat are not secure.

Shield restraints feature a padded surface designed to catch and protect a child on impact. Its sloping surface can also be used as a desk by the child. Child and shield are held in place by car's safety belt. Some lack wrap around head protection.

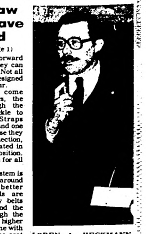
Children over four years or forty pounds can be held in place by the car's safety belts, adjusted to fit snugly across the hips, below the stomach. Shoulder harness should come midway between edge of shoulder and neck. If not, child should be boosted with a firm cushion, or shoulder belt should be tucked between child's back and seat.

Survey was done of stores in Thief River Falls to determine availability of restraint systems. Two our of four hardware stores had restraints in stock. Other two were unsure whether they would order them. One of four new car dealers had an infant restraint in stock, but all were willing to order them. None of four auto parts stores offered them at the present time. Three of four discount or chain stores had restraints in stock, and all three catalog outlets offered the systems.

Prices on approved restraint systems ranged from $21.35 to about $100. More expensive models could be color keyed to auto interior and were "generally just a little plusher" according to one clerk. Most models passing standards carried a label stating that fact. However, persons purchasing used models or older models which may be unlabeled can obtain a list of restraints passing tests from John H. Shaffer, Childsafe Coordinator, 170 Hamm Building, St. Paul, MN. 55102, phone 291-9150.

Joyce Brandt, director of Children and Parents Learning Together, which meets with parents of pre-school children every week at Franklin Middle School, stated that their group had been discussing the subject for several weeks. She noted that parents were concerned about problems which use of the restraints caused. Most were concerned about cost, and need to transfer the seats from one car to another in two car families. Installation on many models is involved, and the seats were cumbersome in small cars. She said that she used them herself however, and found that children adapted readily to them. She noted a statistic which compared a baby hitting the dash in a sudden stop from 30 miles per hour to dropping it from a third story window.

Minnesota Highway Patrol Captain Lloyd Rudd was asked about enforcement of the law. He stated that intent of the law was "primarily educational, without any teeth. We can't arrest anyone for it." He said that this first year the patrol would be issueing warning tickets which would be handed to the driver with an informative form. "The safest place in any accident is in the car," said Rudd, "I'm convinced the restraints are a good safety device and everyone should use them.



LOREN A. HECKMANN, Minneaoplis, insurance administrator of the Minnesota Senior federation group major Medicare supplement insurance plan, was one of several guest speakers featured Thursday at the Northwest Senior federation second annual convention conducted at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls.

Bugliosi And Jansen Named To Committee

Highway 59 South Businessmen's association adopted its group name and elected Jerry Bugliosi of McDonald's and Dave Jansen of T-59 motel to serve on a planning committee at a meeting held Friday morning at the Northwest regional library meeting room.

The planning committee, which will also include representatives from the city council and Minnesota department of transportation, will attempt to reach agreement on traffic flow and safety improvements for highway 59 south. Paul Wold of Holiday motel and Ev Ault of Northland Foods were named alternates to the committee.

Unanimous opposition by area business operators to installation of a frontage road in the area south from First street along highway 59 was noted by the association. They said the original plan for a frontage road presented by the department of transportation was not acceptable and proposed instead a widening of the highway to four or five lanes to facilitate traffic movement and left turns into business areas along the highway.

Also supported were installation of traffic lights at First street and highway 59 and at another site further south, and lowering of the speed limit to 30 miles per hour south to Greenwood street. The group also voted to puruse placement of one of its members on the city planning commission and recommended Ault for appointment.

Meeting to consider an alternate plan for highway 59 south improvement will be held at noon Wednesday in the Council chambers of the city auditorium.

NW Senior Federation Meeting Held

and state funds.

Delegates also showed opposition to the proposed plan to speed up deregulation of natural gas prices; encouraged increased part-time employment for the elderly; urged elimination of income tax inequities resulting from taxation of non-pension income; supported transportation aids in rural and other areas; opposed any change in the income tax circuit breaker law that could result in increased property taxes for the elderly and others presently eligible; supported the expansion and development of dental programs, eye-care services, prescription drugs and other health care needs not now covered; and opposed legislation that would reduce existing programs that benefit senior citizens.

Also noted at the meeting by one delegate was the present homestead tax situation facing seniors. "Let's let our legislators know what is happening," he said. If we sit silently, nothing will be done."

"The federation is designed by seniors, run by seniors, for seniors," stated Mike Moore, director of aging programs with the regional development commission at Crookston, as he summarized a major point at the convention.

As stressed in the constitution and by laws of the Northwest Senior federation, purpose of the group is to "combine and coordinate efforts to achieve social and legislative improvements on issues of state and national concern to senior citizens as a whole."

Presenting information to delegates at the convention on an insurance policy designed only for members of the Minnesota Senior federation was Loren A. Heckmann, Minneapolis, insurance administrator of the Minnesota senior federation group major medicare supplement insurance plan.

Points stressed by Heckmann focused on what the program involved, and how seniors could benefit from it. Program, he said, begins working where Medicare stops. "Since Medicare does not cover all health costs," he said, "a broad group health care policy has been developed to protect senior needs." Policy pays major medical expenses a senior has that Medicare doesn't pay.

Since its introduction in 1979, the policy has been received well by seniors, he added. Developed by Minnesota seniors for their members, it carries exclusive benefits.

"Everyone pays the same premium per year," he added.

Questions addressed Heckmann following his discussion of the policy were numerous and included such things as: (1) What is a pre-existing condition? (2) Is diabetes a pre-existing condition? (3) Are prescriptions covered by the policy? (4) Where do you get claim blanks? (5) Are routine physicals paid for? (6) Does the policy cover eye examinations when you're told you need glasses?

Heckmann, who answered questions from delegates until the scheduled luncheon break, returned that afternoon to further explain the policy and provide answers to questions about the policy, of which the majority of delegates appeared in favor.

"You are making your organization work," he emphasized. "The action by Minnesota seniors to stand up and be counted is being heard."

Expressed at the meeting was that the Northwest Senior federation was "in sound financial condition," despite statements of concern about a disappearing federation. "No, we will live on," commented the federation's president, although he added some regions at present may be facing financial problems.

A statement by Alton Clark indicated that the projected income of the federation for next year was $18,406. "I would say we're quite healthy in light of present financial conditions," he indicated.

"Your organization is you. You get out of it what you put into it — on any issue," it was further stressed by one speaker.

Annual membership dues were raised to $5 per individual and $7 per couple, effective Jan. 1, 1982, from previous dues of $4 per individual and $6 per couple.

Presenting a report at the meeting on her recent trip to Washington, D.C., was Mrs. LaVerne D. Swan, senior citizen coordinator, chore service and senior employment director of Northwest community action, Inc., Badger. Swan was one of 17 delegates appointed by Gov. Al Quie to attend the National White House conference on aging in Washington, D.C. recently. Conference brought citizens together from across the nation to make recommendations, through 14 committees, on a proposed national policy on aging.

Filmstrip illustrating the 55 Alive mature driving course for seniors was also a featured item at the convention Thursday.

Officers elected at the meeting included K.B. Knutson, Oklee, president; Alton Clark, Thief River Falls, first vice president; Vic Johnson, Lake Bronson, second vice president; Ophy Krull, Williams, secretary; and Viola Henning, Thief River Falls, treasurer.

As the convention neared its end, several prizes, donated by area merchants, were awarded. Rosalie Mozinski, coordinator of the Northwest senior federation in Thief River Falls, along with other federation officers, extended a thank-you to all who donated prizes.

Convention came to a close at 3 p.m., with new officers remaining after adjournment for consultation on various issues.

Delegates left the meeting with much accomplished, including a major goal of the federation — seniors getting together and doing things for themselves without depending upon others.

SALT DOUGH tree ornaments, created by Mrs. Paul (Joan) Vogt, Thief River Falls, are presently on display at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls. Vogt creates the ornaments using cookie cutters, she said, with the process involving forming ornaments from clay, baking them, and painting or varnishing them. Vogt claims she has made "hundreds" of the ornaments, since she saw examples of some of them at a craft fair in Grand Forks and decided to take on the hobby herself. Process is very time-consuming, she said, but the ornaments are "fun to make."

AWED BY the stout creature who offered a spot on his lap, was this youngster, who joined hundreds of others who stopped in to visit Santa Claus in the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce building Saturday afternoon. Most of the youngsters were quick to tell Santa there would be plenty of room on their roofs for his reindeer and sleigh, although a few reminded him that he could just as easily use the front door to deliver gifts, rather than to slide down the chimney.

Dear Readers,
Some persons in grief act casual and simulate composure. People have a grudging admiration for the person who can endure great sorrow with dignity. But there may be a narrow line between self control and supression. This kind of berieved person may appreciate your kindness more than they indicate.

Day's Work For Theorist; Explaining Unexplainable

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Alan Lightman couldn't help but be pleased. On this particular evening, a sudden thunderstorm and tornado had just swept through the nation's capital. The unexpected downpour quickly flooded some low-lying areas, snarling traffic and sending homeward-bound commuters cursing and running for cover.

Yet here before him in the auditorium was a patient, standing-room-only crowd of eager faces — people aged eight to 80, who had braved the elements and battled gridlock to hear his lecture on one of the most difficult, baffling and intriguing concepts in modern science — black holes.

Few subjects have captured the public imagination as thoroughly as black holes. They are mysterious objects lurking in outer space, the stuff of Hollywood science-fiction films, popular books and New Yorker magazine cartoons. They are fascinating or frightening, depending on your view.

"Black holes," Lightman draws his audience in, "tempt us with their secrets of time and space behind a cloak of darkness." And so men, women and children flock to Lightman's lectures to be tempted — and enlightened.

It's a challenge he relishes and a job he performs extremely well, for explaining the seemingly unexplainable is all in a day's work for this soft-spoken, 33-year-old native of Tennessee.

Although his work frequently takes him to areas beyond the known and observable natural world, Lightman is not a theologian, psychic or magician. Rather, he is a theoretical physicist, a member of an extraordinarily small group in the United States, numbering only a few thousand at most.

Theoretical scientists think in terms of mathematical models and formulas, equations and concepts that are simply beyond the comprehension of most of us. But their work is crucial to the advancement of science, for it is they who give meaning to the countless observations and experimental results obtained by their colleagues.

Albert Einstein, the quintessential theoretician and one of Lightman's heroes, put it neatly: "It is theory that determines what can be measured." Jules Henri Poicare', the brilliant late-19th-century mathematician, also phrased their role well: "There is nothing more practical than a good theory."

Lightman views his own role at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., in much more modest terms: His job is providing the theoretical framework that helps make sense of observations in astronomy and, equally important, providing the predictions that help astronomers decide what observations they should be making. He also teaches astronomy and physics at Harvard university.

Unlike his colleagues working in "big science", this boyish-looking physicist does not need billion-dollar accelerators or spacecraft or even million-dollar computers to do his job. Pads of paper and a blackboard are essential, however, for working out problems in his field of high energy astrophysics, part of which deals with the theoretical mechanisms that explain how radiation is emitted in astronomical processes.

And that's where black holes — as well as such strange astrophysical phenomena as quasars, pulsars and cosmic bursters — come in. For these celestial objects, like everything in distant space, can only reveal their presence and secrets to earthbound astronomers through the emission of characteristic radiation — be it visible light, ultraviolet, X-rays or even cosmic rays.

Black holes are considerably more secretive than their heavenly siblings and therein lies their appeal to theoreticians who, Lightman says, have been "forced to think up clever ways to detect black holes."

Black holes were born out of theory. In 1939, physicists working with Einstein's equations of relativity calculated that certain stars — stars at least three times more massive than our own sun — would begin to collapse in their old age. Once such a star began this process, it would continue to collapse under the inexorable force of gravity until it was so dense not even light could escape from its gravitational field. Nearly 25 years later, another of Lightman's heroes, physicist John Wheeler, termed this final result of collapse a "black hole."

"For many years," Lightman relates, "people regarded black holes as the playthings of physicists. By their very nature, no radiation could escape from them and therefore they could not be detected directly. In short, black holes were disconnected from the rest of the universe — they couldn't communicate."

But theoreticians are nothing if not tenacious. Rising to the challenge of detecting the undetectable, they reasoned that black holes might betray themselves through their effects on other objects in their vicinity.

If, for instance, a black hole were one member of a binary system — two stars circling each other — material from the normal star might be pulled into the black hole due to its tremendous gravitational force. Such a process, the theoreticians predicted, would produce an enormous flow of high-energy radiation in the form of X-rays.

Lightman was a Ph.D. graduate student at the California Institute of Technology in 1971 when astronomers, looking for just this type of predicted X-ray emission, detected what is probably still the best candidate for a black hole — Cygnus X-1, more than 7,000 light years from earth.

Part of his time in the past decade has been aimed at predicting the additional behavior of black holes — to give astronomers the tools and information needed to look for them. Lightman and a colleague at Cornell University, for example, calculated in detail the way stars would bunch up around a massive black hole as they are attracted by its gravitational field and eventually ripped apart. The light from these stars, plus the energy release from their destruction, may provide indirect clues to the nature of the central black hole.

Though one of the hottest topics in astronomy, black holes occupy only a portion of this scientist's time and energy, for like most theoreticians, Lightman is always working on at least two or three areas at a time.

"That's just a matter of efficiency," he says, "so when you get stumped, instead of spinning your wheels you turn to another problem."

Creative process is an intensely individualistic experience, and for Lightman it definitely includes "those sudden flashes of light, those marvelous times when you see a different way of looking at things. It happens all too seldom."

And, no matter how beautiful the theory, "I can't satisfy all my creative impulses by only doing science. In scientific research, there are so many rules and guidelines, so large a body of knowedge that must be built on. Despite what many people think about theoreticians, you can't just let your imagination run rampant. You're constrained by being consistent with reality — or at least our perception of reality."

So, outside his small, tidy, book-filled office in Cambridge, Lightman lets his imagination have free rein in a renovated Victorian house built in the 1890s in Concord, Mass., not far from Walden Pond. It is, he says, a location that suits his "contemplative lifestyle," which he shares with his wife Jean and 15-month-old daughter Elyse Kea.

There, he writes poetry — a cross between the highly intense, personal style of such poets as Sylvia Plath and Anne Sexton and the intellectual style of T. S. Eliot. He also finds outlets in improvisational jazz piano, an outgrowth of 10 disciplined years of classical piano lessons.

And recently he began accelerating his activities in communicating science to the public through lectures and popular magazine articles, for Lightman admires scientists who have made contributions to a larger audience than their scientific colleagues.

Einstein, for example, not only set forth his elegant theories of space and time, but also spoke out for the human condition. Still, even that great intellect recognized that the human memory is short. "Politics are for the moment," Einstein once said. "An equation is for eternity."

With their equations, theoretical scientists want nothing less than to help us understand our universe — a rather large order, Lightman admits, but not impossible.

"It often amazes me that we frail creatures on Earth with our pads of paper can contemplate something as incredible as black holes. To quote T. S. Eliot: 'It is strange, isn't it, that a man should have a consuming passion to do something for which he lacks the capacity.' Strange perhaps, but it is a tribute to our minds, our humanness, that we can do so."

Bemidji Man Given National Guard Award

A Vietnam veteran from Company C, 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry, Bemidji, has been selected by the Association of the U.S. Army in Minnesota as the state's outstanding national guard non-commissioned officer for 1981.

Staff Sergeant Wallace B. Parkinson, a squad leader in the Bemidji unit, was selected from a field of nominees submitted by guard unit commanders throughout the state. One national guard NCO and one reservist are selected for the honor each year by the association's Twin Cities chapter, comprised of officers in guard, reserve and active army components.

SSG Parkinson is a music teacher in the Bemidji public school system. A native of Lubbock, Texas, he began his military career by enlisting in the army in June, 1966, and serving a tour of duty in Vietnam before being discharged in March, 1969. He joined the Bemidji guard unit in 1977.

SSG Parkinson's work in the unit and in bringing members of his squad to a high state of readiness and ability were listed as reasons for his selection as outstanding guard NCO. His skills as a recruiter and many hours spent in this effort were cited as one of the reasons for his unit attaining over 100 per cent of strength. He also completed the primary and advanced non-commissioned officer's courses at Camp Ripley and subsequently turned to teach a primary section.

JOE A. FORBERG, Thief River Falls teacher, has been promoted to Brigadier General, Minnesota Army National Guard. Displaying his new stars are Forberg's wife, Eleanor and Major General James G. Sieben, Minnesota adjutant general. With this promotion, Forberg will assume position of director of Guard's state area command, headquarters element responsible for developing contingency plans for national and state emergencies and mobilization in event of war. Prior to promotion, Forberg had been commander of 1st Brigade, 47th Infantry Division. He was commissioned a second lieutentnt in 1951, is a graduate of Army's Command and General Staff College and holds a bachelor of arts degree from University of North Dakota. Decorations include Meritorious Service Medal; Combat Infantry Badge, United Nations Service Medal and Korean Service Medal. Prepare Cash Flow Forecast For Holidays

If a few dollars have been put aside each month for upcoming holidays, chances are there's been preparation for major expenses. But have the incidentals that often add up to large amounts of money been considered? Without a flexible budget and careful planning, says the Minnesota Society of Certified Public accountants (CPS's), extra holiday costs can undermine year-end finances.

For example, consider increases in energy bills for December and January. Decorative lighting, longer use of the home for nighttime entertaining, use of more rooms for guests, all add to utility costs. Plan for these expenses by reviewing bills from last year, allowing for inflation and rate increases, and recalculating budget and cash flow forecast.

A budget tells how much one should expect to spend, but to keep track of money, prepare a cash flow forecast for the holidays. Then it may be determined exactly when money will be coming in and going out. A cash flow forecast is always an important aspect of "personal" money management; it takes on added significance during the holidays when the cost of gifts, postage, extra food and beverage, and many other expenses can leave one broke.

First, list sources of cash "inflow" for the rest of the year. (One may want to forecast the first quarter of 1982, as well.) Generally, this includes salary, money received from the sale of an asset such as a car, and gifts. Will any interest or dividend checks at the end of the year be received? Is there a holiday savings plan at the bank? Be sure to include this money, too.

Next, set up categories for cash outflow. List fixed expenses such as rent or mortgage payment, loan payments, tuition, and so on. Estimate expenses for utilities, clothing, and other living expenses. For the holiday season, one may want to set up additional categories such as entertainment or travel. Perhaps a "miscellaneous" heading for small incidental expenses is needed. Don't forget to include quarterly or annual payments which may be due in December.

As payments are made, record the amount spent next to estimated figures. This way a close tab on cash flow will be kept and future estimates can be adjusted, if necessary.

At the beginning of the month, list "beginning cash" available in checking, accounts or cash on hand. Add in salary and other income expected during the month.

If a large cash outflow is expected during the holidays one might want to use some savings or defer funds from other categories to the low one to prevent a cash shortage. Use this opportunity to manage money more effectively.

It is important to keep track of all spending, CPA's say, including cash gifts of small amounts. Try to count all the people remembered with money during the holidays and include this amount in the forecast. Keep receipts and records of purchases which may be tax-deductible.

At the end of the month, add up cash spent. Subtract this figure from total cash inflow to get that month's "ending cash." Ending cash for November then becomes December's beginning cash.

Use this "emergency" cash flow forecast as the basis for a year-round quarterly forecast for more effective money management, CPAs say. A cash flow forecast is the first step in realistic budgeting.

Conservation Open House Is Set At Grygla

Public is invited to an open house to learn about and comment on the proposed U.S. department of agriculture soil and water conservation program, said Ralph Rundell, soil and conservation technician at the soil conservation service Grygla field office.

Sponsored by the soil conservation service and the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district, open house, will be held all day on December 21, 22 and 23 at the district office in Grygla.

"Anyone who is interested in our soil and water resources needs to attend this open house," Rundell said. During the open house, the proposed program will be explained and response forms will be provided to anyone who wishes to comment.

"The preferred conservation program was announced by Secretary Block on October 28," Rundell said. "It contains some substantial changes from the present conservation program. This program identifies the reduction of soil erosion and flood damage in upstream areas as national conservation priorities. USDA financial and technical assistance would be redirected to critical erosion and flood prone areas of Minnesota and other states.

"Local and state conservation coordinating boards would be formed to direct the program," Rundell added. "Staffing for these boards would come from existing organizations — soil and water conservation district boards, agricultural stabilization and conservation committees, extension advisory boards and other groups."

Under the preferred program, funding for conservation would be available to states through USDA matching blocks grants. Current federal conservation program funds would be reduced in order to make such grants available.

The program is explained in an RCA program report available for review in local soil conservation service and agricultural stabilization and conservation service offices. A summary leaflet which contains a form for responding to the proposals is also available from these offices.

Responses will be accepted from the public until January 15. The responses will be summarized by the soil conservation service and a report prepared for the secretary of agriculture. Findings will be used to shape the soil and water conservation program that the secretary recommends to the President and congress.

Farm Bureau Takes Action At Annual Meeting

Delegates to the 63rd annual meeting of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation last week completed action on the public policy positions that will guide the general farm organization the coming year. The meeting was held in Bloomington.

Merlyn Lokensgard, St. Peter cash crop and livestock producer, was unanimously reelected to a two-year term as president of the federation, a position he has held since 1977.

Delegates also chose Roger Coudron of Marshall to serve a three-year term on the board of directors. He succeeds Harold Petersen of Murdock, who did not seek reelection. Reelected to the board, each for a term of three years, were John Taatjes of Raymond and Charles Sylvester of Fisher.

Mrs. Ray Randall of LeSueur was reelected to a three-year term as a member of the women's committee.

Land use was center stage during the policy debate, with delegates representing 83 county units calling for a uniform statewide policy, administered by a single existing state agency and enforced by local units of government. Once in place, such policy should provide direction in solving the many problems related to land use decisions, the resolution said.

With reapportionment a major concern in 1982, Farm Bureau delegates reversed a long standing public policy when they went on record as supporting a reduction in the state legislature's size. They indicated they felt a smaller lawmaking body would mean less cost and confusion, with House and Senate district "spill over" avoiding congressional district lines. Delegate action will support redistricting legislation calling for 16 House and eight Senate districts in each of Minnesota's eight congressional districts.

Transportation, unemployment and workers' compensation, public employee bargaining and isolating agricultural facilities from labor disputes at critical times such as harvest were among other issues discussed and acted upon by the voting delegates.

Notes Changes In Marshall Farm Methods

"We are currently updating the 1977 conservation resources inventory to the 1982 national resources inventory. I just recently completed the Marshall county portion of our district in the updating. It was interesting to see the change in farming in these five years."

"The land clearing and conversion to cropland of many acres of woodland and the change in operation from hay-grass seed-grain rotation to a grain-row crop rotation is striking. Nearly all of the sample quarters I checked have gone from many acres of hay and grass seed production to mostly straight grain or row crop and grain rotations.

"The increase in tillage of some of these soils leaves them in a condition where they will blow easily. We are finding the fields smoother and with half as much crop residue on the surface as there was in 1977. Both rough tillage and crop residue practices are needed if we are to reduce rather than increase our wind erosion hazard. Conservation tillage to keep 500 to 750 pounds of crop residue on the surface and the surface in a rough condition can reduce wind erosion significantly," Rundell said. "If we don't reduce the wind erosion hazard we may see reduced crop yields and other problems in the near future. Our soils do not have the deep, rich black topsoil that the Red River valley has, so when we lose topsoil, we can expect to see reductions in yields or a need for additional fertilizer applications to get continued good yields.

"One way of keeping the soil surface in a rough condition over winter is to leave the harrow off the field cultivator or tool bar and leave the surface just as the tillage leaves it. 'The Farmer' magazine recently said that by the year 2000, about 90 per cent of our croplands will be farmed by reduced tillage methods. If we in this area are to move in that direction, we had better get going!" he concluded.

This is the statement by Ralph E. Rundell, soil conservation technician at the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district office in Grygla.

Cheer The Effort . . . .

In an editorial recently in the Red Lake Falls Gazette, Marc Parenteau points out a situation which should come to mind at the start of every heavy amateur sports schedule.

"Certainly the team members are trying to win. That's the goal of every athlete," Parenteau writes. "But the goal of the spectator should be to cheer for their efforts to win, not for the victory itself.

"People should realize that when they attend a high school sporting event they pay to see the local youths play a game. They do not pay to see the local team win. When they do win, players should be congratulated and praised for a job well done. But when they lose they should not be chastised or ridiculed."

How easy it is to forget that amateur athletes compete for fun, especially at the high school level, and that perfection should not be expected in their performances. We should expect the player to exert his utmost and to play as close as possible to his capabilities, because that is part of what we expect him to get out of competitive athletics.

We should be appreciative of the skills that are displayed, but not too critical of the mistakes that are made. Fans should support their high school athletic teams with attendance and vocal support. The athletes are doing their best and are trying to win. It is to their credit that they are making the effort. Most of the more citical fans are those who have never made a similar effort themselves.

Parenteau makes a good point in his editorial when he says Red Lake Falls teams will "play each opponent to the best of their ability, and that's all anybody should ask for."

Unnecessary Council

Editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review is right on target with this editorial on the proposed advisory sportsmen's council:

House File 1510, designed to create a Citizens Advisory Sportsmen's Council on Minnesota's outdoor resources, is drawing widespread discussion among outdoor groups.

It is intended to "advise the Department of Natural Resources and the legislature on the use and management of outdoor recreation resources in the state." Authors of the bill are Rep. John Sarna of Minneapolis, Rep. Harry Sieben of Hastings, Rep. Jim Evans of Detroit Lakes, Rep. Irvin Anderson of International Falls and Rep. Robert Anderson of Ottertail.

Council membership would total 28, including 12 appointed by the governor, ten by the senate majority leader and house speaker, and six named by those appointed by the governor and legislative leaders. The governor would name his 12 on the basis of two from each of the six FNR regions. The ten at-large members chosen by the legislative leaders would include two professionals in the field of fish and wildlife management, two farmers representing one or more farm organizations, and two representatives of the media.

Compensation for council members, its executive secretary and as secretary-receptionist would come from an appopriation of $100,000 from the Game and Fish fund of the DNR. A surcharge of 50 cents would be added to every non-resident fishing and hunting license issued in the state, and that money would go to the Game and Fish Fund.

It doesn't sound bad at first reading, but some alarming thoughts appear after more thorough study.

Minnesota has budget deficits, but there has never been a shortage of advice for the DNR or the legislature on outdoor matters. Creating a 28-member advisory group would simply pack the outdoor kitchen with too many cooks with too many recipes.

Its makeup would be highly political. There are so many conservation and outdoor recreation groups in the state now — many of them with single issues — that it would be impossible to provide representation for all who would demand it. Furthermore, the bill says that "a member may be removed by the appointing authority at any time at the pleasure of the appointing authority." There would be no security for members who disagreed with the appointing authorities, the governor, the senate majority leader and the house speaker.

There are already ample opportunities for citizen input in outdoor matters. A series of statewide citizen meetings was started several years ago by DNR commissioner Joe Alexander, and participation has been enthusiastic and often helpful. Paul Hanson was appointed citizen participation coordinator, and he has been highly accessible to the public. Coordinator Hansen may be reached with criticism or advice by calling, toll-free, 1-800-652-9747.

Lobbying efforts in the legislature are almost constant from many outdoor groups. Citizens and organizations who feel that the DNR is not accomplishing its complicated missions should certainly express their views to legislators and to the DNR.

Nobody contends that the DNR is perfect. It has been freely criticized and praised in the past. That will surely continue without the creation of a highly-political, unwieldy and unnecessary advisory council. The DNR has more critical needs for its Game and Fish fund revenue than whatever value it might receive from money spent for another advisory group.

I'll Bet You Never Knew . . . .

Columnist Sydney Harris in the Detroit Free Press recently wrote a column entitled, "I bet you never knew Minnesota was so grand". He listed the following as things he never knew about the state of Minnesota (and we bet you didn't know, either):

+That Minnesota has more miles of recreational shoreline than the states of California and Oregon combined.

+That residents of Minnesota have the longest life expectancies in the U.S. (The state ranks No. 1 among all 50 in health and welfare.)

+That there are more millionaires per capita in Minnesota than there are in Texas.

+That the state's highest paid public official is the president of the University of Minnesota. (Its Minneapolis campus, with nearly 40,000 students, has the largest enrollment of any single campus anywhere.)

+That the Minneapolis-St. Paul area has more theatergoers per capita than New York City.

+That although known as an agricultural state, for the past 30 years, Minnesota has generated more income from manufacturing than from farming. (Actually, the state's 30 million acres in farms represent less than three per cent of the national total.)

+Minnesota has more surface water than any other state in the country, and more than 95 per cent of Minnesotans live within five miles of recreational waters.

+That except for Los Angeles County in California, Hennepin County, where Minneapolis is located, has more horses than any other county in the U.S.

+That Duluth, on Lake Superior, is the largest fresh-water port in the world. (And more shipping tonnage moves through Duluth than any other port in the country except New York.)

+That the Burlington Northern, headquartered in St. Paul, owns more of the country's coal reserves — 11 billion tons — than any other single entity besides the U.S. government.

+That about half of the residents in the whole state live within the seven-county metropolitan area of the Twin Cities. (Which also has the highest percentage of young adults, 18 to 34 years old, of any metropolitan area in the country.)

+That the town of Cloquet boasts the only gas station ever designed by Frank Lloyd Wright.

+That although Wisconsin is known as the "dairy state," Minnesota is the nation's largest butter producer.

+That despite Sinclair Lewis' bitter satirization of his home town of Sauk Centre in his novel, "Main Street," the Sinclair Lewis boyhood home has been restored and designated a national and state historic shrine.

+That Lake Mille Lacs is known as a "walleye factory" — more than a half million pounds of walleyed pike are taken annually from this one lake alone.

+That due to its locaton on the Great Circle route, flying time to London from the Twin Cities is nearly as fast as it is from New York.

Patient: "Doc, I keep seeing spots in front of my eyes."

Eye Doctor: "Have you ever seen a psychiatrist?"

RAISED PLATFORMS on some child restraints allow a view out the window that can make being restrained easier for the child to take. Experience has shown that children soon get used to the idea, learning to "buckle up" by themselves as they get older.

OPINIONS DIFFER on whether limited mobility afforded by child restraints is an advantage or disadvantage. Although most parents feel it's an advantage, children may occasionally feel too restricted. However, in case of sudden stops, limited mobility is always an advantage. Having the child securely buckled in can also allow driver to concentrate on task at hand.

2 Receive Harry Truman Scholarships

Two University of Minnesota, Morris students have been nominated by UMM for the prestigious Harry S. Truman memorial scholarship. They are Randall Sukow, Hancock, and Lori Skjerven, Plummer. Both are second year students on the liberal arts campus.

Harry S. Truman memorial scholarship program, established by Congress as the official federal memorial to honor the thirty-third president of the United States, is designed to provide opportunities for outstanding students to prepare for careers in public service. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of merit to students who will be college juniors in the 1982-83 academic year, and who have an outstanding potential for leadership in government. Scholarships provide up to $5,000 per year for junior and senior years of undergraduate work, and the first two years of graduate school.

Nominees are selected by institutions which they attend on the basis of a written application and an essay discussing a public policy issue of the student's choice. In order to be considered for nomination a student must be in the top 10 per cent of his or her class, have at least a B-plus average, and be pursuing a degree in preparation for a career in public service.

Skjerven is a political science major pursuing a pre-law program. Active in the UMM international relations club, she was a member of the UMM delegation receiving the "Outstanding Delegation" trophy last spring at the Winnipeg Model United Nations. She also serves on the Morris campus student association forum and executive council. This coming summer she will serve as an intern in Washington, D.C., on the staff of U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland. Topic of her essay for the Truman scholarship is "And Justice for All," which focuses on the international enforcement of human rights.

One of UMM's freshman academic scholars in her freshman year, Skjerven participated in the UMM concert band's first European tour last spring. This year, in addition to other activities, she is a teaching assistant for courses in "American Government and Politics," "The State in the Modern World," and "World Politics."

She hopes to graduate from UMM next year, completing her undergraduate degree in just three years. Law school will follow, in preparation for a career in international affairs with the U.S. State Department.

Skjerven is a 1980 graduate of Pershing high school in Plummer. She was valedictorian of her class, and a representative to Girl's State. She also was active in band, choir, student council, Future Homemakers of America, 4-H and Luther League. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Skjerven, Plummer.

U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

The United States is considered the richest nation on earth, yet many of our elderly citizens exist on incomes well below the property level. Living in substandard conditions and surviving on tea-and-toast diets, malnutrition is not uncommon for senior citizens.

I recently introduced a proposal in Congress to establish a feeding program for the low-income elderly who are at nutritional risk — that is, those who cannot afford to keep themselves on a nutritionally healthful diet. My program would be an extension of the Commodity Supplemental Feeding Program (CSFP) which presently serves pregnant and breast-feeding women, and children up to the age of 6. Although expanding this program in these budget-cutting days is not particularly popular, the government must seek the most cost-effective means to serve the poor. CSFP has proven quite cost-effective.

Presently there are 24 communities across the country served the current CSFP. More than 100,000 women and children are being helped through non-profit private and public agencies. The largest commodity supplemental feeding program in the nation is FOCUS HOPE in Detroit, where more than 40,000 women and children participate. Eleanor Josaitis is the director of this project, and I've met with her to discuss extending this to the elderly.

Josaitis' program began in 1969 after extensive research showed that the lack of proper nutrients in unborn children and infants was causing lower intelligence quotients (IQs). Malnutrition was becoming epidemic among those low-income children. Youngsters up to the age of six were included because it was felt that once they reached school age, their nutritional needs could be met through school lunch programs. I want to extend this program to the needy elderly.

The CSFP is the most cost-effective program of its kind because it depends heavily on volunteers and uses surplus commodities from the USDA. FOCUS HOPE alone has over 20,000 volunteers. These volunteers include truckers who transport the commodities to the center where the food packages are distributed. Other volunteers consist of doctors who write "prescriptions" for the food packages and drivers who transport the participants to and from the food centers.

According to Josaitis, it is not only housewives who volunteer at the distribution center; there are bankers, businessmen and other members of society as well.

"All these volunteers come with very creative ideas for helping low-income people," she says. "Some have organized clothing drives, while others have helped plant vegetable gardens. Recipe ideas for the commodities are also shared."

For the elderly, the advantage of this program would be the elimination of the welfare stigma. Presently, only 50 per cent of the elderly eligible for food stamps and other feeding programs participate, in large part because of the welfare stigma. CSFP has little of the red tape which is so often frustrating for seniors who apply for other assistance programs. In addition, many seniors prefer to cook in their own homes rather than going to a feeding center for meals. Transportation is provided through volunteer drivers (over 1,000 in Detroit alone).

The best thing about this program in my mind is the use of excess government commodities which the USDA buys from the farmer during periods of peak production and then distributes to the food centers. This program is not only good for the malnourished, but for the farmer too.

Commodities bought through the USDA are considerably cheaper than products bought through a retail store with food stamps. For example, grapefruit juice purchased through a retail store costs $1.17 per can as compared with 83 cents through the USDA. A complete food package purchased with food stamps costs the government $41 per person, as compared to $17.50 through CSFP. Clearly, this program is a good buy for the buck.

Many low-income elderly are poor in worldly means, but rich in spirit. They need and deserve such a program as this. And the government needs a cost-effective means to help them.

Early next year, I will be holding hearing in Minnesota to explore the possibility of extending this program to the low-income elderly in our state. Through the commodity supplemental feeding program, the elimination of elderly malnourishment in a very cost-effective manner can begin.

National Guard Members Cited For Flood Work

Some 200 Minnesota army national guard members from five separate units recently were awarded the federal humanitarian service medal (HSM) for service in flood relief operations in the Red River valley.

The Minnesota guard members, along with other military units and county and state officials, provided flood relief operations in Crookston and East Grand Forks from April 17 to May 2, 1979, when the rising Red River of the North threatened to devastate those communities. Seriousness of the situation prompted President Jimmy Carter on April 30 to declare a major disaster area to exist in the region.

The award was authorized by the department of defense for personnel from the Minnesota Guard's state headquarters detachment and the 47th Aviation battalion, both based in St. Paul, the 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry, headquartered in Moorhead, (and including Company B in Thief River Falls) and the 204th Medical battalion and the 682nd Engineer battalion, both based in Minneapolis.

Members of the units were called to emergency duty by Governor Quie on April 17 when the flood-swollen river threatened to reach record high levels. The guard members remained on the scene until May 2, when the emergency was declared over.

During the emergency period, guard members helped control traffic, patrolled streets, assisted in levee construction and transportation of people and livestock as well as providing aerial surveillance and standby equipment in the event an emergency evacuation would become necessary.

The HSM is awarded only for operations that are officially determined to be federal disaster situations or emergency assistance is requested of the military by the secretary of state. It has been awarded to guardsmen and reservists on a very limited basis. Other instances, nationally, in which guard members received the award include the Mount St. Helens volcano in Washington state and the Cuban refugee relief program conducted at various military installations.

Council Has Training Funds For Employers

Minnesota balance of state private industry council's new federal fiscal year allocation of $1,729,337 will be used to finance efforts of employers in a 51-county area to hire and train 800 disadvantaged workers, according to council member Betty Walton of Mr. Duane's in Thief River Falls.

A major part of the allocation is earmarked for training the unemployed and unskilled. Remainder is designated for projects to help businesses generate new jobs.

All employers are eligible to receive these funds.

Minnesota balance of state private industry council, Inc., consists of business and community leaders from northwestern, central and southern Minnesota.

Council fosters training not normally offered by vocational schools and which holds the promise of securing jobs for workers in private industry.

Council is financed by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Employers interested in receiving financial reimbursement for hiring and training low-income workers should contact Ray Beauchamp, Thief River Falls CETA Center, 318 North Knight Ave., Thief River Falls, MN 56701, 218-681-7350.

Businesses may also submit proposals for projects which will generate new jobs.

Energy Agency Greenhouse Study Begun

How does your garden grow?

That question is easy to answer unless you are one of a growing number of Minnesota families who are interested in adding a solar greenhouse to new or existing dwellings.

Solar greenhouses are one of the most popular but least understood energy technologies of this energy-conscious era. To learn more about this method of heating a house and producing flowers, vegetables and fruits, solar applications of the Minnesota energy agency has begun a study of solar greenhouse technology and its potential development in Minnesota.

With the help of a $10,000 grant from the Mid-American solar energy complex (MASEG) solar applications will study design, performance and the cost effectiveness of solar greenhouses in the state.

Results of the study will be used to make design recommendations and to help determine the possibility of future development of solar greenhouses in Minnesota.

Consider New Conservation Program In US

America is facing a quiet crisis. Soil erosion is robbing cropland of its fertility while increasing production costs. This is the conclusion of a three-year study by the U.S. department of agriculture.

The study was mandated by Congress in the soil and water resource conservation act of 1977 (RCA).

Highlights of the RCA appraisal indicate:

—One-third of America's cropland is eroding faster than the soil regenerates itself. Unless erosion is controlled, this land's productivity will continue to decrease.

—Floods threaten human life, property, crops and livestock. Unless corrective actions are taken, increased damage is likely.

—Deterioration of water quality limits the use of water for irrigation, municipal and industrial supply, fish and wildlife habitat.

These resource problems are analyzed in the RCA appraisal completed early in 1981 by the U.S. department of agriculture. Secretary John Block used this appraisal data to develop a preferred soil and water conservation program, which he announced in Washington, October 28.

Most of the RCA appraisal data is based on the 1977 USDA national resource inventory. This inventory is a collection of data on land uses, soil types, soil erosion rates, farmland conversion, crop rotations, and crop residue management from 200,000 sample points throughout the country.

More than 2,000 of the sample points were in Minnesota. According to Harry Major, SCS state conservationist for Minnesota, the inventory indicates that in Minnesota:

—Wind and water erode more than 100 million tons of topsoil each year.

—Nearly one-third of Minnesota's cropland is losing topsoil faster than nature replenishes it.

—Each year 49,000 acres of Minnesota farmland is converted to highways, housing developments and other permanent non-agricultural uses. One-third of this land is prime farmland — the richest and most productive land in the state.

Additional information on soil and water conditions was compiled during 1978 and 1979 when thousands of Minnesotans attended public participation meetings and provided opinions on resource conditions. Participants indicated that the major conservation needs in the state included reducing soil erosion, preserving prime farmland and decreasing toxic pollutants in the state's waters.

The RCA appraisal also drew on studies made by the department of commerce, bureau of the census, fish and wildlife service, environmental protection agency, water resources council and bureau of outdoor recreation.

Reference copies of the RCA Appraisal are available for review at local soil conservation service and agricultural stabilization and conservation service offices.

The program is available for review by the public until Jan. 15, 1982.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, there are several of us who are having some real problems with depression. Someone mentioned to me that several months ago you wrote an article on how to overcome depression; would you mind reprinting that in the paper again.

A. For many years now, depression has been the nations number one emotional illness and it is on the increase. Thousands and thousands of lives are taken every year by suicide because of depression.

Some might be inclined to dismiss such injuries as comparatively unimportant. But they are real enough and by no means trivial.

The cause and cure of depression without exception has been the concern of many a pastor, counselor, psychiatrist and psychologist.

Dr. Tim LaHaye has been a counselor for more than 25 years. As president of the Family Life Seminars, he travels more than 100,000 miles every year, teaching on emotional illnesses and how to deal with them. He has written an article on "How to overcome depression" by taking several Biblical steps:

Step 1: Begin by inviting Jesus Christ into your life. Eph. 3:16-17, Col. 1:27, Jn. 1:12.

With all due respect to the powers of your mind and will, you do not have the capacity to avoid depression without help from God. John 15:5 says without me you can do nothing. Self-motivation and other humanistic forms of self-improvement are only temporary.

Step 2: Accept God's forgiveness for your sins. I John 1:9 says "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

Step 3: Forgive those who sin against you. Matthew 6:12 says, "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."

Step 4: Accept yourself the way God made you. Thank Him for what you are and trust Him to gradually make you the person He wants you to be. Ephesians 2:10

Step 5: Always try to be positive in what you say or think. Negativism, pessimism, griping, criticism, and gossip are not only harmful but also contagious.

Philippians 4:8 says, "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there by any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

Step 6: Anticipate the superabundant life God has in store for you.

John 10:10 Jesus said, "I am come that you might have life, and might have it more abundantly."

Step 7: Give yourself to God to serve people.

The most rewarding and gratifying experiences in life come in serving people.

Acts 20:35 says "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Step 8: In everything give thanks.

I Thessalonians 5:18 says, "In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

Here are just a few of the steps that will help you overcome depression, that have been used successfully.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

THIEF RIVER FALLS PUBLIC SCHOOLS

BIG AND LITTLE of it could be the assumed names of these vehicles which rested in front of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls Thursday afternoon. According to Fred Mykleby, transportation supervisor, the trailer, constructed by the school district's mechanics in the school bus garage repair shop, will be used to carry equipment for extracurricular events such as football, hockey and band. Head mechanic is Ray Vigstol. Two 1973 school buses were salvaged to construct the trailer, at a cost less than $200. "It would have cost $3,000 to purchase an adequate trailer for this purpose," Mykleby said. The two buses were salvaged, he said, since retail prices on them didn't warrant selling them. Parts from the two buses can be used on bus models up to 1978. "Everything workable (from the buses) was kept for spare parts," he added.

CHECK FOR $47,500 was presented to the city of Thief River Falls Wednesday by the Pennington soil and water conservation district for work done by the city on Oakland Park road. Funds came from the streambank, lakeshore and roadside erosion fund and represented cost share in the $114,760 project. The project involved the installation of a concrete drop structure on County Ditch 70 at the intersection with Oakland Park road. Structure installation was to solve an extreme soil erosion problem in the area. Left to right in the photo are Jerry Wigness, city clerk-treasurer; Danny Johnson, chairman of the Pennington SWCD; Mayor Bob Carlson; and Leonard Skaar, member of the county SWCD board and a past president of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts. Mayor Carlson expressed appreciation for participation by the district and noted that the improvement was an important one for the city.

Prowlers Host Spuds Thursday

Moorhead will make a rare appearance in Thief River Falls Thursday when the Lincoln high school basketball team entertains the perennially strong Spuds in the Prowlers' 1981-82 home opener.

Last time the Spuds played here was late in the 1964-65 season when the Prowlers beat them 68-63. The two teams did not schedule each other again until last winter when Moorhead breezed to an 86-51 home court victory. They met again in the first round of the 1981 North Half Region 8AA tournament at Bemidji State University the Spuds duplicated their earlier effort with a 91-53 rout.

Thief River Falls is 2-0 for the year, but Moorhead will present the Prowlers with their first real test. Thief River Falls beat a Roseau team 39-30 that isn't expected to be a factor in the Class A North Border Conference, and the Prowlers beat a Grafton team 41-40 that features talented 6-5 Lance Anderson, but little else.

Moorhead game also marks the start of a tougher schedule for the Prowlers, who have been critcized in the past for the number of smaller Class A schools on their schedule. Thief River Falls will close out the 1981 portion of their 1981-82 schedule by participating in a four-team holiday tournament Dec. 29-30 at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC). Then after the holiday break the Prowlers' final 13 games will include 10 against Class AA competition. And the three Class A schools they'll face are all solid basketball programs: Mahnomen, Bagley and Warren.

The Prowlers would like to put on a strong performance against the Spuds to prove to their fans and themselves that they can be competitive in 1981-82 after a disastrous 4-15 finish a year ago.

Moorhead and Detroit Lakes are early season favorites in North Half Region 8AA play. In a key early season game, the Spuds lost to Little Falls 64-59 after leading 36-32 at halftime. Brian Leines, the lone Moorhead starter back from last year's Region 8AA runner-up squad, was held to three points.

Guidelines For Parents-Athletes

With the great amount of local interest in youth athletic programs, particularly in the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) program, an article appearing in the New Prague Times offering ten rules for the parents of athletic children might hit home:

+Make sure your child knows that win or lose, you love them. Let them know that you appreciate their effort and that you won't be disappointed in them if they lose. Be the persons in their life they can always look to for support.

+Try to be completely honest with yourself about your child's athletic capability, their competitive attitude, their sportsmanship and their level of skill.

+Be helpful, but don't coach your child on the way to the game or at the breakfast table. Think how tough it must be for them to be continually inundated with advance, pep talks and criticism.

+Teach your child to enjoy the thrill of competition to be "out there trying," to be constantly working to improve skills, to take the physical bumps and come back for more. Don't tell them that winning doesn't count, because it does and we all know it. Instead, help to develop a healthy competitive attitude, a "feel" for competing, for trying hard, for having a good time.

+Try not to live your life through your child. You've lost as well as won, you've been frightened, you've backed off at times, you've been the villian. Don't expect any better of them.

+Don't compete with your child's coach. A coach may become a hero to them for a while, someone who can do no wrong, and you may find that hard to take. Or your child may become disenchanted with the coach. Don't side with them against the coach. Talk to them about the importance of learning to handle problems and how to react to criticism.

+Don't compare your child with the other players on the team, at least not within hearing distance. If they have the tendency to resent the treatment they get from the coach, if they are jealous of the approval other players get, try to be honest with them. Don't lie to them about their capabilities as a player. If you are overly protective, you will perpetuate the problem.

+Get to know the coach. Make sure that you approve of his attitudes and ethics. A coach can be very influential, and you should know what their values are so that you can decide whether or not you want them passed on to your child.

+Remember that children tend to exaggerate when they are praised or when they are criticized. Temper your reaction to the stories your child brings home. Don't criticize them for exaggerating, but don't over-react to the stories they tell you.

+Teach your child the meaning of courage. Some of us can climb mountains but are frightened to get into a fight. Some of us can fight without feat but turn to jelly at the sight of a bee. Everyone is frightened of something. Courage isn't the absence of fear, but it is learning to perform in spite of fear. Courage isn't getting rid of fear; it's overcoming it.

Northmen Take Mesabi To Open 1981-82 MJCAA Hockey Slate

Northland community college hockey team was rewarded for a pair of solid performances with a two-game weekend sweep over defending Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) champion Mesabi in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

The Northmen opened their 1981-82 schedule by beating the Norsemen 11-6 Friday night and added an 8-4 victory Saturday afternoon.

Northland will remain unbeaten in MJCAA play until after the holiday break when they will return to league action with a Jan. 9-10 weekend series at Hibbing.

Northland strength — a flock of experienced forwards — matched against Mesabi weakness — inexperience on defense and in goal — resulted in an 11-6 series-opening victory for the Northmen Friday night.

Nine different Northmen scored, and eight of those nine scorers were sophomores who have a full year of MJCAA experience. Gary Usitalo and Roger Olimb finished with two goals apiece to lead the scoring parade, while Mike Schmitt, Myles Lund, Dave Lansing, Darin Olimb, Wade Hoppe, Jim Thompson and freshman defenseman Esko Salmela all added one goal.

"We had a lot of chances," acknowledged Northland coach Tom Goddard. "I would have preferred to have fewer goals against, but in a game like that you tend to get over-anxious; everybody wants to get into the act."

Brad Irvine of Two Harbors and Greg Hyppa of Eveleth had two goals apiece for the Norsemen, who gave up two quick goals but then stayed within striking range until near the end.

It looked like easy pickings when Northland's first shot on goal — an easy floater off the stick of Schmitt just 43 seconds into the first period — produced a 1-0 lead and Usitalo picked up a loose puck in the slot, slapped it past goalie Rog Summers and made it 2-0 with only 2:28 elapsed.

However, Mesabi worked the puck around sharply on a power play and Greg Pelletier scored on a close backhand at 6:46, while Irvine converted a 2-on-1 rush at 8:22 to suddenly tie it 2-2.

Summers, though, got tangled up in a mess of players in front of the Mesabi net at 17:17 and Lund had a wide-open goal mouth for the tie-breaker and less than a minute later Lansing was set up beautifully in front on a pass from the corner from Usitalo for a 4-2 game.

Northland held that lead the rest of the way, entering the final period with a 7-4 cushion. Hyppa took a rebound off Northland goalie Jeff Mongoven's mask and scored at 17:04 of the final period to pull Mesabi within 9-6, but Hoppe scored on a high hard one on a power play at 19:09 and Thompson had a wide open net for an easy goal at 19:24 when Mesabi back-up goalie Chad Sulheim lost a race to the puck.

"I don't think we played that bad," said Mesabi coach Pat Finnegan, "but we've got problems in the goals. Both of those kids are inexperienced, and we've got all new people on defense, too."

Finnegan expects the Norsemen to improve with the addition of goalie Mark Phinney, one of the top high school netminders on the Iron Range last year at Eveleth, who is transferring to Mesabi from Mankato State. Neither Summers or Zupetz were varsity netminders at Virginia high school, and they were forced into starting roles at Mesabi only when sophomore Joe Koppel, named the outstanding goaltender in last year's NJCAA national tournament for Mesabi, telephoned Finnegan this fall to tell him he was attending the College of DuPage (Ill.) this year. "That's a little late to start recruiting a goalie," mused Finnegan.

In addition to their problems on defense and in goal, the Norsemen also skated without their second line. That trio was left in Virgina for disciplinary reasons following an incident at Crookston the previous weekend.

Meanwhile, Goddard, in spite of the six goals against, was pleased with Northland's defensive play. "I thought our goaltender played well. On the goals they scored he never had a chance," he said. "Our defensemen played well, too, and all of our forwards came back hard and helped out on defense."

Northland wound up outshooting Mesabi 70-44.

Northland	8
Mesabi	4

Northland began the third period Saturday afternoon with a narrow 4-3 edge, but scored four unanswered goals in winning 8-4 to complete the weekend sweep, dropping Mesabi to 1-4 in the MJCAA.

Mike Schmitt, Dave Lansing, Murray Jorde and Tony Loeffler all scored during an 11-minute span of the third period to put the game out of reach.

"I thought we played better Saturday than we did Friday," mentioned Northland coach Tom Goddard, who was especially happy with the performance of Thief River Falls freshman Greg Harder in goal. Harder, who played just one period in goal the past two years in high school faced 49 shots, stopping 45 of them. Three of the four Mesabi goals came on power plays.

Mesabi opened the scoring when Terry Jensen pushed a power play goal under Harder at 5:31 of the opening period. But Usitalo, after a couple of near-misses, made it 2-1 Northland. The tying goal came on a power play, with another delayed penalty call awaiting the Norsemen. Usitalo slipped a hard slap shot between the post and goalie Chad Sulheim's pads at 8:53. exactly four minutes later he blasted a low drive from the face-off circle for a 2-1 game.

Jim Thompson beat Sulheim cleanly at 19:08 to end the first period scoring.

Northland's Darin Olimb and Mesabi's Marc Muhich traded goals midway through the second period, with Ted Fossum's power play goal at 18:25 pulling the Norsemen within 4-3.

But Mesabi didn't score again until 19:35 of the third period when Jeff Anderson's goal only dented an 8-3 Northland lead.

Northland Title Streak Ends At Red River Meet

String of Northland community college championship finishes in the Red River community college basketball tournament in Winnipeg ended at three Saturday night as the host Red River squad edged the Northmen 69-67 in the 1981 title game.

The results left the Northmen with a 4-1 season record. They face Lake Region Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Devils Lake, N.D. and will host Bottineau Saturday afternoon at 2.

JUDGES LOOKED on as Thief River Falls sophomore Jeff Rosetta completed a dive during Saturday's Prowler Relays in the Franklin middle school pool. Rosetta and freshman Todd Wing teamed up to provide the host Prowlers with their only first place points in the five-team, nine-event high school swimming meet won by Bemidji.

Prowler Relays Won By Jacks

Bemidji won seven of nine events Saturday to easily defend its title in the annual Prowler relays that kicked off the 1981-82 high school swimming season in the Franklin middle school pool.

The strong Lumberjacks finished with 49 points. Park Rapids was a distant second with 28 points, while Thief River Falls and Moorhead shared third place with 23 points apiece and Fosston collected 20.

Bemidji won five straight races to open the meet, taking the 200-yard freestyle, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard breaststroke, 800-yard freestyle and 200-yard butterfly.

The Lumberjacks' victory string was finally snapped when Thief River Falls' twosome of Jeff Rosetta, a sophomore, and Todd Wing, a freshman, came up with a first place finish in the diving portion of the meet.

Bemidji came back to add wins in the 200-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle, with Fosston taking the ninth event — the 600-yard individual medley.

The meet marked John Hustad's debut as coach of the Thief River Falls' boys. And the veteran coach of the Thief River Falls girls was happy with the performances of the young Prowlers, who are short on both numbers and experience.

"I was really pleased with the way some of the kids were working," said Hustad. "This team has potential; it's up to them how much potential they have. I was pleased with their performance today."

Thief River Falls' first dual meet outing of the season will be Tuesday at Bemidji, Saturday's champion who is unbeaten in dual meet competition the past two years. Meet time is 4 p.m. The Prowlers will also swim Thursday at Grand Forks Red River at 4:30 p.m.

TRAFFIC IN FRONT of the Mesabi net got a little heavy as Northland forward Mike Schmitt was dumped on top of Mesabi goalie Rog Summers in the second period of Friday's community college hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Northmen opened their 1981-82 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) schedule with an 11-6 win over the Norsemen.

Northland, BSU Skate To 4-4 Overtime Tie

Gary Usitalo, scoring two goals for the thrid straight game, notched the tying goal on a power play with just 53 seconds remaining in the third period Sunday night as the Northland community college hockey team gained a 4-4 overtime tie against the Bemidji State University junior varsity in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

It was Northland's third game in three days and gave the Northmen a 2-0-1 start for the 1981-82 season. They'll be idle until the Concordia junior varsity visits Thief River Falls for a Saturday-Sunday series, January 2-3.

Sunday's fast-paced game saw the Northmen start with a 1-0 lead on Usitalo's first goal at 13:01 of the first period.

Bemidji went ahead 2-1 in the second period on goals by Scott Monsrud — on a power play — and Greg Hudak.

Northland tied it 2-2 just 1:29 into the third period on a goal by Murray Jorde and the two teams swapped goals the rest of the way.

Bemidji's Arlen Nagle scored on a power play at 6:27, with Northland's Myles Lund matching that with a power play goal at 10:26. Monsrud's second goal of the game was a shorthanded tally less than a minute after Lund scored, with Usitalo getting the qualizer at the end.

Skippers Beat Bears 51-30

Middle River defeated Lake of the Woods 51-30 and Grygla-Gatzke edged Roseau 48-47 in a limited Friday night schedule of area high school basketball teams.

While Friday's schedule was limited, Tuesday's slate of games is busy, with Goodridge hosting Oslo, Plummer at Fisher, Marshall County Central visits Roseau, Middle River entertains Badger and Grygla-Gatzke is at home against Warroad.

A patient Lake of the Woods offensive approach to the game held down the score, but did not alter the results as favored Middle River beat the Bear 51-30.

It was just a 2-0 game entering the final moments of the first quarter when Middle River finally forced a few Lake of the Woods turnovers in grabbing a 8-4 lead as the quarter came to a close. The Skippers led 21-13 at halftime and lengthened it to 35-17 at the end of the quarter.

"We tried to get the ball game moving," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who utilized the half-court press to force the Bears into hurrying things a bit and produced some turnovers with it.

Jon Neumann and Mike Peterson scored 14 and 10 points, respectively, for the winners. Joe Krouss got 11 for the Bears.

Middle River, 2-0 for the year, shot 48 per cent from the field by hitting 21 of 44 shots and made nine of 15 free throw attempts (60 per cent). Lake of the Woods was 4-for-12 at the line (33 per cent).

Girls Beat Rams 44-34 . . .

Strong Start Carries Lincoln Past Roseau

A strong first half of basketball staked Thief River Falls to a 26-4 lead at intermission and the Prowlers coasted to a 44-34 win over Roseau Saturday in a girls high school basketball game played at Roseau.

"The first half was about as perfect as you would want," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We got good shots, and our shots would drop for us, and we played good defense."

That good defense shut Roseau out in the second quarter after Thief River Falls built a 15-4 first quarter cushion.

Second half turnovers by the Prowlers kept the game from being a rout. The Rams cut the deficit to 33-20 in the third quarter.

"We still have a lot of things we have to work on," admitted Schafer.

Tara Nicholson scored a game-high 23 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for the Prowlers, who were 19-for-45 from the field (42 per cent) but only 6-for-23 from the free throw line (26 per cent). Roseau has 13-for-64 from the field (20 per cent) and 8-for-20 at the line (40 per cent).

Thief River Fzlls, 2-1, owned a 51-34 advantage on the boards, with LeAnn Paetznick pulling down 15 rebounds. The Prowlers also topped the turnover figures 26-16.

It was a triple-win night for the Prowlers, who took the junior varsity game 27-15 for a 2-1 record and opened their freshman schedule with a 28-25 win as Stacy Kruta scored 10 points.

All three Thief River Falls teams will be in Warren Tuesday, with the freshmen playing at 5:30 p.m., junior varsity at 6:15 and varsity at 8.

SPRAWLED UNCEREMONIOUSLY on the ice, Northland community college goalie Jeff Mongoven wasn't able to come up with the puck — which hit the back of the net and came out again — in the third period of Friday's MJCAA hockey game against Mesabi in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Grey Hyppa scored the goal at 17:04 on a rebound off Mongoven's face mask, cutting Northland's lead at the time to 9-6. But the Northmen scored twice in the final minute to finish with an 11-6 victory.

Otters Edge Prowlers 6-5

Thief River Falls spotted Fergus Falls a 4-0 first period lead, rallied for a 5-5 second period tie but wound up losing a see-saw 6-5 Section 8 high school hockey game at Fergus Falls Saturday.

It was the Prowlers' second one-goal loss in as many starts this year. The Otters' record climbed to 3-1. Thief River Falls visits Bemidji Tuesday for an 8 p.m. game and will host Fargo South Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Craig Hedstrom led the Otters with a three-goal hat trick, including the game winner at 4:47 of the third period that snapped a 5-5 tie.

Hedstrom also opened the scoring at 3:47 of the first period, with Vic Evavold, Joe Cranston and Jason Wentler also scoring for the Otters. Evavold and Cranston scored on power plays, while Wentler got the Otters' fourth goal of the opening period with just 37 seconds remaining.

But just when it looked like it was going to be a long night for the Prowlers, they suddenly turned on their offense and tied it 4-4 in the first 8:59 of the second period. Each line got a goal in cutting the deficit to 4-3 as Tim Bottem scored at the 31-second mark, Tim Bergland followed up at 1:02 and Jim Dillon scored at 6:47. Tom Ose got the equalizer at 8:59.

But that's when Cranston, a junior wing, appeared on the scene again, putting the Otters ahead 5-4 at 10:27.

The second period ended in a 5-5 draw when Steve Wiskow scored with 1:40 to play.

Paul Wennberg finished with 20 saves in the Thief River Falls nets while Russ Pastir had 18 saves for Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls built a 3-0 first period lead in winning the junior varsity game 4-2. Jerry Hallamek, Jeff Milender and Jeff Matson secored first period goals for the winners, with Bob Huot making it 4-0 in the second period.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The Pee-Wee A's and the Bantam A's would like to say a big thank you to all the people who have volunteered their services and time in fixing up the "Old Arena."

Over the past three years the following has been accomplished: Repaired the boards, built a new concession stand, put plexiglass on the north end for excellent viewing and also along the boards, remodeled the entrance and the warming room and installed new score board.

The latest accomplishment has been the installation of the artificial ice plant.

So many have given of their time and donations to give a 'face lift' to the old arena and now with artificial ice it can be used and enjoyed early in the season. It's impossible to reach each and everyone of you personally so hopefully this will reach all of you. It's great to see what can be done when a great group gets together. Thank you for your contribution to youth hockey.

DNR NEWS

Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander has announced that payments totalling $679,930.25 have been made to 35 Minnesota counties by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) on income derived from state forest lands and consolidated conservation lands within their boundaries during fiscal year 1981.

Payments are calculated based on the following formula:

(1) Fifty per cent of revenue derived from state forest lands (sale of state land, timber sales, lease payments, easements and other sources).

(2) Fifty per cent of revenue derived from consolidated conservation land (land sales, leases, timber sales, easements and other sources).

By law, counties receiving consolidated conservation funds are required to apportion 30 per cent to a county development fund for rehabilitation and development of the portion of the county lying within the conservation area; 40 per cent to the capital outlay fund of the school district from which derived; 20 per cent to the county revenue fund; and 10 per cent to the township road and bridge fund of the township from which derived — provided, however, that in the event the proceeds are derived from an unorganized township wherein there is no levy for road and bridge purposes, the township portion shall be credited to the county revenue fund.

In addition to these payments, counties receive payments for public hunting grounds; land acquired by the DNR through purchase, condemnation, or gift; land owned by the state and administered by DNR; and tax-forfeited lands owned by the state and administered by DNR.

These payments to the counties are in addition to payments in lieu of taxes made earlier this year in the amount of $4.7 million.

Funds are used for forest management, game and fish habitat improvement, recreational development and improvement, property tax relief, maintenance of county administered and other natural resource land, and the county general fund.

State forest fund — Aitkin county $833.96; Becker $24,480.34; Beltrami $2,983.31; Carlton $7,517.23; Cass $18,663.71; Clearwater $2,395.65; Cook $223.05; Dodge $7.50; Crow Wing $154.00; Fillmore $18,636.73; Goodhue $4,014.32; Houston $19,558.27; Hubbard $22,172.42; Itasca $15,323.29; Kanabec $1,527.48; Kittson $10.00 Koochiching $22,977.56; Lake $191.96; Lake of the Woods $121.76; Mahnomen $3,055.73; Mille Lacs $876.90; Nicollet $4.00; Norman $44.50; Olmsted $516.00; Pennington $416.50; Pine $26,892.28; Polk $14.00; Roseau $2,847.28; St. Louis $13,754.35; Sherburne $2,666.60; Steele $15.00; Wabasha $48,962.04; Wadena $44,482.93; Winona $9,585.41.

Stumped for an idea on what to buy someone for Christmas who likes to camp, hike, ski, fish or canoe? How about a 1982 vehicle permit for Minnesota state parks.

The colorful windshield sticker would make a perfect addition to a gift of outdoor recreation equipment, the Department of Natural Resources suggested.

All of these outdoor recreation pursuits — and more — are available in the 65 state parks operated by the DNR's division of parks and recreation, points out Don Davison, division director.

"For only $10 the purchaser obtains a permit that allows the entrance of a motor vehicle and all its passengers into all of the parks throughout the entire year," he said.

"It is difficult to think of any other gift that offers so much opportunity for healthful outdoor fun at so small a price.

"In fact," said Davison, "permits bought now are valid through the balance of 1981 and through December 31, 1982."

To make it easy, the DNR will mail the permit with a gift enclosure in your name to those on your gift list. Just send a check to "Seasons", P.O. Box 3835, St. Paul, MN 55165 along with your own name and a list of names and addresses of the people to whom the permits are to be sent.

Permits are $10 for Minnesota residents, $5 for state senior citizens, and $15 for out-of-state residents. Checks should be made payable to the "State of Minnesota".

Additional information on the gift permits can be obtained by calling (612) 296-4776.

Many smaller Minnesota lakes and marshes have frozen over for the winter but ice is still dangerously thin on most of them, the Department of Natural Resources warned.

Recent low temperatures have resulted in ice on many shallow lakes and ponds but many of the larger lakes, especially in the southern half of the state remain open or carry only a partial layer of ice, according to DNR field personnel.

No one should venture out on the ice anywhere without testing its thickness and motor vehicle travel on the ice should be delayed. Parents especially are urged to caution their children about the dangers of thin ice.

Kim Elverum, DNR boat and water safety coordinator, noted that it will take at least several week of near-zero nighttime temperatures before ice will be thick enough for safe travel. Generally, it takes about four inches of ice for ice fishing on foot, five inches for snowmobile travel and at least 8-12 inches for a passenger car.

Even then, Elverum cautioned outdoor recreationists that ice does not freeze to a uniform thickness, "In one location on a lake, the ice may be a foot thick, while 10 feet away because of current, a spring or schooling of fish, it may be only an ich thick."

During the past two winters 34 persons died as a result of ice-related accidents in Minnesota.

National Wildlife Federation News Release

If you think getting jabbed by a hypodermic needle is a tough treatment, how would you like to eat a spider-and-butter sandwich?

That's what some doctors prescribed 500 years ago when their patients ran a high fever, according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's nature magazine.

Spiders were a common "remedy" among early practitioners of the healing arts, says the National Wildlife Federation's monthly magazine for children. Some incurables got a menu of spiders wrapped in raisins. Other stickly people were told to carry spiders around with them in boxes or nutshells.

If the spiders themselves didn't produce a cure, some doctors put their faith in spider webs. Wads of spider webs were fashioned into bandages for wounds, and persistent fevers were treated with mixtures of frogs' eggs and spider webs.

In fact, says the NWF magazine, Little Miss Muffet should have been quite accustomed to spiders by the time one sat down beside her in the old nursery rhyme. Her father, a doctor, kept plenty of spiders around the house to protect his family from disease. He fed his daughter pills made from spiders whenever she took ill.

Spiders signify not only good health, but also good luck and good weather to many people around the world, Ranger Rick reports. One legend has it that finding a spider on your clothes will bring good luck. On the other hand, according to the same legend, squishing a spider will bring bad luck.

Some farmers maintain that spiders can tell you when good weather is on its way. Among the signs they look for are garden spiders sitting in the center of their webs, spiders crawling around, or an abundance of the silky gossamer that spiders use to transport themselves on windy days. Like sails on boats, the gossamer sheets catch the wind and carry the spider aloft. It's a sign that clear days are coming, according to some fans of the creepy, eight-legged creatures.

Spiders are worth having around, their admirers say, because they eat so many insects. China is one country that has begun using squadrons of spiders to control populations of harmful insects that damage rice crops.

So think twice before you step on the next spider that crawls through your home. He may come in handy on the next rainy day when you're sick at home and out of luck.

DNR Will Ask Sportsmen To Report Success

Department of Natural Resources is seeking the cooperation of 22,000 hunters and trappers who will be receiving questionnaires from the DNR about their hunting and trapping success this season.

Wildlife chief Roger Holmes said information from the annual survey is essential in evaluating the success of the 1981 seasons and in planning future seasons.

Persons who receive the questionnaires are selected at random. Holmes asked those who receive them to fill them out accurately, answering all the questions and returning them promptly.

He said that even those who receive the questionnaires but did not hunt or trap should fill our the form and return it since this information is needed to determine the take of game animals.

Holmes said there has been a drop in the response rate to the questionnaires in recent years even though people who do not return them are sent several reminders. He noted that state law requires that the questionnaires be filled out and returned.

Lichens, composed of both algae and fungi, can flourish in temperatures minus 450 degrees Fahrenheit and live where the air is twice as hot as boiling waters.

"We had the opportunity to win it, but we couldn't make the baskets," confirmed Northland coach Chet Engelman. "It was a good tournament. We just didn't shoot well at all."

Northland again had balanced scoring as Mark Simon scored 15 points, Matt Fontes, a member of the five-player all-tournament team, had 14, Duncan Gregory 12, Kyle Hams 12 and Derek Stokes 10.

The Northmen were 27-for-83 from the field (32 per cent) and 13-for-19 from the free throw line (68 per cent). Red River was 31-for-74 from the floor (42 per cent) and 7-for-13 from the line (54 per cent). Northland continued to outrebound opponents with a 65-46 edge on the boards.

Goodridge Rally Falls Short In Loss To Oslo

Goodridge, after scoring just six points through the first three quarters, exploded for 21 fourth quarter points Thursday but still came up one point short in a 28-27 girls high school basketball game loss at Oslo.

The Bobcats owned a 5-2 first quarter lead, carried an 11-2 edge into halftime and had a 19-6 cushion going into the final eight minutes before the Huskies rallied.

"The first half was really slow," admitted Goodridge coach Georgine Troska. "We came out in the fourth quarter and decided to play basketball. It was a good team effort," she said of the rally in which the Huskies used a full-court press to force the Bobcats into numerous turnovers.

Goodridge could have won it, too, but the Huskies missed eight fourth quarter free throws.

Mary Jo Kiesow of Goodridge and Renee Wilkins of Olso shared game-high scoring honors with 10 points apiece.

Neither team shot well. Goodridge was 9-for-40 from the field (23 per cent) and Oslo was 10-for-40 (25 per cent). The Huskies also had trouble at the free throw line where they were 9-for-21 (43 per cent). The Bobcats were 8-for-12 at the line (67 per cent).

Winless in three starts, Goodridge plays at Grygla tonight (Monday) and visits Plummer Thursday.

MCC 52
Badger 33

Featuring balanced scoring, Marshall County Central ran its record to 4-0 Thursday to a 52-33 victory over Badger at Newfolden.

Nine different Nordics scored, led by Jill Johnson with 12 points.

"I was really pleased with our balanced scoring," noted winning coach Tom Mjelde, who also praised the play of Shelly Anderson, who came off the bench to score seven points, grab six rebounds and come up with five steals, and Julie Gustafson, who led the Nordics with 12 rebounds.

Marshall County Central was kept busy taking 87 shots, making 25 of them for a 29 per cent shooting figure. Badger took 50 shots, made 12 for a 24 per cent mark. The Nordics struggled from the free throw line, going just 2-for-10 (20 per cent), while the Rockets were 9-for-15 (60 per cent). Marshall County Central outrebounded Badger 43-38, getting 26 off the offensive boards.

The Nordics host rival Middle River Friday to close out a season-opening five-game homestand.

Plummer 33

Plummer struggled through a 10-for-45 shooting night (19 per cent) Thursday and lost a 39-33 home court decision to Fisher.

Despite their shooting problems, the Cardinals were still in the game at the end, trailing just 35-33 with under three minutes remaining. But they continued to miss their shots, and Fisher sank four free throws down the stretch to sew it up.

"They didn't give up," noted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, whose club trailed 33-35 at the end of the third quarter.

Bonnie Fisher led the Cardinals with 17 points, while Caroline Love had 16 for the Flyers.

Fisher was 15-for-53 from the field (45 per cent) and 9-for-18 from the free throw line (50 per cent). Plummer made 13 of 22 free throws (59 per cent).

Plummer, 1-2, is scheduled to visit Strandquist tonight (Monday) and travel to Goodridge Thursday.

Grygla-Gatzke 33
Middle River 27

Grygla-Gatzke struggled past Middle River 33-27 Thursday, and coach Bill Radeunz was far from happy with the Eagles' performance against the youthful Skippers.

"It was the worst game we've played in years," reported Radeunz. "We looked absolutely terrible. We didn't pass; we didn't dribble; we didn't shoot; we didn't play defense; we didn't do anything."

Except win the game. The results left the Eagles 3-1 for the year while the Skippers slipped to 1-2.

Grygla-Gatzke owned an 11-5 first quarter lead, but had that trimmed to 15-12 at halftime. It was 24-18 after three quarters.

Sheri Anderson had 11 points and 16 rebounds for the Eagles. Paula Rantanen led the Skippers with 10 points.

Shooting figures were poor on both sides as Grygla-Gatzke made just 12 of 50 shots (24 per cent) and Middle River sank only eight of 47 attempts (17 per cent). The Eagles were 9-for-22 at the free throw line (41 per cent), with the Skippers 11-for-22 at the line (50 per cent). Grygla-Gatzke owned a 44-32 rebound edge.

Grygla-Gatzke hosts rival Goodridge tonight (Monday) to close out its pre-holiday schedule. Middle River plays at Greenbush Tuesday and at Marshall County Central Friday.

Job Service Matches Jobs And Workers

Job service is Minnesota's largest single resource for matching jobs and workers. In 1980, Job service registered 134,652 non-agricultural job openings, place 93,114 people openings, place 93,112 people in non-agricultural jobs and 27,573 in agricultural jobs, according to J.K. Stadum, manager of the Thief River Falls office of the Minnesota department of economic security.

"Heart of the placement operation is 'Job Bank', a computer assisted system that provides job seekers with information about job openings available in all Minnesota communities," Stadum said.

Employers can list their job openings with Job Bank by calling the nearest Job service office. Only qualified applicants who are referred for interviews are given the name and address of the employer who has registered a job opening.

Stadum added that a counseling service for job seekers is an integral part of the benefits provided by Job service. Counselors give special attention to applicants who need help in overcoming obstacles in their search for a job. Counselors assess work skills and help the applicants develop plans for finding satisfying occupations. People with special needs are often assisted in relocating to new areas of work. In 1980, Job service counselors throughout Minnesota held 20,700 interviews as part of their effort to offer specialized services.

The local Job service office will be closed on December 25 and January 1 for the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Quie Proposal To Affect MN Counties

"Governor Quie's proposal will have an $89 million impact in counties, annually," Morrie Anderson, association of Minnesota counties, told the House taxes committee recently. "Of that total, 175 million is in areas where there's limited county ability to cut back."

That could mean, according to Ramsey county commissioner Robert Orth, property tax increases of up to 75 per cent for counties to pick up funding for programs that might suffer state cuts or reductions.

Minneapolis Mayor Don Fraser said state cuts made up 7 per cent of the city's operating budget, and to make up for the loss of that money the city may have to raise property taxes 57 per cent on the average home.

Taxes committee will be looking at the effect actions to solve the $768 million budget problem may have on local property taxes.

Local and urban affairs committee on December 2 heard and recommended passage of a bill that would guarantee payment of $78 million per month in local government aids the governor has withheld for November and December, because of the cash shortage.

Bill also gives local governments short-term borrowing authority for those two months and requires the state to pay interest on withheld aids.

House taxes committee will hear the bill next.

Good Roads Told Era Of Support Over

With the era of massive federal funding support for state roads over, Minnesota transportation officials will have to stretch budgets and look for alternative funding sources, a national transportation officials told members of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. at their annual meeting in Bloomington.

"It's not a good news picture I have to share with you", said featured speaker Francis. B. Francois, executive director of the American association of state highway and transportation officials (AASHTO) of Washington, D.C

Federal budgetary restraints this year will result in a reduction of federal highway aid beginning next year, Francois said. Whereas before the federal government provided 75 per cent of all state highway construction funds, it will now supply only 50 per cent.

A consolidation of the federal aid highway program will result in some cost efficiencies, Francois said. 'but AASHTO estimates that next year's program needs call for a budget of $12 billion. Congress is more likely to appropriate about $8 billion for the national program, he said.

Minnesota's share of the 1982 total will be $133 million, compared with $184 million allocation this year.

Before Francois spoke at the meeting, a panel of Minnesota leaders discussed alternative methods for funding state roads. "Don't just talk about what users can afford", argued Merle Hedland, executive director of the Minnesota association of what growers. "Ask what the state and its subdivisions can pay, too. We all benefit from roads."

Roads funding sources other than through the state's already overburdened general fund will have to be found, said William Faulkner, a member of the Minnesota business partnership. He suggested the state consider increasing the gas tax, imposing a one-cent tax on new vehicle sales, and enacting a toll-road system for major intrastate highways.

The state must prioritize its roads, Raulkner added. Perhaps the least-traveled roads should be abandoned, he suggested, while the essential routes are maintained in "A-1 shape".

"We will have to make some route selections", agreed James N. Denn, president of the Minnesota motor transportation association.

A program should be initiated to make urban Minnesotans realize the important benefits to the state of maintaining roads outside the urban area, said John Himle, executive director of the Minnesota agri-growth council. Agriculture accounts for 45 per cent of the state's gross product, Himle noted.

The panel discussion was moderated by Steve Alnes, executive director of the Upper Midwest Council.

Budget Plan Brought Before Legislators

Acting finance commissioner Vic Vikmanis brought the governor's proposal to cut state spending and deal with the budget deficit before the House Appropriations Committee recently.

The $767.6 million deficit results from shortfalls in predictions of tax income for the state, welfare expenditures over budget, new federal tax breaks, layments and deficits from last year, and interst on the loan which helped the state over a cash flow problem this summer.

Vikmanis said the governor proposes to solve the shortfall by asking the Legislature to cut state agency and institution budgets 11.8 per cent, reduce the homestead tax credit to homeowners, delay payments to school districts and local governments, and borrow another $240 million to keep the state in the black.

Governor's proposal would establish an aids stabilization authority to help schools and local governments over the hump. Stabilization authority would issue bonds and use the state's credit rating to loan money to local units.

Proposal would exempt corrections from cuts due to potential effect on public safety. Welfare, school aids, and veterans' homes would get a 5.9 per cent cut instead of the 11.8 per cent cut.

These exemptions mean the Legislature would have to trim budgets and staffing under each of the other areas 12.4 per cent to reach an overall 11.8 per cent cut.

Most staff cuts, Vikmanis said, will happen through attrition and a hiring freeze.

Appropriations divisions have begun hearings on effects of budget proposals.

The first city-wide general strike took place in Seattle in 1919, when approximately 60,000 worker refused to go to work in support of striking metal trades' workers seeking a wage increase, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Labor Firsts in America."

A TOUGH QUESTION faces this youngster as Santa Claus questions, "And what do you want for Christmas this year?" Santa visited with youngsters Saturday in the chamber of commerce building in Thief River Falls before making stops at various other sites in preparation for Christmas. Answers to his questions ranged all the way from dolls and trucks to kittens and puppies.

"A FARM SET; but not a real farm set; a zoo," one child exclaimed as he recited the list of items he wanted for Christmas this year to Santa. Area youngsters had an opportunity to visit with Santa Claus in the chamber of commerce building in Thief River Falls Saturday, before the jolly fellow continued his journey before Christmas.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving memory of our beloved mother, Selma McCullough who died December 13, 1980:

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in days that used to be;
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven that happy life.

Sadly missed by her loving family, husband, children, and grandchildren. 1t97p

Let's Go Flying . . .

Helmets, Goggles, Fur Suits, Not Uncommon

by Rita C. Bobowski
Smithsonian News Service

"Take me up in an aeroplane, far from the maddening crowds.

I'm sick and tired of motor cars. I want to chase thro' the clouds.

Take me up higher and higher and higher for I always wanted to be a flier.

We'll be all to the merry up in your air ferry, take me up in an aeroplane."

1910 by Konisky Music Co.

The pleasant refrain of this 1910 song not withstanding, those early years of flying were fraught with many hazards and difficulties. Open cockpits let in sunshine and fresh air aplenty, but they also let in gusty winds, driving rains and even ice and snow. While braving the elements in a Curtiss Rusher of a Bleriot, pilots also had to contend with the deafening roar from their engines, oil splatters and even bugs between their teeth.

To help protect them in the air, these hardy aviators used whatever clothing was available and could do the job. Some wore leather football helmets; others draped themselves in wool or silk mufflers. Goggles and long leather coats intended for down-to-earth motorcyclists served double duty in the wild blue yonder.

The Wright brothers dressed for flying much as they would for a day at the office — stiff white collars, neckties, business suits and bowlers.

Not until 1911 did specially designed flight clothing make its debut, with sports manufacturers such as the Spaulding Co. in the forefront. But it didn't take long to catch on. By 1913, entire catalogs devoted to flying clothes and equipment began to appear. With the advent of World War I, flight clothing was in great demand and manufacturers hurried to provide army aviators with comfortable, year-round apparel.

One standard item for any pilot was the flying suit, often worn over a military uniform. "Until the end of World War II, more effort was spent on the development of a winter flying suit than on any other flight garment," says Glen Sweeting, curator of flight material at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C. "Pilots were looking for warth as well as flexibility and light weight."

Since flying was a relatively new experience, early flight suits were based on already existing clothing. Popular designs took their cue from outfits worn by trappers, arctic explorers and Eskimos. New concepts, such as designing sleeves and pant legs to close tightly to keep out the cold air, evolved slowly.

One clever way to combat the cold — an electrically heated suit — was developed by the French in World War I, according to Sweeting, whose book, "Combat Clothing; Army Air Forces Flying Clothing in World War II," will be published next year. This certainly kept the pilot warm — although it was sometimes a shocking experience.

"In the early designs, certain areas of the suit were heated — the elbows and knees, for example," Sweeting says. "These versions were heated by batteries, but later the suits were wired to an electric generator attached to the plane's engine.

"Unfortunately, the wires in the suit were not flexible enough. They often broke and sometimes short-circuited, causing fires."

Electric suits were rather undependable until 1944, when new metal alloys that allowed more flexibility and greater strength were introduced.

Because electrically heated suits were unreliable, many manufacturers in the early days concentrated on fur-lined clothing. But this also proved a problem: There was not enough good quality fur in the United States to use as lining.

To help ease the shortage, manufacturers began importing Nuchwang dog-fur mats from China in 1918. The dog fur helped insulate winter flying suits during the latter days of World War I and in the 1920s, but was finally discontinued in 1931 for a variety of reasons: its extreme bulk and weight (up to 16 pounds), its offensive odor, its tendency to shed and, not least, its tendency to become — like man's best friend — a bit buggy.

During the period between the wars, advances in the manufacture of aviation clothing were determined in large part by the progress made in military aircraft. As planes flew faster and at higher altitudes, improved flying clothes and assessories became necessary.

The search for a warm flight suit continued into the 1940s. Some designs employed corduroy or leather on the outside with blanket material on the inside. Others were lined with such fabrics as silk, while still others used alpaca, llama or nutria fur to provide warmth.

Flying suits made from shearling, or the pelts of sheep, were used during World War II, but they soon proved too bulky and cumbersome in the constrained area of a modern cockpit or gun turrent. Shearling suits were later replaced by multi-layer fabric suits with alpaca pile lining.

Demands of world-wide combat operations during World War II further accelerated the development of flight clothing. "During World War II," Sweeting explains, "the Army Air Forces were operating in all types of climate, at all altitudes, in every part of the globe. Proper clothing was a vital part of the war effort.

"In fact, according to one wartime report, during the winter of 1943-44, when the war in Europe was at its height, one item more than any other determined the number of American bombers going out on a combat mission. It was not the number of enemy aircraft, not the weather, not the shortage of planes, crews or parts. Rather, it was whether adequate flight clothing was available!"

In addition to flight suits, protective gloves for pilots and crewmen were also important, especially at high altitudes, where temperatures below -50 F are not unusual. The air coming through the windows of a B-17 bomber could freeze a gunner's unprotected hands in less than two minutes.

It was not until 1942 that rayon gloves worn under a pair of heavier, fur-lined gloves were introduced. This design, considered a major breakthrough, enabled a crewman to pull off the outer glove to adjust an instrument or weapon without having his bare fingers freeze to the icy metal. As with flight suits, the concept of multi-layer wear worked best.

At the other end, good flying shoes, or boots, were essential. Not only did adequate footwear prevent frostbite in colder climates, but proper shoes were vital for walking any distance over rough ground, a must for fliers who might be shot down over enemy territory.

Men, however, did not hold a monopoly on flight fashions. During World War II, when women took to the air as Women's Airforce Service Pilots (WASPs) and as flight nurses, they first wore clothing made for men but issued in a smaller size. Not surprisingly, the clothing did not fit properly and had to be redesigned to accommodate the feminine form with its smaller shoulders and broader hips. Results were hardly Fifth Avenue but then again, "the women weren't looking for style," Sweeting points out. "They were interested in practical, comfortable flight clothes."

Sweeting, who has been studying and collecting flight material since he was a boy, has spent 30 years acquiring information for his book on American military flight clothing.

"It's interesting," he notes, "that of the millions of words written about World Warr II, not one book deals with U.S. Army flight clothing. Yet, flight clothing was of the utmost importance during World War II and it remains of vital concern to aviators today."

Invite Comment On Program Of Conservation

U.S. Department of agriculture (USDA) is asking Minnesotans to comment on a preferred soil and water conservation program that Secretary John Block announced on October 28.

"The preferred conservation program has some substantial changes from the present program," said Harry Major, Minnesota state conservationist for USDA's soil conservation service. "The top national soil and water conservation priorities would be reduction of soil erosion and reduction of flood damage in upstream areas so, if this program is adopted by the administration and congress, USDA financial and technical assistance would be directed to critical erosion and flood prone areas of Minnesota and other states."

The critical areas and program priorities would be developed by local and state conservation coordinating boards. Staffing for these boards would come from existing organizations — Soil and water conservation district boards, agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committees, extension advisory boards and other groups.

Under the preferred program, funding for conservation would be available to states through USDA matching block grants. Current federal conservation program funds would be reduced in order to make such grants available.

The preferred program is the culmination of extensive appraisal of the nation's soil and water conditions, mandated by the soil and water resources conservation act (RCA) of 1977. RCA requires USDA to "appraise continuously" the nation's soil and water conditions, and establish policy programs.

The program is explained in an RCA program report available for review in local soil conservation service and agriculture stabilization and conservation services offices. A summary leaflet which contains a form for responding to the proposals is also available from these offices.

Responses will be accepted from the public until January 15. The responses will be summarized by the soil conservation service and a report prepared for the secretary of agriculture. Findings will be used to shape the soil and water conservation program that the secretary recommends to the President and congress.

GTA Notes Record Sales, Grain Volume

Record high sales and a record grain volume for fiscal year ending last May 31 were announced recently by the Grain Terminal association (GTA), Upper Midwest grain marketing and processing cooperative.

GTA President B.J. Malusky told a crowd of 3,000 delegates and patrons attending the co-op's annual meeting in Minneapolis that GTA had achieved sales of almost $2.5 billion on a grain handle of 459 million bushels. Both figures are substantial increases over the previous year's sales of $2 billion and a handle of 419 million bushels.

Although sales were up, Malusky said the cost of product and costs of doing business reduced per-bushel margins and cut annual earnings to $19.6 million from $28 million in fiscal 1979-80.

Larger grain volume and higher operating costs increased borrowings and increased interest costs alone to a new record $31 million, he said.

Despite economic pressures for the year, Malusky said GTA made good progress. He reported expenditures of $37 million for expansions and improvements. At the year end, long term debt was $69 million. Assets were reported at $565 million and patron equity at $186 million.

Although overall grain sales were higher, Malusky said, sales of wheat fell below the previous year's pace. That reduction was more than offset by a corn handle of almost 100 million bushels, an increase of more than a third over the 1979-80 figure.

State-by-state, Minnesota was the top GTA shipper with over 180 million bushels of grain. North Dakota was second with 105 million. As a reflection of recent developments in GTA's West Coast marketing activity, Washington state moved into fifth spot of all states who market grain through GTA. Other Western states increased their business with GTA as well.

GTA will return more than $8 million in cash to patrons, down 18 per cent from last year's $9.9 million cash refund, Malusky said. During its 43 years of existence GTA has compiled earnings of $227 million, with more than $87 million paid back to farmers and their estates.

In Hazardous Waste Disposal Site Study . . .

Test Hole Drilling Is Now Completed On Area Sites

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Final touches in test drilling of potential hazardous waste disposal sites in northwestern Minnesota were applied today when the last hole was expected to be completed in the East Park wildlife management area northwest of Middle River.

Drilling had previously been completed at two other sites in Marshall county and one each in Kittson and Beltrami counties. At the East Park site, drilling on the deep hole and the final 100-foot hole were started Monday morning. The 100-foot hole was completed Tuesday and the deep drillers had reached 295 feet by Tuesday night but failed to strike bedrock.

"Hopefully we'll hit it tomorrow," stated geologist Dale Setterholm in a phone conversation with the Times last night. "The deepest hole we have drilled at any of the sites was 357 feet in Beltrami county, and there we didn't hit true bedrock, but weathered rock which was tough enough to cause us to quit."

From this area the drilling crews move on to Clay county where there are four sites to drill, Setterholm said. The Marshall, Kittson, Beltrami and Clay county sites are among 20 candidate sites in Minnesota for establishment of a hazardous waste disposal facility. Analysis of drilling results is expected to be completed in time to allow the Minnesota waste management board to reduce the candidate sites to six by May of 1982.

Setterholm explained that with every hole drilled there is an analysis made with a down-hold geophysical probe. The probe is lowered to the bottom of the hole and electrical impulses monitored on a graph to indicate the density of the soil for the entire depth of the hole.

Core (split tube) soil samples are sent to Soil Testing Services, Inc., of Minneapolis for analysis. These core samples are taken at five to 10-foot intervals to the first 50 feet of depth and 10 to 15-foot intervals at the next 50 feet. Cuttings (soil caught with a screen as it is pumped out of the hole) are taken to the Minnesota Geological Survey laboratory associated with the University of Minnesota where the soil is analyzed and a log prepared.

Allan Shilepsky, hazardous waste coordinator for the waste management board, reported on the drilling progress to the waste management board during its December meeting in Thief

DEEP WELL RIG is set up across the road from the south side parking area of the East Park wildlife management area northwest of Middle River to conduct testing for the Minnesota waste management board. As this photo was taken Monday afternoon, the drillers had reached 34 feet in their effort to drill to bedrock. By Tuesday night they had reached 295 feet without touching bedrock. As the drill bites into the earth, samples of the material pumped out are caught in a mesh strainer, bagged and tagged for further study. Results of the analysis will be used in determining the siting of a hazardous waste disposal facility in Minnesota by Jan. 1, 1984. Geologist Jim Dalsin is at left in the photo with Glenn Holmen operating the rig for Ingleside Engineering of Rockford.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jani Swanson Weds Michael Wiebolt At Zion

Zion Lutheran church in this city was the scene of the recent ceremony uniting Jani Swanson and Michael Wiebolt in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Swanson of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wiebolt, also of Thief River Falls.

Officiating at the ecumenical ceremony were Rev. Roger Hanson, pastor at the church, and Rev. Dave Super of St. Bernard's Catholic church. Mrs. Vernon Nelson, cousin of the bride, was the organist. She played "Nadia's Theme," for the processional, and the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Mrs. Nina Nilson, a friend of the bride, and Deland Elseth, a cousin of the bride, sang "Colour My World," "Follow Me," "Sunrise, Sunset," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

On either side of the altar were 14-branch candelabra with lavender bows, matching the bows that marked the pews. The altar arrangement featured gladioli and assorted flowers.

For her wedding, the bride selected an Alfred Angelo designed gown with Venice lace accenting the Queen Ann neckline, the molded bodice and long, sheer sleeves. The full shirt with an overlay of Venice lace, was edged with a pleated flounce edged with lace. Matching lace trimmed her wide brimmed hat, turned up on one side. She carried a cascade of Phalaenopis orchids, white sweetheart roses and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Kathi Jo Hess of Irvine, Calif., a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Elaine Charlson, Washington, D.C.; Teresa Munt, Mrs. Nancy Olson, Debbie Reierson, all of Thief River Falls, and Mary Kay Winjum, Grand Forks, N.D. All are friends of the bride. Their identical, spaghetti strap gowns of lavender qiana, were fashioned with accordion pleated skirts and cap-sleeve jackets tied at the waistline. In their hair, they wore Phalaenopis orchids, matching the white orchids in their nosegays. Greenery and flowing streamers completed the nosegays.

The groom, in a white tuxedo with tails, was attended by Murray Semanko, as best man. Groomsmen were Mark and Scott Wiebolt, brothers of the groom; Hal Swanson, brother of the bride, Mike Barry, St. Cloud, and Marqus Doppler, Bismarck, N.D., friends of the groom. Ushers were Steve Wiebolt, Ogema, a cousin of the groom, Paul Wurst, Minneapolis, Darrel Gustafson, Minneapolis, and Brent Halverson, Grand Forks, friends of the groom. The groom's attendants wore light gray tuxedos with tails, lavender tipped, white ruffled shirts and white Phalaenopis orchid boutonnieres. The ushers and the fathers wore light grey tuxedos with white bent collared shirts and ascots.

The mother of the bride was attired in a mint green, empire fashioned gown with a V-neckline, long sleeves and an accordion pleated skirt with a ruffled flounce. Complementing her gown were a gold necklace, beige accessories and a corsage of white gardenias and Sweetheart roses. The groom's mother wore a burgundy gown with a V-neckline and sheer bell sleeves. Her accessories included gold chains at the neckline and wrists, burgundy shoes and a corsage, similar to the one worn by the bride's mother.

Honor guests were Mrs. Katherine Swanson, Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Elseth, Newfolden, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiebolt, Melrose, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Zeman, West Palm Beach, Fla., grandparents of the groom; Paula Schlaht, Virginia, and Kathy McLaughlin, Fargo, N.D., the bride's personal attendants.

Approximately 400 relatives and friends attended the ceremony and reception that followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Semanko, friends of the couple. Kelsy Richards registered the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Olson served the punch, and Karen Richards and Deanna Hanson were at the gift table.

The three-tiered wedding cake, supported by filigreed pillars, was iced in white with lavender flowers and topped with a moonlight snow ornament. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Senora Elseth, Newfolden, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Betty Wiebolt, Bemidji, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Lillian Richards and Mrs. Lois Wiebolt, also aunts of the bride and groom, were at the coffee service.

Following a wedding trip to the Lake of the Woods area, the couple is now at home at Burnsville at 2525 County Road 34, number 104. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school. The bride, a graduate of NDSU, Fargo, is a registered nurse, and is attending Moorhead State University. Yule Program At Valley Home Given By WCTU

Thief River Falls Alice Mae Stuart Woman's Christian Temperance Union annual Christmas meeting was held Friday afternoon at the Valley Home.

Rev. Lloyd Heroff of the Calvary Lutheran church, St. Hilaire, was in charge of the program, in the absence of President Mrs. Tarkel Ose, who was hospitalized. He read Isaiah 7:10-17, prophesying the birth of the Saviour, and Matthew 1:18-25, an account of the birth of Jesus. In his devotional meditation, "Good News of the Christmas message," he said that "God has sent His Son to be our Saviour. Let us trust God and rejoice. If we look, we will discover the gold that is in God's message and our lives will be forever enriched."

The program also included the Christmas carols, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," with Mrs. Ethel Johnson serving as accompanist.

Prior to the program, the members signed Christmas greeting cards. They also served Christmas goodies to the residents and staff at Valley Home. A number of residents remained for the program and participated in singing carols.

Quitters And Smokers Have Lot In Common

In Minnesota at least, the average cigarette smoker and the average ex-smoker have a lot in common, according to a new state health department survey.

Both took up the habit at about age 18, eventually ended up smoking about a pack of cigarettes a day, and have tried to quit smoking several times.

Former smokers had tried to quit about four times before they finally succeeded, on the average, about ten years ago.

Current smokers indicated that they have tried to quit an average of 10 or 11 times. The longest they were able to stay off cigarettes, on the average, was about one year.

About 23 per cent of adult Minnesotans are former cigarette smokers, according to the survey. Another 30 per cent still smoke, while 47 per cent have never smoked.

Current smoking population is about half male and half female, with men accounting for 52 per cent of the total. About 31 per cent of all adult men are ex-smokers, while 32 per cent are current smokers and 37 per cent have never smoked. About 19 per cent of all women are former smokers, 28 per cent are now smoking, and 53 per cent have never smoked.

Smoking was found to be relatively rare among pregnant women. Only about one in ten was a current smoker, while 19 per cent were former smokers and 71 per cent said they had never smoked.

Survey results were based on telephone interviews with 1,440 Minnesotans 18 years of age or older, chosen in a random sample. Interviews covered a number of health related topics besides smoking, including exercise, stress, drinking, nutrition, weight control, high blood pressure and motor vehicle safety.

PTA Opposes Plan To Cut Dep't. Of Ed.

"The National PTA strongly supports the department of education and will oppose any attempt to dismantle it," said Mary Ann Leveridge, national PTA president, at a meeting of the organization's executive committee recently in Chicago.

"The National PTA is specifically opposed to secretary of education Terrell Bell's proposal to replace the department of education with a national education foundation," according to Leveridge. Foundation would lack cabinet-level status and place education programs under the jurisdiction of a number of other federal agencies, she said.

"If the responsibility for education is dispersed under secretary Bell's plan or any of the others which are currently being considered, eduction programs will be distributed among departments with other, higher priorities and educational concerns will become secondary," Leveridge said.

"By eliminating the department of education and reducing the federal role to one of conducting research and gathering statistics, the Reagan Administration hopes to curtail what it believes is federal control of a state and local responsibility," said Leveridge. "Yet the department of education organization act includes the strongest prohibition against federal control of education ever enacted by Congress," she said.

"Federal involvement in education is not synonymous with federal control over education. The department of education was not created to increase federal control over what takes place in the classroom; it was created to solidify the educational partnership between federal, state and local agencies. This partnership must be maintained if the quality of education in this country is to improve," she said.

According to Leveridge, if the department loses a voice in the cabinet it will lose much of its power to support responsible funding for education programs which have been mandated by Congress. Without the supplementary assistance currently supplied by the federal agency, she says, states and localities will also have difficulty meeting diverse needs of their communities and special populations (e.g., handicapped, disadvantaged and limited English-speaking children).

"Education and preservation of the public schools must remain at the top of the nation's list of priorites. At a time when federal education programs have already been cut by 25 per cent the elimination of a separate, cabinet-level department will severely hamper our ability to provide equal educational opportunity and high quality education to the children of America," she said.

Leveridge also pointed out the accomplishments the department has made in its less than two years of existence:

+ Bringing staff and budget together under one roof, the department is more efficiently managed than was the office of education within HEW;

+ Program administration has been consolidated;

+ Grant management, student financial aid and regulatory procedures have been streamlined;

+ Staff has been reduced by 500;

+ Lines of responsiblity have been clarified;

+ Projects to help children with special needs have been continued and improved.

"Throughout most of its history, the national PTA has pushed for a separate department of education. We will continue to do so. Only with an agency of this stature can the educational needs of all children and youth be properly provided for," Leveridge said.

National PTA, with a membership of six million, is the largest child advocacy organization in the United States.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

The Times' editorial page of Wednesday, December 9, 1981 was one of sharp contrast. While the editorial on waste siting was well written and properly stated, the editorial concerning Secretary of Interior James Watt was personally saddening. The editorial placed conservationists, often times mistakenly defined as hunters only, in an adversary position with environmentalists mistakenly defined as preservationists only. The issues addressed in the editorial are not so clearly defined or as black and white. Life, and government in particular, is just not that simple.

First, let me address the issue of "we" versus "they". Although not particularly important to the discussion, I personally occasionally hunt small game and remove plants from wild areas and therefore do not qualify as a preservationist. Yet I am most definitely an environmentalist; one who is concerned about the environment, concerned about acid rain sterilizing our lakes, concerned about loss of wildlife habitat, concerned about toxic chemicals in our water, concerned about hazardous waste facility siting, and concerned about persons who consider themselves environmentalists or conservationists promoting a split between the groups when the groups have so very much in common with so very little actual differences.

Secondly, the policies of Secretary Watt certainly are not conservationist. This fact is demonstrated by opposition from groups historically rooted in hunting and conservation tradition such as the National Wildlife Federation and the Isaac Walton League, both of which after deliberation announced their opposition to the man James Watt and his policies. There have been many articles about Secretary Watt's policies and his actions speak more eloquently than his words.

Finally, special interest group or not, would it be proper for an agency of the government to cut off all dialogue with a group of citizens within our country? Similarly, and more close to home, would it be proper for the Minnesota Waste Management Board not to listen to the special interest group composed of Northwest Minnesotans against inappropriate siting of a hazardous waste facility, just because we oppose siting of the facility in areas that could contaminate our water supply? I claim no agency of the government has the right to disenfranchise, to ignore, any group of citizens merely because that group disagrees with that agency or is not as influential as some other special interest group.

The Minnesota Waste Management Board had its shins kicked, yet they have the courtesy to listen to us, as they must. Should the Secretary of Interior be applauded for listening attentively to select special interest groups such as the powerful and influential oil lobby which wholeheartedly supports his policies while the Secretary ignores groups representing common citizens? The Waste Management Board deserved to have its shins kicked in most of our opinions; possibly there is a reason groups are kicking Secretary Watt's shins. We argue about labels and are pleased when a man makes decisions against groups that we do not agree with completely while we fail to work together on common interests while without our input policy decisions are being made that will affect conservation and our environment for decades.

How About $1,200 For A Yuletide Tree?

Would you like to pay up to $1,200 for a Christmas tree? Well, you might if you cut one along a Minnesota highway, said Leonard Eilts, director, environmental services, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Although an eight-foot tall spruce may be purchased from a Christmas tree lot for about $20, the nursery replacement value for the same tree will be around $400, he said.

According to Minnesota Statute 561.04, a trespasser is liable in a civil action for treble the amount of damages or, in this example, $1,200.

During the past few years, numerous spruce and pine trees along highways have been illegally cut and removed by private individuals for Christmas trees, Eilts said. Last year alone, more than 20 trees were stolen from state highway right of way in the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

"In seeking public support to curb Christmas tree cutting along highways, roads or streets, we urge anyone observing or suspecting illicit tree cutting to notify the state patrol or local law enforcement officers," Eilts said.

Plans Begun For Solar RR Signals In MN

Preparations for installation of Minnesota's first solar-powered railroad crossing signals at the intersection of TH 114, northwest of Lowry, and the Soo Line Railroad company line have begun, said commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Exide Industrial Battery Division of ESB, Inc., Horsham, Pa., was the successful bidder for the photovoltaic solar energy cell system and lead acid storage battery at a cost of $6,035.

Soo Line will install the system, which is expected to be completed by summer 1982. Total cost of the project is $62,900, which is being funded with 90 per cent federal and 10 per cent state funds. Soo Line will be responsible for all future maintenance costs associated with the signal system.

Solar-power unit will consist of two rows of five solar energy cell panels seven feet three inches high by seven feet five inches wide. Panels will be mounted on top of a railroad bungalow housing all electronic equipment.

Solar-powered system will be used to drop railroad crossing signal arms, flash warning lights and activate bells when trains approach the crossing. Solar panel collects sun's rays and converts them to electricity to operate the equipment and keep the battery fully charged. During the day, the solar panels power the equipment and charge the battery. At night, the battery provides power.

Solar-powered railroad crossing signals may solve the problem of providing signals in isolated rural areas where there are no electric lines nearby to provide electric service. Cost of running an electric line to provide power for one railroad crossing signal in such areas would be very expensive, Braun said.

If solar energy signals prove to be effective and cost efficient, Mn-DOT may consider the possibility of establishing solar-power signals in other such areas, he added.

This is the second solar-powered railroad crossing signal for the Soo Line. The first was in Dahlen, N.D.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

It's the holiday season again — the time of year that brings hazardous driving condition with it, such as slippery roads, poor visibility and frosted windshields. We may drive with radios turned high to drown out the noise of the heater and defroster. Our minds are often not on our driving, interrupted by thoughts of what we'll get our loved ones for Christmas, etc.

Let us not forget about the trains that occupy those railroad crossings when you least expect them. Make sure you car is under control when approaching the tracks; we can be at the crossing any time of the day or night.

Help make this a Merry Christmas for all of us. Happy Holidays!

60 Per Cent Of MN Drivers Obey 55 Limit

Minnesota drivers apparently have exceeded the latest compliance test relating to the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, according to Minnesota public Safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Speed monitoring survey, conducted by the Minnesota department of transportation for the federal highway administration, shows that 60.8 per cent of the state's motorists were in compliance with the 55 law during the months of July, August and September of this year. This compares with 48.3 per cent for the same three-month period in 1980.

Compliance percentages for the first three quarters of fiscal 1981, from October, 1980, to June, 1981, were approximately 64 per cent. This should bring the total number of drivers complying with the speed limit well over the 50 per cent federal requirement for the entire year. For federal fiscal year 1980 (Oct. 1, 1979 through Sept. 30, 1980), the federal requirement was 40 per cent compliance. Minnesotans achieved 44.8 per cent.

Sopsic credits increased compliance rate with continuing public education programs by department of public safety (DPS) and other agencies, and good law enforcement throughout Minnesota. He also said that Minnesota drivers' awareness that the 55 MPH speed limit is saving lives has significantly increased the compliance record. State's reduced fatality toll through almost 11 months of 1981 is proof that the program is working, the commissioner said.

Federal highway administration requires each state to monitor vehicle speed on the highways and to meet specific levels of compliance each year. Requirement was established to encourage states to reduce the number of drivers exceeding the speed limit. Failure to meet the specified goal would mean a loss of federal aid. Percentage of drivers who are required to comply with the speed limit has increased each year by 10 per cent. This year all states were told they must have 50 per cent compliance by September 30, and must reach 60 per cent by September 30, 1982. By September 30, 1983, and thereafter, the requirement is 70 per cent.

Although the state's final report for fiscal year 1981 has yet to be certified by the federal government, Minnesota should continue to receive money for highway programs, Sopsic concluded.

$2,152,000 In SBA Loans Approved

Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration (SBA), announced that $2,152,000 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 18 Minnesota companies in November. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 389 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 288 Minnesota firms through the small business administration's in-house councelors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Three loans, amounting to $190,000, were made to minority owned firms, making the minority component of the November loan portfolio 16 per cent of the total loans and 9 per cent of the total loan dollars.

State Soil And Water Meet Held

"Our ability to defend ourselves may be threatened more by farm policy failure than by what is or is not happening in the purchase of new weapons systems."

These are the words of R. Neil Sampson, executive-president of the national association of conservation districts, in a speech at the 45th annual convention of the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts at St. Cloud recently.

Referring to the anniversary of Pearl Harbor day, Sampson pointed out that the defense capability of the nation depends on its inner strength, not just on its weapons. Agriculture is a vital part of our national strength and under present policy American agriculture is headed toward bankruptcy, according to Sampson.

Nearly 600 soil conservation leaders were in attendance at the three-day convention. Nearly all of Minnesota's 92 local soil and water conservation districts were represented by one or more of their locally elected supervisors.

Educational sections of the convention program included four "mini-sessions' which were repeated so delegates could attend two of them. In the session on "Disappearing Farmland," Mark Seetin, Minnesota agriculture commissioner, pointed out that loss of farm productivity should be a concern of everyone in the state.

Maury Brannan, economic analyst for Cargill Inc. pointed out in another session that bringing marginal land into production to produce grain for export is having serious effects on soil conservation.

Other mini-sessions dealt with special projects and outstanding district programs.

During the business sessions, delegates passed a number of resolutions to guide conservation leaders in developing programs for the future.

Milo Hanson of Dawson, MN, was re-elected as president of the state association.

Danny Johnson, Clair Larson, Leonard Skaar and conservation farm couple Brad and Lana Nelson represented Pennington soil and water conservation district.

Remember Safety Rules At Christmas

Christmas is a time for decorating the tree, crackling fires, toys wrapped up in brightly colored packages, gaily colored strings of lights and families gathered together to celebrate the season.

Christmas also is a time for fires, many of which will be traced back to Christmas trees and decorations, and many of which can be avoided.

"In the hustle and bustle of the season, it's easy to forget common sense safety rules," warns Robert Seelbach, Underwriters Laboratories vice president and chief electrical engineer.

Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL) is an independent not-for-profit organization testing for public safety. Among other products, UL tests indoor and outdoor Christmas tree lights, artificial trees and electrical decorations for a variety of safety features.

"Many fires are caused by damaged light strings, overloaded circuits and improper use of decorations. At UL, we try to make these products as safe as possible, but consumers have to do their part too," says Seelbach.

National fire data center reports approximately 82,000 fires killed or injured more than 3,000 people and caused about $340 million in property damage last December.

Seelbach says consumers can avoid fires if they use simple precautions. "A spark or a hot wire can ignite a dried out tree. Check each string of lights carefully. If you find a break in the wiring, frayed insulation, a broken bulb or a defective plug, don't use it; replace the string," Seelbach says.

Overloading a circuit with too many lights also can cause a fire. "Read manufacturer's instructions carefully and don't use more than the recommended number of lights on one circuit," says Seelbach.

To help consumers with Christmas safety, UL engineers have compiled a "Christmas Safety Checklist." Seelbach suggests consumers use the checklist to improve safety at holiday time. "The checklist covers information on decorating the house, artificial and real trees, and other safety tips for the holidays. Checklist is a poster featuring Santa and his elves and is a good education tool for children also," he said.

The UL "Christmas Safety Checklist" is available free from UL. Requests for the checklist should be sent to: UL, Dept. A, P.O. Box 1324, Northbrook, IL 60062.

X-mas Tree Can Be Fire Hazard

Christmas trees can be dangerous. Following rules are recommended by State Fire Marshal Wes Werner to reduce possibility of holiday tragedy:

When buying a natural tree, look first for freshness. Check for deep green color and strong pine scent.

Before setting up a tree, cut a couple inches off the trunk, sawing diagonally, so water can be absorbed more easily. Mount tree in a sturdy base which has a reservoir for water, and keep reservoir full. Never set tree close to heat source.

Before stringing lights on tree, check for broken or cracked sockets, loose connections or frayed wires.

Do not use more than three sets of lights per single extension cord. Always turn off all decorative lights before leaving home or going to bed.

Flame-retardent artificial tree is highly recommended by Werner. Artificial tree decorated with UL (Underwriters Laboratory) tested electrical lights is acceptable in all homes.

Drunk Driver Responsibility Of Party Host

Christmas and New Year season, intended to be the happiest time of the year, often becomes the saddest because of accidents on the road, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic.

Sopsic reminds party hosts to keep guests from driving after drinking.

'Casual party drinkers or once a year imbibers can be as dangerous as an alcoholic when they drive," Sopsic said. "Careful planning and some practical preventative measures by hosts can make celebration both fun and safe."

Some preventive measures are:

+Do not pressure anyone to drink. Offer an assortment of drinks including non-alcoholic beverages such as pop, punch and cider +Always serve food with alcohol. Offer high-protein foods such as cheese and meats because they stay with guests longer.

+When someone has had too much to drink, offer a ride home, suggest an overnight stay or call a taxi and pay for it. If all else fails, call police and prevent the person from driving.

Responsibility as party giver is not limited to seeing that friends have a good time. Making sure everyone gets home safely is important because you could be legally responsible for damages caused by someone to whom you have served alcohol.

CPAs Offer Tips On Gift Problems

Almost everyone has one problem holiday gift to buy. Minnesota Society of Certified Public accountants (CPAs) has suggestions to help solve gift problems and help buyers qualfiy for a tax deduction at the same time.

Are there friends who have favorite charities or a cause they would like to support? If so, consider making a donation in a friend's name. Under most circumstances, because the buyer sends the check or makes the payment, the deduction is his or hers. Many of the larger charitable organizations make giving these gifts easier by sending cards notifying recipients of the gift. In national organizations, such practices vary from state to state, so call beforehand for information.

To insure the deduction, make sure the organization is eligible for tax-deductible contributions. The IRS has a list of qualifying organizations. While most of the better known organizations are on the list, a friend's charity may not be. Call the tax adviser or IRS to be sure.

In addition to a cash donation to a charity, CPAs say, one can deduct part of the gift of a membership in a museum, historical society or educational organization. Individual memberships generally start at $25 or $35, with lower prices for students and non-residents. Gift qualifies the recipient for certain benefits such as free admission, discounts on museum shop items, free catalogues and publications and invitations to special previews.

Donations to charities and museums can be made by credit card, cash and sometimes by pledge. The way in which one pays, CPAs note, may affect the year in which he or she takes the deduction. For example, pledges are not deductible until paid, and if a pledge is made in someone else's name as a gift to them, one cannot take it as a tax deduction. If the donation is charged, the bill doesn't have to be paid the deduction is taken. For example, a donation could be charged and deductions taken in 1981 under the old, higher income tax rates, but not payed until 1982 when, with lower taxes, one might have more spendable income.

To take full advantage of new tax laws, one might consider giving two years' donations. Consider the use of money over taxes saved. Also, inform the charity of plans so they don't assume the contribution is being doubled. However, if one does not have enough deductions to "itemize" on the tax return, he or she may want to defer payment until 1982 when, even on the short form 1040A, 25 per cent can be deducted of up to $100, or up to $25 for contributions. Work it out both ways to see which is more beneficial, CPAs suggest.

If these suggestions don't solve problems, CPAs say, one should think of giving one of his or her own assets. For a small business owner who profits from sales of his or her own paintings, pottery, sculpture or other crafts, he or she may consider giving a friend one of the works. Of course, if a gift is simply given to a friend, no tax or tax deduction is involved. If, however, an owner gives a gift, such as a painting to a charity in a friend's name, he or she may deduct the production cost of the work.

If money isn't made on the owner's own work, he or she could also consider donating one of the pieces to a charitable organization that uses such items. A donation of an art object or collectible to a qualified charity allows one to deduct its fair market value as long as the owner didn't make it in his or her business. CPAs suggest that anytime objects are acquired, donated or sold, the owner obtain written appraisals for tax purposes.

Know Rules For Deductions On Holiday Gifts

Good cheer of the holidays pervades even the office these days: not only do businesses give time off, but many owners and managers give gifts or bonuses to clients and employees. Minnesota Society of certified public accountants (CPAs) suggests saving important tax dollars by understanding guidelines for federal tax deductions on gifts.

Annual ceiling on deductions for business gifts, CPAs say, is $25 per recipient. A business gift is a gift of cash or property to an individual associated with the business owner or manager professionally. A business associate's spouse or family is considered as one person for purposes of the individual $25 limit, unless one has a separate business relationship to justify another $25 gift.

A similar situation exists when one gives a gift to a business associate and a separate gift to the company. If the associate is an executive and the company gift is meant specifically for this person, although it is in the name of the company, the IRS still views it as a gift to the person. If, however, a gift is given for the general use of all employees, one can justify an additional $25 gift deduction; one for an individual and one for the company.

There are, CPAs say, exceptions to the $25 limit, and several items which should not be counted in the tally for gifts.

For example, many small business owners, as well as larger corporations, give away display racks or posters that constitute merchandising aids. Do not include the cost of these when figuring expense for gifts. And items with the company's name permanently and clearly displayed do not count as business gifts if they are promotional items which cost no more than $4 apiece. Promotional items include such things as cigarette lighters, calendars and pens.

Some business gifts, CPAs note, can be deducted as either entertainment expenses or gifts. Liquor, food, tickets to the theatre and sporting events fall into this category. For example, if wine is bought as a gift for business associates but the holidays are celebrated by drinking it together, wine must count as an entertainment expense on which there is no limit. When such gifts are given and one does not share with the recipient, cost can be counted as either a business gift or an entertainment expense. Similar rulings apply to tickets for entertainment events which one might or might not attend with a guest.

As generous as one may feel during the holiday season, remember that gift expenses must be justified to the satisfaction of the IRS to qualify for deductions. CPAs recommend keeping track of business deductions, but especially for gifts and entertainment expenses subject to strict substatiation requirements. Keep a journal of amounts spent, date, business purpose, as well as the business title of the person one sent a gift to and business relationship one shares.

While most business gifts are given to associates in other companies, one can take a deduction for business gifts within ones own organization.

For example, a district sales manager who gives traveling salespeople business gifts to enhance working relationships, can deduct these costs as a business expense. Non-employees are subject to the same $25 limit per person.

In addition, one can give his or her employee a non-cash gift of up to $400 and also get a deduction. This is up from $100 as a result of the new tax law. New law applies for taxable years after August 13, 1981, the date the law was enacted. If however, cash is given workers as holiday bonuses, they must report this gift as income and pay taxes on it.

18 Per Cent In Operation Identification

A recent survey conducted by the Minnesota department of public safety shows 18 per cent of the state's residents are enrolled in operation identification, a program used to mark personal property for protection from theft.

Public safety commissioner John Sopsic said the survey was sent to 329 enforcement agencies in Minnesota who participate in Crime Watch programs. Twenty-five per cent (79) of the agencies surveyed responded.

Responding agencies serve high population areas so the survey actually included 49 per cent of the state's residents and 50 per cent of the state's housing units, Sopsic said. Questions dealt with the crime experiences in each community and the extent of involvement of the agencies in crime prevention programs.

Agencies responding recorded 1,727 home burglaries during March, 1980. Of these, only 1.6 per cent (28) occured at homes enrolled in operation identification.

Agencies also reported 328 commercial burglaries during the same month with just 3.4 per cent (10) occurring at businesses enrolled in the program.

Thirty-five per cent (28) of the reporting agencies had formal crime prevention units. Forty-three other departments reporting had people working full or part-time in crime prevention. Average crime prevention worker devotes 11.7 hours per week to crime prevention and has 4.5 years experience. Survey showed that 72 per cent of the responding agencies conduct home security surveys for the residents they serve.

Over half (47) of the agencies said they promote crime prevention in newsletters, newspaper columns, on radio and TV, through envelope stuffers, displays and booths. Fifty-seven per cent said they received public comment about their efforts and in all but one case the comments were favorable.

Hildre V. Pres. Of Dairy At Land O' Lakes

George Hildre, vice president of Land O'Lakes, Inc., with responsibilites for the organization's membership division, has been named vice president for dairy operations. His new responsibilities include dairy production division, industrial sales division, grade A milk marketing division, producer field services, dairy engineering and associated dairy staff functions.

Hildre started with the Minneapolis-based farm supply and food marketing cooperative in 1960 as agricultural field service manager in Thief River Falls.

In 1965 he took a leave of absence from Land O'Lakes to work under contract for the U.S. department of state in the Philippine Islands as part of the USAID program. While in the Philippines he served as advisor to cooperative supply and marketing organizations. Upon his return to Land O'Lakes in 1967 he served as agricultural field service manager in Mankato.

In 1968 Hildre was named supervisor of producer relations at Land O'Lakes corporate headquarters. He has headed the membership division since 1973 and was named vice president in 1978.

Before joining the $3.3 billion sales organization in Minneapolis, Hildre was acting principal and science and agriculture instructor at the Petersburg high school, Petersburg, ND, his home community. He graduated from North Dakota state university, Fargo, in 1955.

Appearance Of Car Can Help In Selling It

Thinking of buying a new car and want to sell your old car yourself? To sell it as quickly as possible, make a positive first impression on a potential buyer by having the car look its very best, says the Automotive Information council (AIC).

A clean appearance is the first item a buyer will notice. Begin by washing and polishing the exterior of the car. Give the chrome a shine and wash floor mats. Remove old bumper stickers.

Don't forget to clean the interior as well. Vacuum rugs, empty ash trays and clean upholstery. Remove any scuff marks from door panels and arm rests. Take all odds and ends out of the glove compartment.

Don't forget the trunk. Remove any tools or other items not included in the sale. If a buyer sees a case of motor oil and some spare parts, the buyer may get the wrong impression about the condition of the car.

You might consider steam-cleaning the engine, but don't wait until the last minute. Moisture can get into the ignition system from the steam and moisture may make it hard to start the car until it dries out. Any car that is hard to start will be hard to sell.

Make sure the battery is fully charged. Check tire pressure and tighten any loose screws or brackets on the car.

After you've spruced up your old wheels, place an ad in your local paper. You can arrive at an asking price by comparing it to similar cars advertised in the paper. Make sure you or someone else will be available to take calls and to show the car.

A car with a better appearance can bring the top dollar in a sale, but remember to invest only what time and money you hope to recover in the price of the car, says AIC. And don't fake it.

Goldesberry To Head Local Toastmasters

Jim Goldesberry was installed president of Toastmasters Club 1291 in Thief River Falls recently at a meeting held in the Arnt Aune home following a pot-luck supper. He succeeds Randy Adamson as president of the club.

Other officers installed include Carletta Tierney educational vice president; Tim Faver, administrative vice president; Don Stanislawski, secretary; Arnt Aune, treasurer; and Greg Pribula, sergeant-at-arms.

Faver received the Toastmaster of the year award and Carletta Tierney was named winner of the most improved Toastmaster award.

Toastmasters meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 7 a.m. in Room 103 at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Visitors are welcome to attend any of the meetings, Goldesberry said.

Farmers Face Higher Property Taxes In 1982

Farmers may pay up to 61 per cent more property tax in 1982 than they paid in 1981, according to assistant revenue commissioner Dennis Erno.

Erno explained to the House taxes committee recently that about half of that increase would be a result of the governor's proposal to cut back property tax credits to cities, counties and school districts. State pays about 58 per cent of property owners' tax bills. Quie proposed cutting that fiture to 45 per cent, so that even if mill rates don't rise, people will pay higher taxes because the state pays a smaller portion of the bill.

Non-farm residential property taxes will go up, too, but not by as much as farm homesteads, for a number of reasons, Erno said.

"Farm property value has been increasing much faster than other property values. This means farmland is paying an increasingly larger portion of the property tax burden," Erno said.

Also, according to Erno, assessors have been underestimating value of farm property, and they are gradually re-evaluating the property to bring it closer to recent selling prices of farmland. Higher assessments mean higher property taxes.

Rep. Robert Vanasek, DFL-New Prague, pointed out that figures are for 1982, when cities will have to absorb budget cuts rather than increase levies. In 1983, Vanasek said, property taxes could rise even more if cities decide to make up for the cuts with local tax increases.

Hanson Dairy Farm Tops In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of Pennington county dairy herd improvement association lists the following herds as top in the association for October.

In first place is Hanson Heritage Farm, whose herd produced an average of 49.6 pounds of milk and 1.79 pounds of butterfat; followed by Duane Krohn, 48.1 and 1.83; Myle Carlson, 47.5 and 1.79; Gene Nelson, 46.7 and 1.86; Duane Vatsaas, 46.5 and 1.74; Walter Bros. Farm, 44.7 and 1.69; Gordon Wetterlund and Son, 41.5 and 1.56; Leland Nelson, 40.2 and 1.43; Lyle Swanson, 39.8 and 1.50; and Steve Gast, 38.7 and 1.43.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then averages for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

There were 24 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less. There were 29 DHIA hers and six owner-sampler herds, for a total of 35 herds in the October test.

District 5 Co-op Members Attend Meet

Four American feeder pig co-op members from the organization's district five were representatives at the advisory board meeting of Wisconsin and Minnesota divisions conducted recently at the Holiday Inn in Stevens Point, WI.

District five advisory board members at the meeting were: Alden Hough, Barnesville; Larry Ketterling, LaMoure, N.D.; Bob Miller, Twin Valley; and Charles Svare, Pelican Rapids. District five director David A. Gilbertson, Fosston, also attended.

These board members serve co-op member-producers from Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Hubbard, Itasca, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Roseau, Wadena, Wilken counties, Minnesota; and the states of North and South Dakota.

Test Drilling For Waste Site Now Complete

River Falls. In a special Times interview, he explained some of the procedures to take place once the drilling is completed.

Shilepsky noted that core samples are taken of the bedrock as well as the soils to determine if it is crystaline pre-cambrian rock rather than sandstone or limestone which could be water-bearing. It is expected in this area that the rock will be pre-cambrian.

Soil samples sent to Soil Testing Services, Inc., will be examined for composition, soil type, particle size and other factors. The firm will also conduct engineering tests to determine the engineering properties of the soil. These results, combined with the Geological Survey analysis and well log, will be studied from the several holes drilled on each candidate site. From this combined information the waste management staff will have a general idea of what soils and conditions may be encountered over the entire site at any given level.

Information on such things as water table and surface water movement on and around the sites being considered is gathered separately from the drilling data but will be included in the total site consideration. Engineers are also looking at whether or not such problems can be mitigated by engineering efforts, such as diking, Shilepsky said.

"There isn't any perfect site out there that doesn't have any problems," the hazardous waste coordinator said. "I don't believe that anywhere in the state or maybe anywhere in the country you could find any 'perfect site' to which all of the criteria for selection would apply. I think the board will have to choose among a number of the better imperfect sites."

GEOLOGIST Dale Setterholm inspects some of the soil brought up by a drilling rig sinking a test hole in the East Park wildlife management area northwest of Middle River. Drilling is being done to provide information to the state waste management board for eventual selection of a hazardous waste disposal site in Minnesota. The East Park site is presently one of three under consideration in eastern Marshall county. Other sites in this area of the state are in Kittson and Beltrami counties.

Reports from the testing agencies will be sent to the waste management board which will prepare a summary report which will be forwarded to the Minnesota pollution control agency and the counties in which the sites are located.

The six sites which are to be selected by May of 1982 can be named only if they are certified to be intrinsically suitable by the Minnesota pollution control agency, Shilepsky said. If PCA won't certify a site as suitable, the waste management board can no longer consider it as a candidate site. In effect, this gives the PCA veto power over the board's preference.

Plans are being made by the PCA and waste management board to hold combined hearings for public convenience and cost saving. Such hearings for this area could be expected to be held in February, Shilepsky said. Any sites which the PCA may consider as having a chance for eventual selection would likely be included in the hearing process, he added.

Asked how the PCA refusal to permit establishment of solid waste landfill sites in this area would relate to the potential for establishing a hazardous waste disposal site, Shilepsky said, "our understanding of their rules is such that we believe these sites have a fighting chance of being considered.

"We have used PCA's guidelines in developing our criteria. A high water table, for instance, may not be a factor if it does not endanger significant aquifers." He said that the high water table would have to be taken under consideration by the PCA but may not of itself exclude a site from being considered.

Of the 20 candidate sites currently under consideration, 11 do not involve public lands, Shilepsky said. All five of the sites in this area have significant acreages of public land, held either by the state of federal government. Some privately owned land is also included in some of the sites.

Ultimately, the waste management board's staff will be presenting to the board fact sheets on each of the 20 candidate sites. The board will then have to weigh population, where the wells are, what the geological formations are, what the wetlands situation is, what transportation problems exist and all other factors in making its selections.

People talking about above-ground storage of hazardous waste materials are talking about barrel farms or tank farms where materials can be stored for eventual future retrieval, Shilepsky said. What the hazardous waste disposal site would be is burial under dirt of waste which is not meant to be retrievable for subsequent processing.

This could include above grade rather than above ground disposal, the hazardous waste coordinator said. This would involve determination of what soil structure lies beneath the site, then placing the disposal materials at grade level and covering them with dirt, eventually capping the site with a clay cover. Winnipeg was adopted this sytem for its sanitary landfill. Shilepsky said the waste management board may want to consider the above grade disposal system in its deliberations.

Increase In SS Taxes Not Necessary

Thanks to computers, it is now possible for taxpayers, with the help of their friendly economist, to make a strong case against a proposed increase in social security taxes, states a recent release from the U.S. chamber of commerce.

U.S. chamber recently ran a computer analysis on the economic impact of an increase in payroll taxes and found that it would result in the loss of 300,000 jobs and $2.2 billion in less business investment by 1985.

Studied by the U.S. chamber forecast center were potential effects of advancing from 1985 to 1982 a scheduled increase in the tax rate from 6.70 per cent of 7.05 per cent of earnings. Both employers and employees would pay more.

According to date, the tax increase would encourage more workers, particularly the second breadwinner, to make a trade-off between work and leisure time, since not working would become less expensive. More workers also would choose to retire early.

Social security faces grave financial problems in the not-too-distant future. There are a number of reasonable resolutions, but the moved-up tax increase isn't one of them, the U.S. Chamber concludes.

INSIDE A VAN used by geologist Dale Setterholm, electronic equipment for monitoring soil density awaits use on a test hole being drilled northwest of Middle River on the East Park wildlife management area. After a hole is drilled, a down-hole geophysical probe is inserted and lowered to the bottom, recording information on a graph on the machine at right. Information gained from use of the probe is cross-checked with soil samples taken during drilling to assess the type and composition of soils. This test is conducted on all holes drilled. The test holes are being drilled in this area as part of a study to determine siting of a hazardous waste disposal facility.

Council Offers Check List For Auto Safety

Now is the time to get your motor vehicle in "safety shape" for winter driving, says the Minnesota safety council. The safety council offers the following points to check when preparing your vehicle for driving in the cold months ahead:

+ Brakes: Stains caused by leaking fluid below the master cylinder and on linings and drums are signs of trouble. Parking brake should grab tightly on an incline.

+ Tires: Two wear indicator bars showing next to each other at three different spots on the tread mean that you should replace the tire. Uneven wear of treads indicates that tires need alignment, balancing or pressure adjustment.

+ Wheel lug nuts: Use your lugwrench to make sure lug nuts are on tight.

+ Exhaust system: Carbon monoxide is an invisible killer; check for rusted or cracked muffler or tailpipe.

+ Fan belts: Loose, cracked or frayed belts should be replaced so that you won't risk a delay.

+ Fluid levels: Avoid costly repairs by keeping all fluids filled to proper levels.

+ Battery: Your car won't start if the battery terminals and cables are corroded; remove corrosion for good electrical contact.

+ Hoses: Have them replaced or tightened if there are cracks or leaks.

+ Fuel line: Check for leaking fuel lines as they cause under the hood tires.

+ Safety belts: Buckles and retracting devices must move smoothly, and loose belts should be adjusted.

+ Lights: There are more than headlights; check all bulbs and fuses, and replace any that are not working properly. Clean all lights for maximum illumination.

+ Windshield wipers: Be sure that wiper blades work without streaking the windshield. Test the washer bottle fluid level.

Take a few minutes to check your auto now while the weather's nice. You may save yourself time and inconvenience when the weather turns cold. When your auto is in shape, you collect big dividends in safe driving, less risk of breakdowns and better gas economy.

Safety is YOUR Business

RECORDING DATA obtained during drilling of the bedrock hole on the East Park wildlife management area northwest of Middle River is geologist Jim Dalsin. Drilling is being done for the Minnesota waste management board in its search for a hazardous waste disposal site. By Tuesday evening the drillers had reached 295 feet without striking bedrock. They started drilling at the deep hole site Monday.

SOIL SAMPLES obtained in drilling are carefully bagged and labeled for further study by the Minnesota Geologic survey at the University of Minnesota. Core samples are analyzed by Soil Testing Services, Inc., of Minneapolis and cuttings (screenings taken continuously during drilling) are analyzed by the Minnesota Geologic Survey in St. Paul. Drilling is being done for the Minnesota waste management board as part of its siting study for a hazardous waste disposal facility.

Trees Located On Public Land Are Protected

Department of Natural Resources has made it clear that public lands are not open for the indiscriminate cutting of Christmas trees by individuals.

No trees can be taken from lands under DNR jurisdiction without a permit from a forestry officer, and permits are not issued except for large volume operations.

DNR recommends that home owners patronize their local Christmas tree stands or private Christmas tree growers for their trees.

All trees removed from state lands are sold under well defined DNR regulations. So, said officials, if you were thinking of cutting your own Christmas tree this year from state owned land — forget it.

REPORT

Small Business Highlights

Small business is critical to our economy. New and existing small companies provide large numbers of jobs and innovations. The proliferation of smaller enterprises strikes at inflation through greater price competition and generates new technologies which lead to productivity increases and economic growth. The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 will greatly stimulate overall rates of saving and investment. Many of the provisions were especially designed with smaller firms in mind and will greatly aid internal cash generation.

Provisions Affecting Individuals

Individual rate reductions. Nearly 90 per cent of all business are sole proprietors, partnerships, or subchapter S corporations and pay tax at the individual rates. The three-year, 25 per cent, across the board rate cut and the drop in the top rate from 70 per cent to 50 per cent for all types of business and investment income as of Jan. 1, 1981, directly enhance these smaller firms' cash flow, which can then be used to pay off debt for working capital needs or to acquire additional assets.

Capital gains reduction. The maximum individual capital gains rate is dropped from 28 per cent to 20 per cent for investments made after June 9, 1981. (The top corporate capital gains rate remains at 28 per cent.) The lowering of the maximum capital gains rate will generate increased investment and economic activity as taxpayers respond to lower marginal tax rates. The increase in the pool of funds available for investment should make it easier for smaller firms to attract funds for plant expansion and working capital needs.

Marriage penalty, child and dependent care costs. The marriage penalty relief and increased child care credit will greatly aid the traditional "mom and pop" business which is frequently staffed by a working couple.

Estate tax changes. The unlimited marital deduction, higher unified credit, liberalized current use valuation, and technical changes all help family businesses stay in the family.

Business Provisions

Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS). Under prior law, a large variety of methods and recovery periods made depreciation very complex, a disadvantage for small business. ACRS puts all businesses on the same footing by providing a few simple asset classes with recovery percentages for each set fourth in the law. Further simplicity is provided businesses with small capital outlays by allowing them to expense (deduct in the year of purchase) up to $5,000, starting in 1982. This amount rises to $7,500 per year in 1984 and $10,000 per year in 1986.

Expensed amounts do not qualify for investment tax credits. The combination of expensing and faster writeoffs or higher investment tax credits for all investments will improve cash flow, a vital concern for many small enterprises. ACRS replaces previous depreciation rules for all property placed in service after 1980. However, the expensing election is now allowed until 1982. Therefore, in 1981, neither expensing nor the old 20 per cent bonus depreciation applies; as a result, some businesses may prefer to delay placing equipment in service until 1982.

Leasing. Leasing rules are greatly liberalized to enable businesses which are not profitable, and thus not able to receive the tax advantages of the new capital cost recovery system directly, to lease property from firms which can use the tax benefits. The rules apply to noncorporate as well as corporate leases; lessors must be corporate.

Corporate rates. Corporate rates are reduced to 16 per cent on the first $25,000 of income and 19 per cent on the next $25,000 in 1982, and to 15 per cent and 18 per cent, respectively, in 1983. This provision will aid small corporations and was the number in recommendation of the White House conference on small business.

Worship Service Scheduled

Holiday Gifts From The Supermarket

Look to your local supermarket as a great source for inexpensive holiday ideas. There you'll find the makings for some imaginative yet practical food gifts to please almost everyone on your shopping list. For inspiration, here are some savory suggestions from the Kraft Kitchens.

Fix a "Winter Picnic For Two" for a favorite couple to share by the fire. Start with a picnic basket decorated with ribbons and holiday ornaments. Fill it with a bottle of wine, a loaf of bread, and an assortment of cheeses. If you like, finish it off by adding accessories like a corkscrew and wine glasses.

For the host or hostess, pack a crock with homemade Cheery Cheddar Spread and bring it to the party on a wooden board with a selection of store-bought spreads, a basket of crackers, and spreaders. Neighbors would also welcome a similar cheese snack present.

Team these ideas with your own ingenuity and kitchen creativity and you'll have some of the best gifts of all — those from the heart.

Cheery Cheddar Spread

- 2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded Kraft sharp natural cheddar cheese
- 1/4 cup beer
- 2 tablespoons Parkay margarine
- 1/2 teaspoon Kraft pure prepared mustard
- Dash of cayenne
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- 2 teaspoons chopped pimiento

Combine cheese, beer, margarine, mustard and cayenne, mixing until well blended. Stir in chives and pimiento. Serve with bread and crackers.

Gov. Quie's Column

One of the best ways we can plan for the future is through the education of our youth. In Minnesota the commitment to education has long been a top priority.

The state has a responsibility to assure a quality level of education to its children, and my first concern is that this level is provided.

Determining the ingredients of a quality education is a process involving local school boards, educators and families; as well as state authorities. When all the factors have been weighed and a decision has been made, all school districts should be guaranteed state funding to assist in providing that quality level of education to all children.

But what makes education great is that someone, somewhere, wants a better education. My belief is that those school districts which have the desire and ability to provide additional programs for their children should be allowed to do so.

Currently school districts are limited in the amount of property taxes they may levy for education. Because these districts are inhibited from going beyond the state guaranteed level of education, their initiative and desire for additional programs for their children is being stifled.

If a community wants to provide additional educational opportunities for its children, that should be between the local citizens, local taxpayers, and the local school board.

The importance of local involvement in education cannot be understated, for elementary and secondary education cannot be isolated from family and community. "The family is a stronger agency of educational success than the school," notes Michael Novak, of the American Enterprise Institute. As such, the family is the catalyst of the eductional development of our youth, both at home and at school.

Families and local school boards have traditionally shown initiative and creativity in providing programs for their children. It is this creativity and ingenuity that I want the state to stimulate, not hamper.

"Lighthouse" school districts, or, in other words, district displaying special creativity, achieve their desire for additional educational growth of their children, and they stimulate other school districts to emulate their creative programs, thereby further augmenting the quality of education in Minnesota. Lighthouse school district breathe new life into the whole system.

If education in Minnesota is to reflect the values of various school districts, families and the community, we must allow these districts to offer the programs parents are willing to support that go beyond the traditional curriculum.

During the regular session of the Legislature in January, I will recommend that the state maintain its commitment to a quality level of education statewide, while providing the freedom for communities to opt to support additional programs.

An Old-Timers hockey game scheduled to be held Saturday, December 26, will serve as a rededication game for the old arena in downtown Thief River Falls, celebrating the completion of a remodeling project in the facility that took three years to finish.

The game, scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. in the old arena, will feature former Lincoln high school hockey players who graduated in 1975 or earlier.

Former Prowlers interested in playing in the game are being asked to contact either Tom Goddard, telephone 681-5421, or Dale Wennberg, telephone 681-1745, by Wednesday, December 23. Players and the general public are being asked to spread the word about the game to eligible players since telephone or letter contacts will not be made. Goddard and Wennberg will be serving as captains of the two teams.

Players planning to participate in the game will be required to furnish their own equipment, although jerseys will be provided.

Admission to the game will be a donation to the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), sponsor of the contest, with admission prices set at $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

The old areana, which received a face-lift in a remodeling project during the summer and fall of 1979, has just been fitted with an artificial ice plant that is in full operation for youth hockey, recreational skating and public skating. TRFAHA spearheaded the remodeling and ice plant efforts.

Northland, UMC Early Leaders

Northland community college hockey team looked good during its season-opening three-game set in the Thief River Falls sports arena as the Northmen swept defending state champion Mesabi 11-6, 8-4 in an MJCAA series Friday and Saturday, then skated to a 4-4 overtime tie against the Bemidji State University junior varsity Sunday.

The Northmen, who will be idle until a Jan. 2-3 weekend series here against the Concordia junior varsity, consider themselves Minnesota junior college athletic association title contenders. They proved by their performance they have to be reckoned with.

University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), led by new coach Bob Clauson, also figure to be MJCAA contenders after having swept Mesabi (7-6, 9-2) and Hibbing (6-3, 7-5) the past two weekends. The Trojans go on the road for the first time this week vs. Mesabi in Virginia.

"We know we can play well on the road, and if we can come back either 6-0 or 5-1 we'll be right up at the top with everybody chasing us, which is exactly what we want," Clauson told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times.

A year ago the Northmen and Trojans were the two teams in the six-team MJCAA standings to miss the state tournament field. The 1982 MJCAA state tournament will be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena Feb. 20-21, and as host team, Northland is guaranteed a berth.

Mesabi coach Pat Finnegan, even though his team lost back-to-back series to UMC and Northland, predicts the MJCAA will be 'pretty even this year."

But at this point, Northland, Crookston and Rochester appear to be the leaders, with Hibbing and Mesabi maybe battling for that fourth playoff berth. Rainy River, beaten 15-2 by Mesabi last Wednesday, is struggling to stay with the others.

Lincoln Girls Face Class AA Teams

Lincoln high school girls basketball schedule, matching the Prowlers against Class A competition through the first four games of the 1981-82 season, will feature five straight North Half Region 8AA opponents, starting Saturday when Thief River Falls visits Park Rapids. After the holiday break the Prowlers face Moorhead, Bemidji, Crookston and East Grand Forks during the first three weeks of January.

Crookston has been picked as the Northwest Athletic Conference (NWAC) favorite this winter, but Fergus Falls appears to be more than capable of taking the title away from the Pirates, and the Otters are, in fact, mentioned as a North Half Region 8AA title threat.

Fergus Falls defeated Detroit Lakes 59-43 Saturday, and Lakers coach Steve Sundby said, "Fergus Falls is a well-disciplined and well-coached basketball team and right now I would say they were among the top teams in the north half of our region."

A power in girls basketball in recent years, Detroit Lakes is currently struggling, off to a 2-3 start. The Lakers were charged with 54 trunovers against the Otters.

Crookston, meanwhile, would have been a definite North Half Region 8AA contender if Gina Vorachek, an NWAC all-conference guard as a sophomore last year, would have remained with the Pirates. But she moved with her family to Alexandria where her father, Gary, is the Cardinals' coach. She was probably the best plsyer in the NWAC in 1980-81.

But there are still three other returning starters back for the Pirates, including Lisa Rongen, who averaged 11 points and 15 rebounds per game, along with Brenda Wieland and Cindy Froberg.

St. Cloud Apollo is the Region 8AA favorite this winter. The Eagles are ranked among the state's best in Class AA.

Miscellaneous

Jacks Defeat Lincoln Swim Team 48-32

Bemidji, with its sights set on a third straight unbeaten dual meet season record, overwhelmed a young Thief River Falls swimming team Tuesday, coasting to a 48-32 victory.

The strong Lumberjacks owned a commanding 48-11 lead before conceding the final three events of the meet. Through the first eight events Bemidji swept all eight first place finishes and six times went 1-2.

It was the dual meet opener for both teams. Thief River Falls will compete Thursday at 4:30 p.m. at Grand Forks Red River.

Bemidji was also a 65-18 winner in yesterday's junior varsity match.

Green was also named captain of the 1982 Thief River Falls swimming team, succeeding 1981 co-captains Robyn Dallmann and Shari McGann.

Prowlers Will Tackle Spuds In Home Opener On Thurs.

Having beaten Roseau 39-30 and Grafton 41-40 on the road, the Lincoln high school basketball team will present its 1981-82 home opener Thursday when the Prowlers tackle defending North Half Region 8AA champion Moorhead at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym. Junior varsity game starts at 5:45 p.m.

First-year Lincoln head coach Tom Hunt said he welcomed the challenge presented by the perennially strong Spuds, who haven't made an appearance in Thief River Falls since the 1964-65 season. Hunt said he was anxious to find out how the Prowlers stacked up against the best in North Half Region 8AA. Thief River Falls must improve offensively, he said, to be able to compete with Moorhead. The Prowlers' defensive play has been instrumental in wins over the Rams and Spoilers, but they've had problems on offense.

Next week the Prowlers will close out the 1981 portion of their 1981-82 schedule by participating in a holiday doubleheader at the new University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) gymnasium. Games Tuesday will find Thief River Falls paired against defending Region 8A champion Warren at 7 p.m. and Crookston matched against 1981-82 Region 8A favorite Argyle at 8:45. On Wednesday, the Prowlers play the Eagles at 7 p.m. and the Pirates meet the Ponies at 8:45.

Junior varsity games, featuring the same opponents, will be played in the afternoon both days. Thief River Falls and Warren play at 1 p.m. Tuesday, with Crookston and Argyle playing at 3. On Wednesday, Thief River Falls plays Argyle at 1 o'clock and Crookston meets Warren at 3.

Imgrund Hat Trick Leads Prowlers Past Bemidji

Jeff Imgrund scored three consecutive goals in the second period and his hat trick sparked Thief River Falls to a 4-1 Section 8 high school hockey upset of Bemidji Tuesday in the Bemidji State University John Glas Fieldhouse.

It was the Prowlers' first win of the 1981-82 season after back-to-back one-goal losses to Crookston (4-3) and Fergus Falls (6-5). Bemidji, one of the preseason favorites in Section 8, fell to 1-2.

Leading 1-0 on the strength of a first period goal by defenseman Mark Harder, Thief River Falls took command of things in the second period as Imgrund suddenly became a goal-scorer. He doubled the margin to 2-0 at 2:04; made it 3-0 at 10:51; and then nailed the coffin shut with a goal at the 15-minute mark, beating the horn to make it 4-0.

Tim Bergland assisted on all three Imgrund goals, with Steve Wiskow, the third member of the Prowlers' second line, also earning an assist.

"That line played really well," reported Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We're quite satisfied with the overall play of the entire team."

Thief River Falls goalie Paul Wennberg shut out Bemidji until the 7:51 mark of the final period when the Lumberjacks' Wade Amundson spoiled his shutout bid.

"We're particularly pleased with the substantial improvement in the goals-against," mentioned Grand. "We did an excellent job back-checking. It was a good overall team effort on defense."

The Prowlers gained the use of senior defenseman Steve Olson, who missed the first two games with a shoulder injury suffered in the preseason Section 8 jamboree, but they were without sophomore defenseman Jim Geatz, bothered by a back problem, for the second straight game.

Bemidji handed the Lincoln high school junior varsity a 6-4 setback in last night's preliminary game, stopping Thief River Falls' brief season-opening winning streak at two games.

Nicholson Scores 27 Points...

Lincoln Girls Beat Warren

Tara Nicholson poured in 27 points Tuesday to lead the Lincoln high school girls basketball team past Warren 43-32, providing the Prowlers with their third straight road win after a season-opening home court loss to Fisher.

"We played four perfect quarters of basketball," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was a total team effort. We slowed the ball down on offense, we worked it around and we got it inside to Tara. She had the hot hand and they couldn't stop her."

Warren led 8-7 at the end of the first quarter, but a switch in the Thief River Falls defense cut the Ponies off the rest of the night. The Prowlers took a 16-11 lead into halftime and held on to a 25-19 third quarter edge.

The Prowlers won two areas of the game Schafer had predicted in practive Monday would decide the outcome: free throws and turnovers. Thief River Falls was 13-for-21 at the free throw line (62 per cent) and turned the ball over just 12 times — only three turnovers in the second half. Warren, meanwhile, was a less-productive 4-for-8 at the free throw line (50 per cent) and lost the ball 20 times.

From the field, the Prowlers were 15-for-49 (31 per cent) and the Ponies were 14-for-44 (32 per cent). Warren had a 35-30 rebound edge.

Thief River Falls, in the midst of a string of six straight road games, will be in Park Rapids Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Warren, after leading just 23-18 at halftime, ran away with a 54-23 junior varsity victory over Thief River Falls Tuesday. The losers fell to 2-2 for the year.

A PAINTING depicting a pair of redhead ducks on the water by artist Phil Scholer of Minneapolis has been chosen as the winning design for the 1982 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp, the Department of Natural Resources announced. The design was selected by a panel of judges from among 171 entries. Several of the designs entered in the contest, including the winner, will be on display at the Science Museum of Minnesota, 10th and Wabasha street, St. Paul, from January 12 through March 21. Oslo 52
Goodridge 48

Goodridge opened up a 27-18 halftime lead, but couldn't hold on as Oslo rallied for a 52-48 Polar Conference victory Tuesday, spoiling the Huskies' 1981-82 home opener.

"We played really, really well in the first half," noted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, "but then we stopped moving altogether for about six minutes in the third quarter."

The Huskies, now 1-1, found themselves trailing 35-34 as the third quarter came to a close.

Oslo iced the game when Roger Roann sank two free throws with five second left, padding a 50-48 edge moments after the Huskies missed a game-tying field goal attempt.

The Bobcats were led by forward Tony Rakowski, who had a sensational 10-for-14 night shooting from the outside for 21 points. Darrin Easthouse led the Huskies with 18 points, while Jeff Langan added 13 and Mike Drangstveit 10.

Both teams shot well. Goodridge was 22-for-46 from the field (48 per cent) and Olso was an even better 23-for-44 (52 per cent). The Huskies were 4-for-10 from the free throw line (40 per cent), with the Bobcats going 6-for-14 at the line (43 per cent). Oslo held a slim 33-31 rebound edge. Turnovers were minimal, with Goodridge losing the ball just nine times and Oslo turning it over only four times. However, the Huskies made their mistakes down the stretch run and they contributed to the loss.

Goodridge visits Plummer Friday.

Badger couldn't stay with Middle River as the host Skippers built quarter leads of 15-6, 33-18 and 48-28.

Duck Stamp Design Chosen By State DNR

A painting by artist Phil Scholer of Kasson, has been chosen as the winning design for the 1982 Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

The painting depicts a pair of redhead ducks on the water. The design was selected by a panel of judges from among 171 entries.

The stamp is required of all waterfowl hunters in Minnesota ages 18 to 64 inclusive and is in addition to the requirement of a federal duck stamp.

Several of the designs entered in the contest, including the winner, will be on display at the Science Museum of Minnesota, 10th and Wabasha Street, St. Paul from January 12 through March 21.

DNR NEWS

Department of Natural Resources has reminded anglers of some ice fishing regulations.

Ice fishermen are allowed to use two lines while open water anglers are restricted to only one line. The use of "tip-ups" became legal three years ago and ice fishermen are allowed to use a tip-up on each line.

Anglers must be within 80 feet of their lines at all times to avoid violating the law against fishing with an "unattended" line. Officials explained that placing the lines more than 80 feet apart would not allow an angler to check one line and still remain within the required distance of the other.

Tip-ups are devices with small flats or metal plates which tip to signal the angler that a fish is biting. No tip-ups may be used which is designed to automatically hook the fish.

Fishing shelters must have the name and address of the owner plainly and legibly painted on the outside in letters and figures at least three inches in height.

A metal tag, furnished with the shelter license, must be attached to the exterior as described in the fishing regulations.

Eagles Rally, Defeat Cards 36-29 Tuesday

Erskine-Plummer watched a 29-27 lead slip away in the final two matches Tuesday as the Cardinals lost a 36-29 dual meet high school wrestling decision to East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Although the Eagles came up with the winning points at 185 and at heavyweight, the Cardinals lost, said coach Gary Brantl, because of a couple of unexpected losses at the lower weights. "I feel we should have won the match," he said.

The defeat dropped the Cardinals' dual meet record to 1-4. They'll participate in the Warren invitational tournament Saturday.

Girls Basketball . . .

Cards Lose In Final Seconds

Plummer watched as Strandquist freshman Lisa Nelson sank two free throws with six seconds remaining Monday to give the Warriors a 35-34 girls high school basketball victory over the visiting Cardinals.

Sheila Sorenson gave Plummer a 34-33 edge with nine seconds to play by making one of two free throws, but Nelson, who had seen limited playing time, was fouled in the backcourt just three seconds later and scored her only points on two perfect free throws.

Playing very deliberate basketball, Strandquist fell behind 10-5 at the end of the first quarter and trailed 20-17 at halftime before taking a 25-22 third quarter lead.

It wasn't a very good performance by the Cardinals, reported Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, who watched his team shoot just 21 per cent from the field (12-for-56). Strandquist shot 27 per cent (13-for-48). The foul-plagued contest saw the Cardinals sink 10 of 24 free throw opportunities (42 per cent) while the Warriors were 9-for-23 at the line (39 per cent).

Plummer, 1-3, will visit Goodridge Thursday to close out its pre-holiday schedule.

Goodridge 40

Balanced scoring that featured four players in double figures carried Grygla-Gatzke past Goodridge 63-40 Monday at Grygla.

Sheri Anderson led the Eagles with 16 points, but Kim McLean contributed 13, Tammy Sistad 12 and Jean Verbout 10. Mary Jo Kiesow of Goodridge led all scorers with 23 points and Susie Johnson had 14, but those two players produced 37 of the 40 Goodridge points.

"We had a real good game; a real team effort," praised Grygla-Gatzke coach Bill Radeunz.

The Eagles led at the quarter stops 18-10, 38-22 and 51-28.

Grygla-Gatzke shot a strong 53 per cent from the field (31-for-59), but went just 1-for-11 at the free throw line. Goodridge shot 25 per cent from the floor (14-for-55) and 52 per cent at the line (12-for-23).

The Eagles go into the holiday break with a 4-1 record. They'll be idle until Tuesday, January 5, when they host Tri-County. The Huskies will try to snap a season-opening four-game losing streak Thursday at home against Plummer.

National Wildlife Federation News Release

With national water supplies in a fast decline, many experts say Americans are heading for a water crisis that could surpass any resource shortage yet encountered.

But even more vulnerable than humans to dwindling and increasingly polluted water supplies are the animals and plants that make their homes in and around watery environments. They're already suffering, reports the current issue of National Wildlife magazine. As man takes more water, wildlife has less left to live on.

In some states, conservationists have taken to building and maintaining concrete or steel-lined drinking holes for animals threatened by ever more diversions of water by humans. Arizona has more than 800 such watering holes, says the magazine, and California has perhaps twice as many. Desert bighorn sheep and deer in those states have already benefited from the man-made cisterns, called "guzzlers."

Despite such success stories, however, wildlife in mountain, desert and forest areas is feeling increasing pressure from water deficits. Free water is disappearing, according to the bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

It's happened in Nebraska, where a proposal to divert water from tributaries of the Platte river for power and agricultural uses posed a serious threat to many fish, birds and mammals. There, the National Wildlife Federation filed suit to stop the plan, which affected several endangered species, including the whooping crane. The case was settled with the creation of a trust fund to protect the threatened wildlife.

In other places, animals and plant life face the menace of pollution. According to National Wildlife, brook trout, bullheads, salamanders, frogs, mayflies and zooplankton have all but disappeared from upstate New York because of acid rain that has turned fresh water lakes into pools of water with the acidity of vinegar. Acid rain — precipitation that becomes highly acidic as it falls through polluted air — is now threatening other lakes and waterways across the country.

The dilemma is only one facet of the water resources problem — a problem that many experts say will end in disaster if Americans don't awaken to the need for sound and large scale water management. It certainly is not a question of not having enough water to begin with, says National Wildlife. More than four trillion gallons of rain or snow fall on the United States every day.

Rather, it's a problem of contaminated supplies, of inefficeint irrigation practices, of uneven distribution (North Carolina gets 50 inches of rain a year, while Nevada gets a mere nine inches), of failing water systems full of leaks that lose up to half of the water that flows through pipes, and of conflicting jurisdictional claims to some bodies of water.

For instance, agriculture, by far the biggest water consumer in the country, wastes at least half of the water it irrigates with, reports National Wildlife. The culprits are inefficient and outdated irrigation methods — such as open-ditch irrigation, which delivers only 50 per cent of its water to plants. But in most parts of the U.S., water is so cheap that farmers have no incentive to save.

In other regions, groundwater — the undergound supply of water — is in trouble. Where droughts have dwindled surface water supplies, people have gone underground for more water — and now they're draining the resource faster than it can be replenished. Man is emptying some supplies, according to National Wildlife, that Nature has been building for more than 25,000 years.

And as for the most immediate problem — pollution — groundwater simply cannot be cleaned up like surface waters. When industrial solvents or gasoline seep into well supplies, the only solution is to abandon the well field.

Every living creature pays a price for declining quality and quantities of water, says National Wildlife. But Americans can no longer afford to let wildlife fend for itself where water is concerned. Instead, the magazine suggests that man should begin to take corrective steps in an evironment that he chose to alter in the first place.

Poachers Are Netted By FWS Agents In S.D.

More than 20 South Dakotans have been taken into custody by federal and state officers in a wild game poaching investigation that extends into at least eight states.

Special agent-in-charge Terry Grosz of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), Denver, said the operation was centered in Custer, South Dakota but the investigation involved activities extending to Wyoming, Illinois, Ohio, North Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and California.

Grosz said those apprehended December 1 were accused of approximately 50 federal and 250 South Dakota wildlife law violations — ranging from illegal transportation of game animals across state boundaries, to grand theft and conspiracy to commit grand theft. A number of the suspects were charged with illegally taking and selling or purchasing deer, elk, antelope, and deer and elk antlers. A commercial market for antlers exists to supply a demand, principally in the Orient, where it is believed that antlers have aphrodisiac properties.

Initial arrests represented a major development in an eight-month undercover investigation conducted by FWS and the South Dakota Department of Game, Fish and Parks. The arrests were conducted by 12 teams of federal and state officers, coordinated by Jack Merwin, South Dakota secretary of Game, Fish and Parks and FWS special agent John Cooper of Pierre.

Rondorfs Return Home From Texas

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf returned home Saturday evening after spending a week visiting at the home of his army friend and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Strautz, at Alamo, Texas. They traveled by Republic Airline from Thief River Falls via Minneapolis to Fort Worth Airport at Dallas and from there by Texas International Airline to McAllen, where they were met by Mr. and Mrs. Strautz.

Sunday was spent visiting and reminiscing, with a noon dinner at the Bronco Restaurant. The next day they all went sight-seeing in the Progreso, Mexico area, and the following day in the Falcon Dam area in Mexico. This dam had been financed by both the United States and Mexico, and is used to control the flow of water for irrigation purposes in the farming area of the Rio Grande Valley. The citrus fruit groves had been diked and are flooded periodically as needed.

Wednesday they visited the shops in Reymosa, Mexico and Thursday were to South Padre Island, where the hurricane had hit two years ago this past summer. In this area there was often drifting of very fine sand, making it necessary to blade the roads occasionally, as snowplows remove snow from our roads. Here they enjoyed picking sea shells of various shapes but were warned not to pickup any of the many blue jelly fish along the shore, due to their sting. There were still traces in the sand of the oil slick that occurred on the Gulf of Mexico some time ago.

Friday they visited the shopping mall in McAllen. While in Texas the Rondorfs experienced daytime temperatures ranging from 75 to 85 degrees, and at night 50 to 60 degrees. They reported a very enjoyable as well as an educational trip.

FARMS
— FOR SALE —

It's a buyers market and we think the smart guy, 2 years from now, is buying now!!

We have 22 farms exclusively listed totaling 12,000 acres.

A year ago in December we had 14,000 and by July of '81 we badly needed listings.

Everyone knows what farm land did since the '70's and most of N.W. Minn. still has to play catch up.

Seriously, don't you think you better get some more of man's best investment? Let's talk about it.

We sold 45 farms in 1981. For 12 years, each year, we have sold more farms. This will also be true in '82.

In Memoriam

In memory of Sam Oswald who passed away December 15, 1976:

There comes a time for all of us when we must say goodby,
But faith and hope and love and trust can never, never die.
Although the curtain falls at last, is that a cause to grieve?
The future's fairer than the past, if only we believe.
We know that we shall meet again on that bright golden shore,
Where we shall sing and tell God's love forever, evermore.
Soon we will meet again in a land where there's no more pain,
In that bright and joyful tomorrow, where praise is an eternal refrain.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors who expressed their sympathy in the death of our husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather and brother with cards, memorials and floral offerings.

We are grateful to Pastor Keeler for his visits to Louis the past years at hospitals and rest homes, and for the very comforting messages and prayers.

Thank you to Sandra Rustan and Al Riches for the beautiful music and message of songs, to the pallbearers for their services, and the Oak Park ladies aid for serving lunch and to everyone who brought food to our home.

We want to thank all who have visited and given encouragement to Louis throughout the years. May God bless you all.

Black-Footed Ferret Found In Wyoming

A rare black-footed ferret, the only positively known living member of its species, has been captured alive in Wyoming and outfitted with a tiny radio transmitter so that federal wildlife biologists can learn more about the habits of these secretive, nocturnal animals.

The ferret, captured October 29 by wildlife biologists of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is the first live-black-footed ferret to be taken in the wild since 1973, in spite of intensive searches by federal and state biologists in a number of western states.

"We are quite excited about finding this extremely rare, endangered mammal and having the opportunity to monitor its movements," said Eugene Hester, deputy director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "By studying this animal, we hope to obtain information that will help wildlife biologists bring this species back to healthy numbers."

The ferret, a male judged to be no more than two years old and weighing about two and one-quarter pounds, was spotted in a prairie dog colony by wildlife biologists, who were looking for ferrets. They followed it to a hole where they succeeded in capturing it in a live-trap when it emerged several hours later. The biologists attached a small radio-transmitter to a collar placed around the ferret's neck, observed the animal overnight, and released it unharmed in the morning. The transmitter is expected to operate for four to six months, enabling biologists to gather information about such factors as the ferret's daily and seasonal activity patterns, the amount of time it spends in burrows, its feeding activity, and whether it is nomadic. It is also hoped that the radio-tagged ferret may lead the biologists to other ferrets.

Exact location of the ferret's capture is being withheld to avoid distrubance to the landowners and to the scientific work.

Considered by many wildlife biologists to be the most severely endangered mammal in the United States, the black-footed ferret is a weasel-like animal about 24 inches long with a black mask over its eyes, black feet and a black-tipped tail.

In an attempt to increase the ferret's numbers, several ferrets were taken out of the wild between 1971 and 1973 for breeding in captivity at the service's Patuxent wildlife research center in Laurel, Maryland. Although young ferrets were born, none survived, and the adults were found to have serious disease problems such as cancerous tumors and diabetes. The last captive ferret died in 1978.

Whooping Crane Population Being Watched By US FWS

Four whooping crane chicks were raised in wild and captive flocks in 1981, a year which may see a slight population decline despite intensive research to propagate the endangered species.

Highlight of this year's research is a first-time effort by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Canadian Wildlife Service to radio track the main flock on their 2,600-mile fall migration from Canada's Wood Buffalo national park to the Texas Gulf Coast. On October 12, trackers reported one of the chicks hit a power line in north Saskatchewan and died several days later of apparent spinal injuries.

While researchers expressed regret over the loss of the young crane, they emphasized that had the flock not been tracked, the fate of the bird probably would have remained a mystery. Service scientists stress that the more they learn about mortalities, the better prepared they are to prevent them. Previous collisions with power lines have been documented in the Grays Lake national wildlife refuge flock. Power companies in problem areas have cooperated with researchers to solve the problem, sometimes by attaching brightly colored markers to the lines.

Wood Buffalo flock produced three chicks this year during an exceptionally dry nesting season that saw increased egg losses to predatory animals. In August, brush fires swept through the forests and marshes, eventually destroying some 70 per cent of the cranes' nesting habitat. However, the chicks escaped the revaged area with their parents and the rest of the flock.

All three chicks in the Wood Buffalo flock were captured and fitted with radio transmitters by U.S. - Canadian researchers several weeks before fire ignited the habitat. Trackers followed the first two chicks to leave Wood Buffalo; the first was being tracked by a team of U.S. and Canadian government biologists in a Canadian airplane when it hit the power line. In Southern Saskatchewan an American plane carrying a Canadian biologist — the only tracker to follow the entire route — was standing by to pick up the trail, with a ground research team also following the flock. The same tracking procedures now are being used to track the second chick, last reported to be near Texas. Earlier, trackers found that the tagged chick had covered 470 miles in one day at altitudes of up to 9,000 feet, leaving Montana, overflying North and South Dakota, and landing in Nebraska.

As the international team began monitoring the main flock, other researchers recaptured a captive-reared female whooper set free last spring at Grays Lake national wildlife refuge in Idaho. The female had been transported to Idaho from the Patuxent wildlife research center near Washington, D.C., as a possible mate for a lone male raised by sandhill crane surrogate parents. However, scientists felt the two whoopers did not establish a strong enough bond to guarantee that the male would lead the female on the 870 mile migration route to Bosque del Apache national wildlife refuge in New Mexico.

Grays Lake foster flock was started in 1975 to establish a second wild flock of whooping cranes, to build the birds' population and to eventually ensure separate migratory flocks. This would diminish the chance of a national disaster eradicating the species in the wild. The sandhill cranes in Idaho hatch "spare" eggs taken from nests at Wood Buffalo and from a captive breeding flock at Patuxent. A recent shortage of suitable female whoopers prompted scientists to introduce the female raised at Patuxent into the foster flock. Since the recaptured Patuxent female made a good adjustment to the wild, researchers will repeat the experiment next year.

Despite the two surviving chicks raised at Wood Buffalo park and one raised in captivity at Patuxent, scientists say the whooping crane population has not increased, as several mortalities are known. A complete count will be conducted when migration ends in December, and will probably show a slight decline. However, the bird that has become a symbol of all endangered species has been making a gradual comeback: In 1980, whoopers numbered nearly 100 in the wild and 24 in captivity, in contrast to a dismal low of 15 in 1941, when many considered the cranes' extinction to be inevitable.

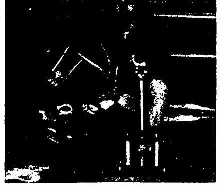
TIP Program Is Praised By NRA Leader

Minnesota's new Turn In Poachers (TIP) program has received the praises of the National Rifle Association, according to DNR commissioner Joseph Alexander.

In a letter from Gary Anderson, NRA executive director, Alexander was told that the association has observed the success of similar programs in New Mexico and Colorado and is convinced that a program which provides rewards for persons who supply information that leads to the arrest of poachers can be successful.

The association said it has urged its members in Minnesota, most of whom are licensed hunters, to actively support the program and make it a success.

The Veterans Administration is carrying out a congressional mandate to insure that VA medical care for non-service connected problems is provided only to veterans clearly eligible for it under current law.



FIRST PLACE award in the St. Hilaire buck contest went to Mike Fanfulik of St. Hilaire, who downed this 188-pound animal during the 1981 deer hunting season. Runner-up in the contest was Lynn Forman of Red Lake Falls with a 187-pound buck and third place finisher was David Hoglo of St. Hilaire with a 156-pounder.

Snowmobile Races Slated At Alexandria

There will be several new aspects to the annual professional snowmobile race scheduled for the Douglas county fairgrounds at Alexandria December 18-20, race officials reported this week.

It will be called the "Super Seer holiday spectacular" and there will be action on the race track starting on Friday when the snocross eliminations get under way. The three-day race includes the sport five international snocross championship and the 340-X international championship.

Snocross championship event has already attracted 60 entries from the world's very best snowmobile race drivers, according to officials. The prize schedule for snocross includes a $12,000 Chevy 4-wheel drive pickup truck with a Meyer snowplow plus $5,000 in cash awards from second through 11th place. The 12-sled final provides one of snowmobile racing's hairest momments as they all charge into the first turn.

This is the second year for the snocross event which is simply snowmobiles on a moto-cross type course of bumps, jumps, twists, and turns. The first snocross event in North America was held at Alexandria last year and has prompted an explosion of interest in the racing concept. This year many snocross events are being scheduled in both the U.S. and Canada.

The 340-X international championship is professional Sno Pro drivers on the most exotic snowmobile racing equipment. About 30 drivers from all over Canada and the United States will again provide the most exciting momments in any form of racing competition as they go for a $7,000 cash purse and the Super Seer Cup.

Defending World's Champion Brad Hulings and Team Bombardier are the only factory team left in snowmobile racing. But 25 other drivers all feel they have an excellent chance of beating the unique and sophisticated Bombardier twin track racers. Jim Dimmerman, formerly of Team Arctic, will be riding the Super Scorpion sleds which carried Brad Hulings to so many wins last year.

Track workers started last week to build the ice and sawdust race tracks which are needed. Before they are through, some 400,000 to 500,000 gallons of water and a small mountain of sawdust will be used.

Bob Davis has informed hunters about the safe zone of fire, meaning the safe zone for hunters in the fields. Here is detailed information pertinent to the sport of hunting:

The bird flushed, headed straight out, then veered off to the right. The hunter didn't shoot . . . the bird had left the safe zone of fire.

Safe zones of fire may sound complicated, but they aren't. Safe zones of fire are simply those areas in which a shot may be fired without endangering others or damaging property. Most often thought of in relation to other hunters, safe zones of fire also must be considered in areas where buildings, roads and livestock may make shooting in certain directions unsafe.

When this is the case, "off limits" shooting areas should be pointed out to everyone in the hunting party. When hunting on someone else's land for the first time, it's important to ask where the "off limits" areas are. On any hunting trip, there are a number of points concerning safe zones of fire to remember.

Remember:

+ You can't know what your safe zone of fire is unless you know where all your hunting partners are at all times.

+ Wearing a hunter orange cap and vest helps in keeping everyone in your group in sight.

+ You should be careful, when swinging on a bird, not to swing beyond your safe zone of fire.

+ You should pay particular attention to where your hunting partners are when moving through heavy cover. If you lose sight of your partners, signal back and forth every few minutes to maintain contact.

+ You should always consider safe zones of fire when positioning hunters in a field or on a drive. Be sure that each hunter knows where he is supposed to be and knows the locations of other hunters.

+ You should never move without letting your hunting partners know of your plans.

+ Always know what is behind your target before you shoot.

Shoot or don't shoot; it's an almost split-second decision required in many hunting situations. Knowing your safe zone of fire allows you to hunt with the confidence that any shot you take will be a safe one.

Public Reports On Endangered Species Status

Members of the public have identified a wide range of issues that should be addressed during a dual review of the endangered species act now being conducted by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, according to Ronald A. Lambertson, the service's associate director for federal assistance.

The dual study is being made as part of the government-wide regulatory review process and also in preparation for congressional reauthoritzation hearings next year. Endangered species act of 1973 expries in September 1982 unless reauthorized by Congress.

Lambertson said some 400 comments were received on about 50 issues from state and federal agencies, private conservation groups, business and industry representatives, universities, and individual members of the public. Fish and Wildlife service had requested public participation in a September 18 notice in the Federal Register.

"Since the comment period closed," Lambertson said, "we've been evaluating the policies, procedures, and problems we've identified with the public's help. Some can be resolved administratively, but others may have to be resolved through the regulatory or legislative process. We are now organizing these issues into more specific categories and assigning priorities for thorough review."

Lambertson said that preliminary efforts have identified 12 major issues as "first priority," including such questions as whether the act should cover separate populations and subspecies of wildlife as opposed to entire species; whether a separate listing category should be added for "experimental populations" (such as the foster flock of whooping cranes established in Idaho); and whether controls should be reduced on wildlife kept in captivity. Some items ranked as "Priority II" include how hybrids should be dealt with under the act and whether removing endangered plants from the wild should be prohibited.

Public comments are available for inspection at the Office of Endangered Species, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1000 North Glebe Road, Arlington, VA.

'U'M Tries Storing Heated Water For Winter Retrieval

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

Engineers and geologists at the University of Minnesota are creating an underground heat-storage bubble to test the feasibility of saving summer waste heat for use in colder months.

This week, in the first stage of the largest experiment of its kind, water heated to 100C (212 F) is being pumped 820 feet underground into a thick layer of slow-moving, well-insulated watery sand called an aquifer. Some 80 per cent of the heat should be recovered when the water is withdrawn.

Because nearly three-fourths of all major American cities lie over aquifers of some kind, this storage of heat energy has great potential for solar and district heating, said James O'Gara, engineer and aquifer project director at the university. Smaller projects using cool water have begun in Stonybrook, N.Y., and with warmer water, in Bethel, Alaska, at Auburn university in Alabama, and in several European and Far Eastern countries. Minnesota's is the only attempt to test the feasibility of injecting heat in summer, then retrieving it for use in winter.

In the first stage of the experiment water at 54 C (129 F) is being withdrawn from the aquifer, heated to 100 C (212 F) and then injected into the aquifer at a second pump site 800 feet away. Although the project is designed to test the feasibility of utilizing waste heat, the temperature of the water used in the experimental stages is being raised by conventional heaters.

After eight days, the water will be recovered and the heat removed by a heat exchanger between the wells. This massive pipe system extracts and measures the heat both before and after its early experimental aquifer storage.

Eventually project engineers hope to pump water heated to 150C (302 F) into the ground at the rate of 300 gallons per minute and withdraw it 180 days later, creating a 5-megawatt thermopower system. At that point, O'Gara said, the university will decide whether to ask the federal department of energy (DOE) to fund a full-scale demonstration of the summer-to-winter heating system that could eventually save 30 per cent of the raw energy costs for the university's St. Paul campus.

The pilot project, which has received nearly $2 million from the Doe's Battelle Pacific Northwest laboratory, should be paying for itself by 1985 or 1986, O'Gara said. The technology should then be transferrable to utility companies, large solar energy concerns and other large users across the country where slow aquifers of the right porosity are found.

The Minnesota project is being done in stages so that environmental conditions can be carefully monitored, O'Gara said. The first heat bubble is expected to be hourglass shaped and cover a 40-foot-diameter area within the thousands of square miles of the Franconia-Ironton-Galesville aquifer which extends into four states. A slatted screen on the injection cylinder is already drawing and returning only clean water from the aquifer, without contaminating it with materials from the layers of glacial drift, shale, sandstone, dolomite, quartz and less-pure water it passes through. Nine monitoring wells are also being used to check water quality at points in the aquifer near the storage site and at water supply sites some 800 feet apart.

The pumping will not drain the aquifer of a single gallon of its extraordinarily clean water either. "What comes out goes back in. Only heat is added," O'Gara said.

The heat bubble should be stable, he said. Like a thermos bottle, it is well insulated within a "sandwich" of clay layers. Any change in temperature, pressure or flow rate will immediately register on displays and alarms at the surface. These will be monitored constantly by teams from the Minnesota geological survey under Matt Walton and the U.S. geological survey under Robert Miller. Any such information would be transmitted to the Minnesota pollution control agency, Minnesota department of health and the department of natural resources which regulate the project.

Probably the most complicated problem of water chemistry in the project is under study by Steve Eisenreich, professor of civil engineering at the university, and Tom Holm, visiting professor in the department. They are looking at the possibility that grains of the sandstone and other rock particles permeating the aquifer will dissolve from the heat and form new minerals such as calcite, dolomite and muscovite. These minerals might then clog the aquifer in the well area. As the water is brought up and cooled within the heat exchanger, these minerals could also form scales there and interfere with operations.

One of Eisenreich's graduate students has begun heat treatments of rock grains from the exact storage area. Ground water sampling is also beginning. Soon, the slight movement of heat and water within the aquifer should be measurable too.

But potential problems do not compare to ground water contamination by toxic chemicals in other areas, Eisenreich said. This aquifer was chosen out of many under the Twin Cities area because it lies very deep and moves very slowly. Only one well in the area reaches it, O'Gara said, so that pumping has not changed water pressures, which can increase the flow rate of aquifers.

"The worst case is that this aquifer might get plugged (clogged) in one small area, wasting the months of drilling," Eisenreich said.

"In this project, any contaminants would be discovered and easily pumped out. Every precaution is being taken," said Brad Sielaff, soil scientist at the Minnesota pollution control agency.

Energy Assist Offer Made In East Marshall

Northwest Community Action, Inc., Badger, is taking energy assistance applications from residents of east Marshall county, which includes those living in Strandquist or east of highway 59.

Applications will be taken from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today, December 14 at Gatzke senior citizen center; December 15 at Holt senior citizen center, December 16 at Grygla senior citizen center, December 17 at Strandquist Lutheran church, and December 18 at Middle River community center.

Eligibility and amount of assistance will be based on income and family size in relation to energy cost. Annual medical expenses in excess of three per cent of household's annual income and not reimbursed by insurance or other sources may be deducted when determining eligibility. Homeowners who cut their own wood for fuel, and renters may also be eligible for assistance.

Persons applying for assistance should bring proof of income such as copies of pay stubs, wage statements, award letters from Social Security and SSI benefit payment checks, and 1980 income tax return for Farmers and self-employed; past due utility and energy bills; medical expenses for 12 months; and estimated net worth.

Those having further questions may call Karen Skadsem, outreach aide, at 222-3309 or toll free 1-800-542-5004.

Open House At Alumni Center At UND

A community open house will be conducted this weekend (December 19 and 20) at the J. Lloyd Stone alumni center at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, "Do you believe that it was necessary for Jesus to be born of a Virgin. If so, why?

A. The doctrine of the virgin birth has been believed by the church from it's very beginning.

The Miracle of the virgin birth of Jesus Christ has been a problem to some people because it was a miracle. Scripture does not treat this event as an ordinary occurrence, but rather as a supernatural act of God.

There are several reasons why the virgin birth was necessary. One of the reasons was that Jesus Christ must have sinless blood flowing in His veins. Sinful heredity is transmitted through the blood and not through the flesh. God had to find a way whereby Jesus could be perfectly human according to the flesh and yet not have the blood of sinful humanity. That problem was solved by the virgin birth.

It is now definitely known that the blood which flows in an unborn babe's arteries and veins is not derived from the mother but is produced within the body of the fetus itself only after the introduction of the male sperm.

Joseph could not have been the father of our Lord Jesus Christ, or Christ would have had sinful blood. Christ's blood came from God by the process of a miracle through the agent of the Holy Spirit.

Luke 1:35 L.B. says to the virgin Mary, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon you, and the power of God shall overshadow you; so the baby born to you will be utterly holy - the Son of God."

Several hundred years before the birth of Christ, the prophet Isaiah said in Is. 7:14, "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

It is very important that the blood of Jesus Christ be pure and holy so that we might have our sins forgiven by the blood of Christ.

Hebrews 9:22 teaches "that without the shedding of Christ's blood, there can be no forgiveness of sin."

Hebrews 9:14 says "How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God."

The virgin birth of Christ is not only a historical fact, but it was also a necessary historical fact when one considers all the data.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

EVANGELICAL COVENANT CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL Will Be Presenting THE CHRISTMAS STORY
In A Unique Musical Drama On SUNDAY, DEC. 20, 7:00 P.M.
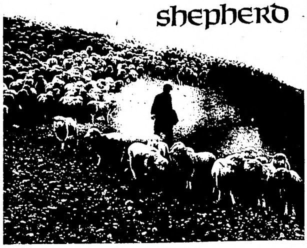
— EVERYONE WELCOME —



Whoever he is, wherever he is — I respect this man.

Naturally I respect anyone whose presence can bring calmness and peace where there could have been confusion and turmoil.

As for me, I'm just a writer. With others I've been writing on behalf of the Church — with conviction and enthusiasm — for many a year. Rarely until now have I written in the first person.

But this picture challenges one to identify himself. On this rocky hillside teeming with restless life only one is master, guide, guardian of all.

I share with you the common realization: I am not that one. We share too the simple faith that knows: The Lord is my Shepherd.

MN. Winters Aren't So Bad ....Are They?

December may not be the best time to mention this, but winter in Minnesota is a tropical paradise — compared to some other places in the solar system.

A freezing drizzle of natural gas is a daily event on Titan, Saturn's largest satellite. Titan's atmosphere is always about minus 350 degrees Fahrenheit and it constantly creates rain. And, since the atmosphere is very dense even a mild breeze could knock a person to the ground.

Beyond Saturn lie the three coldest planets, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto. There, as on Titan, the extreme cold isn't just seasonal — it is a permanent condition. There are, however, winters on these planets when one hemisphere tilts away from the sun as Earth's northern half is now doing. Because of Uranus's extreme tilt, the planet has a winter season half its year or 42 Earth years. That planet's average winter temperature is about half the average summer temperature.

On Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, all of which are billions of miles away from the sun, temperatures never rise above minus 400 degrees Fahrenheit. That is close to the absolute zero temperature of minus 460 degrees Fahrenheit at which matter is so still it can provide no energy.

Earth winters also offer some unusual phenomena. Each snowflake formed in Earth's atmosphere is a frozen cloud droplet surrounded by more than a billion billion ice particles arranged as a crystal. And it is true that no two snowflakes are alike since the possible arrangements are almost infinite.

While starwatchers ponder their cozy existence on Earth, they can see several of the closer and warmer planets in the early December skies. Venus, now an evening star, is the hottest planet in the solar system with winter temperatures around 650 degrees Fahrenheit. Look for Venus in the southwest sky at sunset. A martian winter noon is cold, but only about minus 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Look for Mars before dawn, south of the bright star Regulus.

Also starwatchers can search the morning skies for Jupiter and Saturn. Jupiter will appear east of another bright star, Spica, in the Eastern sky and Saturn will be just north of Spica.

Minnesota Starwatch is a twice-monthly guide to the night sky in the Upper Midwest. Information is provided by members of the astronomy department of the University of Minnesota. To hear a taped version of Starwatch, call (612) 376-5587.

Driver Health Significant In Traffic Safety

It is possible to be in good health, have an excellent driving record and still be a less than ideal driver because of some physical or emotional condition. Under such conditions it may even be dangerous to get behind the wheel of a vehicle.

Emotional stability of the driver is vital to maintaining traffic safety. Do not drive if you have serious problems on your mind. Drivers who take to the road preoccupied with an argument at home or the office, may be increasing accident vulnerability. When experiencing feelings of depression or an "I don't care" attitude, it might be advisable not to drive.

Drowsy drivers also cause many accidents. If you are sleepy do not attempt to drive because sleepy drivers can be as much of a hazard as drunk drivers. Remember, dozing at the wheel can occur in broad daylight as well as at night. Stop for a break every two hours on long trips. If you become drowsy pull up and rest.

Medicines can affect driving ability in various ways. Antihistamines, cold tablets, and mild sedatives may dull reflexes and impair coordination. Stimulants can cause nervousness. Tranquilizers can cloud driver judgment. Alcohol and gasoline are a dangerous combination, when the alcohol is in the driver and the gasoline is in the tank. It is not necessary to be intoxicated to be dangerous as a driver. Consumption of alcoholic beverages can affect and impair judgment and reactions.

Clear, healthy eyesight is an essential prerequisite to driver fitness. This includes good side vision, judgment of distance, and ability to see well at night. Have your eyes examined regularly. Wear glasses when you drive if you have them for distance vision.

Ask your physician whether you can be a safe driver if you have a nervous disorder, heart condition or diabetes. Reflexes and coordination tend to be slower with advancing age. If you are past 65, discuss with your doctor any conditions which could affect your driver fitness.

MMA Explains More Common Types Of Pain

Pain, observes the Minnesota Medical association (MMA), has sometimes been referred to as a blessing because it sends the patient to a doctor for treatment. A lesser form of pain may be referred to as discomfort or aching. Occasional mild pain which nearly everyone has experienced is either self-limiting or responds to simple home care.

However, pain which is severe or that continues for more than two or three hours, comes back again and again in the same way, or is a continuous ache, should be investigated by a physician. Minnesota Medical association lists the more common types of pain which may indicate the need for further medical attention:

+ Earaches, particularly in children;

+ Abdominal pain, severe pain beyond the "bellyache" type, usually associated with eating too much food or the wrong kind of food;

+ Joint pain, especially in children, which may indicate the beginnings of arthritis, or of acute rheumatic fever;

+ Muscle pains, due to strains, sprains; rheumatic conditions, nervous or circulatory disturbances;

+ Eye pains, especially if sudden and severe and radiating over the head. If they are due to glaucoma, vision may be lost or seriously impaired in only a few hours. While this is uncommon, it is very serious;

+ Chest pains, may be due to conditions in the chest muscles, to heart or lung diseases, pleurisy, overexertion when out of condition, or injury.

+ Growing pains, important because normal growth is painless, and so-called growing pains should always arouse suspicion of something wrong. Often the cause is rheumatic fever or related conditions;

+ Colicky pains in babies are not usually serious; in adults they may indicate stones, especially in the kidney and the gall bladder.

+ Cramps may affect muscles anywhere in the body, or may occur in the intestines, the gall bladder, or the uterus;

+ Painful feet may indicate arthritis, overweight, badly fitted shoes or hose, gout, poor circulation, corns, calluses, diabetes or simply too much standing.

Message Heard On Arthritis Quackery

Many think that anyone falling for the appeal of a quack remedy for arthritis must be either pretty naive or not very bright. According to the Arthritis foundation, most victims of quackery are people so desperate for relief from the pain of arthritis they will try anything. Their better judgement is suspended when it comes to arthritis.

Arthritis foundation reports that $950,000,000 is wasted annually on quack remedies and cures. That is over 15 times as much as is spent on arthritis research.

Quack remedies are always dangerous, a foundation spokesman observed. Even if they are medically harmless they may delay a patient's seeking and sticking with legitimate medical care.

During December the Arthritis foundation has a special message on arthritis quackery that may be heard by calling its toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Literature on quackery is available free to callers.

This service of the Arthritis foundation is made possible in most Minnesota communites by support of the United Fund.

Introduction To Bribery

Following was written by Terry Foy in the December issue of "Minnesota Counties", official publication of the Minnesota Association of Counties:

The recent and ongoing scandal involving the payment of kickbacks to Oklahoma county commissioners has once again focused public attention on corrupt public officials. Because of this, it seems an appropriate time to take a brief look at the legal ramifications to county officials of accepting "gifts" from private individuals.

Bribery, as commonly understood, is the act of giving or receiving a gift for the purpose of effecting the improper discharge of a public duty. A "Kickback" is a bribe involving the payment of money or property to an individual for causing his employer or principal to buy from, to use the services of, or to deal otherwise with the person making the payment. A kickback is often viewed as a specific inducement for a particular sale, or as a reward for accomplishing a particular purpose.

Since it consists of an attack upon the public trust, bribery in any form has always been viewed with repugnance by Americans. Virtually all states have enacted statutes prohibiting the bribery of public officials. Minnesota law provides for a penalty of up to ten years imprisonment and a fine of up to $10,000 for anyone who:

1) Offers, gives, or promises to give, directly or indirectly, to any public officer of employee any benefit, reward or consideration to which he is not legally entitled, with intent thereby to influence such officer of employee with respect to the performance of his powers or duties as such officer or employee. Or,

2) Being a public officer of employee, requests, receives, or agrees to receive, directly or indirectly, any such benefit, reward or consideration upon the understanding that he will be so influenced. (Minn. Stat. 609.42, 1980)

Public officers in Minnesota include members of the governing boards of counties, as well as county administrative and executive officers.

For most people, the idea of bribery or kickbacks evokes the payment of money, and indeed money is the most common medium of payment for the favors of a public official. The classic kickback situation, illustrated on the county level, involves a county official who is approached by a sales agent and is offered 10 per cent of the purchase price if the county purchases his road grader. The county subsequently purchases the grader, and the official receives his "cut".

Both parties in that type of situation are guilty of bribery, and it does not matter which of the parties initiated the illegal transaction. Further, if the county official solicited the ten per cent kickback, he would be guilty of bribery — whether or not the sales agent agreed to pay the bribe.

While bribes most frequently take the form of money, anything of value may constitute a bribe. It is therefore possible that gratuities such as free food, lodging and transportation given to county officials by private parties with whom they conduct business may be considered bribes. Although the Minnesota Supreme Court has not yet ruled on this precise issue, recent decisions in Iowa indicate that such gratuities will be given close scrutiny.

The Iowa Supreme Court has indicated that the acceptance of hospitality by county supervisors from private persons, when related to a business transaction, constitutes prohibited corrupt influence. The county commissioner in one case was alleged to have violated the Iowa statute by receiving meals, books, and convention hotel expenses from contractors in connection with purchases of county equipment, material and services. In a second case, county officials accepted an expense-paid fishing trip and an expense-paid trip to a Minnesota baseball game from contractors and salesmen.

In attempting to determine what gratuities of gifts violated the Iowa bribery statute, the court noted that in order to be corrupt, the influence must involve the transfer of something of value for the official's own private use. Thus, the acceptance by county officials of food and refreshments available in the ordinary course of a luncheon, dinner, or other meeting where the county officer may properly be in attendance would not constitute a bribe. At such functions, the officer is on official business, and is not in any substantial sense receiving an inducement to breach his trust. The motivating factor at such functions is the county's business, not the private interest of the individual.

However, free dinner and drinks at a supper club in celebration of a large county purchase would not be in the same category. Similarly, a gift of books or payment of convention hotel expenses would ordinarily be no different under the statute than an outright cash payment to a public officer which, if related to a business transaction, would constitute a prohibited corrupt practice.

While not the law in Minnesota, the Iowa decisions may provide some guidance for county officials in an increasingly sensitive area. More importantly, the decisions reflect an increased public concern with the morality of elected officials. It would appear that county officials would be best advised to avoid even the appearance of impropriety, by keeping at arm's length all those with whom they conduct business. Should any questions arise in this area, you may want to consult with your county attorney or other qualified legal counsel.

When Things Go Right . . . .

Following editorial is from the Grand Forks Herald:

American farmers sometimes seem to be their own worst enemies. Not that they know they are causing their own problems. It just happens that when everything goes right — that's wrong for the farmers.

That's what happened this year, according to the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington last week. Since everything went right for bumper harvests by American agriculture this year, farmers produced too much to bring them good prices. And that, from their point of view is wrong.

From the point of view of consumers and of government economists, it's right, however. As a result of the big harvests this year, the Agriculture Department economists say the price of food in the United States next year will rise less than it did this year. The bumper crops which cut into farm income won't mean things will cost less next year — just that they won't cost as much more as they otherwise would have. There still will be inflation in food prices, but due to processors' labor costs, along with those of transportation and marketing. The farmers don't share in that, but if consumers complain about higher food prices, it probably will be directed, as usual if mistakenly at the farmers.

The big supplies of grain, potatoes, sugar and vegetable oils — all products of our area — will both hold down consumer prices and make it possible for the United States to sell more products overseas. That will help our balance of payments, without raising farmer income appreciably.

The big harvest in 1981 also is going to mean that more agricultural produce will be held in stockpile. That will tend to prevent farm prices from rising even if next year should not provide as favorable growing conditions as this year did.

The USDA estimate is that net cash farm income will fall in 1982 for the third consecutive year. It could drop as much as $1 billion to $3 billion from the $19 billion estimated for 1981, the USDA economists predicted.

Meanwhile, various economic trends indicate that the gain in farm land value — which has been one salvation for established farmers in recent years — is going to slow down. Inflation in the value of farmland is not expected to keep pace with other inflation in 1982.

All in all, the agricultural outlook conference did little to cheer up U.S. farmers.

Farmers, of course, are familiar with the situation, even if they don't like it. It has always been that way. If crops are good, prices are lower. If crops are bad, they don't have the amount of farm produce to sell at the higher prices which result.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The housewife had a cold and her husband wanted to make her some tea but couldn't seem to locate it in the cupboard. "Men!" the homemaker scoffed from the bedroom. "You can't find anything! The tea is right in front of the shelf with the cleaning supplies in the coca tin marked 'matches'."

Emphasizing the difference between right and wrong, the Sunday school teacher asked: "What would you call a person who took a men's billfold and all of his money out of his pocket?" A little girl raised her hand. "You'd be his wife," she observed.

ANOTHER SUPPER of luke warm gruel heated once more by Scrooge's (Frank Womack) housekeeper, Mrs. Dilber (Sylvia Hustad), faces the old miser in the production of "Mr. Scrooge," to be staged this Friday at 7:30 p.m. and again at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the Northland community college theater in Thief River Falls. Play is under direction of Chameleon theatre veterans, Tony Ricci, Carol Peterson and Martin Keegan. Tickets, available at Larson music company and at the door, are being sold for $3 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens.

Ask Approval For Temporary Road In River

U.S. army corps of engineers has given notice that Lakeview Construction company has filed its intent to place fill material below the ordinary high water mark of the Red Lake river in conjunction with construction of a temporary construction road.

The proposed road would facilitate construction of bridge piers for a new bridge crossing adjacent to CSAH 3 about 7.5 miles southwest of Red Lake Falls. It is projected that the road would be in place no more than 160 days, after which it would be excavated and all excavated material placed in an approved county disposal site.

Approximately 500 cubic yards of granular river bank material would be used to fill an area 100 feet long and 40 feet wide to a depth of 4.5 feet.

Interested parties may submit written facts, arguments or objections by December 23 to the District Engineer, St. Paul District, Corps of Engineers, 1135 U.S. Post Office and Custom House, St. Paul, MN 55101. Letters should be marked for attention of the regulatory functions branch.

Minnesota Zoo Offers Visitor "Little Extras"

A variety of experiences are available to put a "little extra" into a visit to the Minnesota Zoo in Apple Valley.

Beluga whales are being taught to identify shapes and to discriminate one shape from another using their echolocation abilities. This program can be seen several times a day, from risers which are available for inside viewing. Times are posted.

Volunteers give daily animal demonstrations in the lower level pit area, showing the animals and telling about their habitats and why they are essential to our environment. At the newly expanded ZooLab a chance is offered to interact with and learn about the animals. While visitors look at and touch the reptiles, birds and mammals, staff and volunteers will answer questions.

At the zoo theatre several slide and film shows acquaint visitors with the zoo animals, facility and "what's new."

In the winter, admission fees include a chance to cross-country ski through the northern trail. Skiers can then warm up with a trip through the tropics.

Persons preferring to rest can ride the monorail, for a 20-minute personally narrated ride through the northern trail past roaming camels, tigers, moose, musk oxen, elk, and a waterfowl exhibit featuring North America's cranes, geese, shorebirds and ducks.

Groups of 25 or more visiting the Minnesota Zoo can receive 20 per cent discount on admission. For reservations or information on discounts, tours, or special services, contect Group Sales Department (612) 432-9010, or write Minnesota Zoo, Apple Valley, MN 55124.

The Minnesota Zoo is open all year.

For dessert, feature a continental chocolate fondue. Make it quickly from sweet cooking chocolate and apricot flavored brandy. For dippers, arrange a platter of dried fruits and nuts. Dried apricots give the perfect flavor combination, and they're nutritious too.

FESTIVE CHOCOLATE 'N APRICOT FONDUE
(Makes about 1½ cups)

⅓ cup milk
3 tablespoons apricot flavored brandy
2 tablespoons sugar

"The Best Tax Shelter and Retirement Plan Going"

A highly significant opportunity to help yourself! Becomes available on January 1, 1982. The Tax Act of 1981 makes Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's) available to all employees and self employed persons including everyone covered under an existing and qualifed pension or profit sharing plan. Thus, you are eligible to make deductible contributions to an IRA.

Here's an example of just how significant. Now any worker can invest up to $2,000 ($2,250 with a non-working spouse) in an IRA. Assume you want to contribute $2,000 a year pre-tax (equivalent to $1,400 after tax) for 30 years and the investments earn 10%* a year, and the rate is considerably higher at the present time. Here's what you will accumulate in an IRA versus taxable investments.

	IRA Investments	TAXABLE INVESTMENTS
30 Years	$390,394.32	$132,245.10

*Substantial Penalty for Early Withdrawal

The huge difference is a result of two IRA tax advantages. First, investing with pre-tax, rather than after tax dollars ($2,000 versus $1,400 in our example). Second, investment income accumulates tax free in the IRA. Of course, you will have to pay ordinary income taxes on your IRA investments when you take it out. But you should be way ahead regardless of the future tax bracket (which will probably be lower at retirement).

There's another IRA advantage . . . The incentive to save regularly and leave the funds for retirement. This is important in the view of present concerns about future Social Security program. You can take advantage of this IRA program by contacting Elody Olson, your personal banker who has the Answers.

Many Causes Of Abdominal Pain, Says MMA

There are hundreds of causes of abdominal pain which can affect old and young alike, says the Minnesota Medical association (MMA).

Some abdominal pains can be serious and require immediate medical care. Prompt medical attention should be sought without delay if abdominal pain symptoms are severe. Never give an enema, laxative, medication, food or any liquids (including water) for a stomach ache without first consulting a doctor. To do so without medical advice could make matters worse or cause complications.

Appendicitis is a form of abdominal pain which presents a surgical emergency. When the appendix becomes inflamed and infected it must be removed. Usually the pain of appendicitis starts around the navel and later moves to the lower right part of the abdomen. The pain is not always severe. Other symptoms of appendicitis may include fever, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, constipation, and tenderness in the abdomen. Attempted self-diagnosis of appendicitis can be risky and the delay of medical diagnosis of the condition can result in a ruptured appendix. Fortunately most stomach pains are not appendicitis.

Generally a stomach ache can be traced to overeating or eating heavy, rich, hard-to-digest food, or gulping food without proper chewing. It is common for almost all children to experience occasional stomach aches. Normally they are not serious if they last for less than an hour and there are no other symptoms such as fever, cough, headache, vomiting or diarrhea. Medical help should be sought promptly if the pain lasts longer than an hour or if the abdomen is tender to the touch or feels rigid.

Children should not be given laxatives, enemas, medication, food or liquids when the cause of the abdominal pain has not been established.

Infant abdominal pain can be very serious and warrants prompt medical attention. If the child has diarrhea, is vomiting or has an abdominal swelling, an acute medical emergency may exist.

Holiday Cheer

During the holidays, when friends drop by to see your tree, to exchange gifts and good wishes, it's nice to have a quickly made pitcher of punch on hand to serve with slices of fruit or pound cake and perhaps some little tart shells filled with mincemeat. The punch can be a spiced wine tea, an irresistible combination of tea, which gives the punch body, spices, which add special tang and taste, and claret (or other dry red wine) for color and cheer. It's a warming combo which spells welcome to one and all.

Spiced Wine Tea

(Makes 1-1/2 quarts)

1 quart boiling water
6 teabags
1-1/2 cups claret wine
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
4 orange slices, halved and studded with 2 whole cloves per half

Pour boiling water over teabags. Cover and let stand 5 minutes. Remove teabags. Meanwhile, bring remaining ingredients to a slow boil. Remove from heat and mix with hot tea. Serve in mugs. Garnish with cinnamon sticks.

Note: If desired, omit claret wine. Use 1-1/2 quarts boiling water and add other ingredients with teabags. Stir to dissolve sugar.

EMERGENCY MEASURES

Restorations (fillings, caps, bridges, etc.) have a way of breaking or getting lost at the most inconvenient time - like when you want to look your best. The only permanent kind of repair is that made by your dentist, but here are a few emergency measures.

If a filling falls out (and it happens in the best of families) it has to be replaced by the dentist. You can ease some of the discomfort by rinsing with luke-warm water and then placing a piece of cotton dipped in oil of cloves into the cavity.

If a crown, jacket or cap pops out, don't put it back with commercial glue. If you can leave it out until you see your dentist - do so. If you must have it in place for appearance's sake, vaseline or denture cream will hold it in place temporarily.

Don't try to repair a broken denture or bridge yourself. It could damage both the appliance and the tissue against which it rests. A broken denture is a real emergency and can be repaired quickly by the dentist. A single fractured tooth in a denture can also be replaced quickly by the dentist.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:
What's the latest word on the pill? Does it increase a woman's chances of getting cancer?
Pill user

Dear Pill user:
Scientists at the federal government's National Institutes of Health have been studying the long-term safety of oral contraceptives for a number of years. Following completion of a major study of pill users in California, these scientists believe the Pill generally is safe for young, non-smoking, healthy women. Women who smoke or who are over 30 are at greater risk for developing serious side-effects, particularly circulatory disorders, from using oral contraceptives.

The California study showed that women who use the Pill do not have an increased risk of cancer or benign tumors of the ovaries. The Pill seemed to actually protect women from fibrocystic breast disease and cancer of the endometrium. Risk of high blood pressure also seemed to be lower in this study than in earlier reports on Pill users.

The California study agreed with other studies about the health hazards women who smoke risk when they also use oral contraceptives. The NIH scientists urge women who smoke to discuss these risks with their docotrs.

Dear Cancer Answer:
My 59 year-old son has cancer. He had surgery to remove the tumor. Then his doctors recommended chemotherapy. His doctors say he has responded very well and he is now in remission. Would you please explain what remission means. Can he be cured with chemotherapy?
A Worried Mother

Dear Worried Mother:
The term remission means that the doctors can find no trace of cancer in your son's body. The goal of all cancer treatment is remission of the disease.

Chemotherapy is a very effective treatment for many kinds of cancer. About 46,000 patients were cured last year with chemotherapy — either used alone or in combination with surgery or radiation therapy. The National Cancer Institute estimates that 45 per cent of all patients with cancer can be cured today.

Dear Cancer Answers:
Can you tell us something about multiple myeloma? One of our friends has just found out he has this kind of cancer. We had never heard of it.
Mr. and Mrs. S.J

Dear Mr. and Mrs. S.J.;
Multiple myeloma is a cancer of the blood forming organ, the bone marrow. Plasma cells in the marrow grow abnormally. They group together forming tumors that may crowd the normal bone marrow, and eventually they may grow into the bone itself.

There are about 9,400 new cases of multiple myeloma in the U.S. each year. Medical scientists do not know what causes this disease. Men are more likely to have it than women, and it almost always occurs in people over 40.

Myeloma is often a slow-growing cancer. People with this disease may not have any symptoms for years. The first symptom is almost always bone pain, often in the back or neck. This pain, which usually seems worse at night, is mild and occasional at first, but becomes increasingly severe as the disease progresses. Other possible symptoms of multiple myeloma are abnormal bleeding and increased susceptibility to infections.

Bone tumors associated with multiple myeloma usually develop in bones which contain the most bone marrow: the ribs, spine, skull, pelvis and long bones of the arms and legs. If the disease is not treated, these tumors can cause bone fractures and collapsed vertebrae.

Myeloma interferes with the proper functioning of the body's immune system, and patients with this disease are susceptible to a variety of infections. They must be careful to avoid exposure to infections and must be treated promptly if any develop.

Many patients also are anemic and may need periodic blood transfusions.

Chemotherapy is the treatment most frequently given for patients who have active multiple myeloma. Radiation therapy also may be used to control the bone tumors.

A patient who responds well to treatment usually feels better, has less bone pain and is more active within three to five weeks. Some patients treated with chemotherapy have full remissions in which all signs of the disease are gone.

Dear Cancer Answers:
A few weeks ago I called the Cancer Information Service toll free number you give in your column. The person I talked to was very nice and helpful. I just wondered what kind of training those people who answer the phone have.
A Caller

Dear Caller:
The Cancer Information Service is staffed by dedicated volunteers who are selected for their interest and experience with cancer. Some are former cancer patients, some are nurses or other health care professionals and others are students in one of the health professions.

Before they start taking calls, volunteers must complete an intensive training program. They learn about the different types of cancer and their common symptoms, how cancer is diagnosed and treated, how people can help protect themselves from cancer and much more.

The Cancer Information Service office has its own extensive library of reference materials — books, pamphlets, clipping files, and resources directories — which are constantly updated so that volunteers can look up current and accurate answers to most questions.

When a caller asks a question a volunteer isn't qualified to answer, a specialist in the subject can be consulted. Staff of the American Cancer Society, the National Cancer Institute, physicians and health care professionals at clinics, hospitals, universities and other institutions throughout the region have agreed to serve as consultants to the Cancer Information Service. Agencies of the federal and state governments also may be called upon to assist with questions about such topics as cancer-causing agents or services available to cancer patients.

While CIS volunteers can't recommend a particular treatment or give you a diagnosis, they can discuss warning signs of cancer, suggest questions you can ask your doctor, help you locate a doctor if you don't have one, and tell you about other service resources in your area.

The Cancer Information Service toll-free number in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota and South Dakota you can call toll-free 1-800-328-5188.

Dear Cancer Answers:
I need your help but am too embarrassed to sign my name. Please answer my question in your column.

A few years ago I had herpes. This year the doctor did a D and C and a laparoscopy because I had vaginal bleeding. He found that I have endometriosis.

Could the herpes have caused the endometriosis? My doctor says that I will have to have Pap smears more often because I am more likely to get cervical cancer than someone who has not had herpes. Are men also more susceptible to cancer after having herpes?

Are there any toll-free numbers to call for more information on cancer and herpes?

Dear Anonymous Reader:
Genital herpes does not cause endometriosis. The two conditions are not related.

Women who have had genital herpes do seem to have a greater than average risk for developing cancer of the cervix. That is why your doctor has recommended that you have regular and more frequent Pap smears. Fortunately, when it is caught and treated early, cancer of the cervix is nearly always curable, usually with minor surgery.

Gynecologists (doctors who specialize in diseases of the female reproductive organs) do not consider endometriosis to be a cancer risk.

There also is no known increased cancer risk for men who have had genital herpes.

Although we could find no listing for a herpes toll-free telephone information line, there is an organization called HELP that provides information on herpes. You can send a stamped self-addressed envelope to HELP, P.O. Box 3663, Minneapolis, MN 55403.

The Cancer Information Service will answer your general questions about cancer. The toll-free number for the CIS in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota and South Dakota the number is 1-800-328-5188.

It's natural to feel uncomfortable about asking very personal questions that may appear in your local newspaper. We respect your wish to remain anonymous. We also thank you for writing. There are many questions such as yours that can only be answered if someone has the courage to ask.

Erosion Could Limit American Ag Production

This nation's topsoil could be the loser in American agriculture's race to keep up with worldwide demand for food, according to a U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) program report.

The report, released by agriculture secretary John Block, states that unless the nation's soil conservation programs are changed, the acreage of cropland damaged by soil erosion will increase. Excessive soil erosion could limit the ability of American cropland to produce food supplies to meet worldwide demands for American farm commodities, according to the report.

The report is part of a perferred national soil and water conservation program that is undergoing public review until January 15. Recommendations for conservation program changes contained in the report are based on an analysis of the nation's soil and water resources conducted by USDA and other agencies.

Analysis and recommendations for changes in federal soil conservation programs were required by the soil and water resources conservation act of 1977 (RCA).

"Considering both foreign and domestic demand together, it is clear," the report states, "that use of American agricultural resources will intensify to produce more agricultural commodities." The report lists three factors that will determine if American agriculture can meet the demands being placed on it!

First, the ability of new and existing technology to increase production;

Second, the success of efforts to slow conversion of agricultural land to other uses;

Third, control of soil erosion.

"Above all," the report states, "there is a need to protect and maintain the productivity of agricultural lands through actions that prevent gradual degradation caused by extensive soil erosion. Soil erosion occurring at rates that could reduce the sustained productive capacity of agricultural lands is the most critical of the resource problems identified in the RCA appraisal."

A two-volume appraisal of the condition and trends of the nation's soil, water and related resources was released by USDA early in 1981. Copies of the appraisal were mailed to national, state and local agricultural leaders and are available for review in local soil and conservation service (SCS) and agricultural and stabilization conservation service (ASCS) offices.

The program report just released by the department contains Secretary Block's preferred program for addressing soil and water problems.

A leaflet that summarizes the RCA appraisal data and Secretary Block's preferred conservation program is available from SCS and ASCS offices. The leaflet contains a pre-addressed, postage-paid response form for commenting on the program.

F-M Symphony Features Work Of MSU Prof.

Fargo-Moorhead symphony chamber orchestra, under direction of J. Robert Hanson, will premiere a work written by Moorhead State University professor Henry Gwiazda entitled "Mercy" in dual performances December 15 and 16.

Concerts, not part of the 1981-82 subscription series, will be conducted at the MSU Thrust stage at 8 p.m. Tickets, $2.50 for general admission and $1.50 for senior citizens-students, will be available at the box office on the evenings of the concerts. Box office will open at 7 p.m.

Program of these "concerts of Courtly Music" will also include the popular "Suite No. 3" by Bach, Telemann's "Concerto Grosso in B-flat," Vaughn Williams' "Fantasia on Greensleeves" and Christmas selections by the Symphony Brass Quintet.

"Mercy," one of three works to be premiered during the 50th Anniercary Year, is comprised of nine short movements and uses a "musical memory" in the form of a riff (a short instrumental figure) from the first rock song Gwiazda liked.

Movements develop personal and emotional themes, sometimes using the riff. Work incorporates jazz, rock and the polka but ends, according to Gwiazda, "quietly with lushly-scored sonorities." A Connecticut native, Gwiazda joined the music faculty at MSU this fall.

Concerts are partially supported by the coordinated arts fund, the Minnesota state arts board with funds appropriated by the Minnesota State Legislature, the North Dakota council on the arts, the national endowment for the arts, and the cities of Fargo and Moorhead.

Old Wives' Tale Concerning Iron Proves True

For many years, there was a popular old wives' tale that said one way to get iron in your diet was by cooking foods in — you guessed it — iron pots and pans, states Laurence M. Hursh, M.D., consultant to the national dairy council.

Ironic. Ironic, that is, that research later bore out a certain amount of merit to this common belief. There actually is a slight increase in the iron content of foods when cooked in iron utensils — sort of an incidental mineral enrichment.

Of course, the best way to get this vital nutrient is — and always has been — from food. Good sources are liver, eggs, red meat, prune juice and dried beans and peas.

And what role does this mineral play in your health?

We need iron to produce hemoglobin, an important component of red blood cells. Iron gives these cells the ability to pick up oxygen from your lungs and carry it to other body cells, which need the oxygen to release energy.

Persons with iron deficiencies, consequently, have trouble getting enough oxygen to their cells. That's why they're always tired, easily fatigued, short of breath and usually pale as sheets.

Your body contains about three to five grams of iron. Most of that amount is present in your blood. The rest is stored in your liver, spleen and bone marrow.

Since iron is not broken down or used up by your body, it's remarkably reusable. Still, you lose some of this mineral every day and, thus, need to replace it.

An adult male needs about one mg. of iron per day. Menstruating and lactating women, however, have a higher iron requirement. So do pregnant women. This increased requirement may not always be met in even a well-balanced diet. In such cases, a physician may recommend an iron supplement.

Otherwise, your best bet for getting the iron — and all the other nutrients — you need is eating a variety of foods from the four food groups.

Nutrition questions for Dr. Hursh may be sent to "Nutrition for Today," P.O. Box 721, Rosemont, IL 60018. Answers to questions will appear in future columns.

Quality Of Spring Wheat, Durum Good

Quality of the 1981 U.S. hard red spring wheat and durum crop on the average, can be classified as very good, according to Einer Satter, chairman of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council. Satter based his statement on the results of the regional hard red spring wheat and durum quality surveys conducted by the cereal chemistry and technology departments at North Dakota State university. Survey was sponsored by the Minnesota wheat council along with the North Dakota and South Dakota wheat commissions.

Spring wheat data from the survey shows that the average test weight for the region was 59.2 pounds per bushel or 0.3 pounds higher than in 1980. Test weight in Minnesota was 58.8 pounds per bushel. Moisture content was 11.9 per cent which is similar to last year. Crop on a regional basis graded No. 1 dark northern spring with Minnesota's crop grading No. 1 northern spring.

Protein content for the four state region averaged 14.4 per cent on an "as is" basis, the same as last year. Protein of Minnesota spring wheat is 13.6 per cent slightly down from the 13.8 per cent recorded last year. Results of the Hagberg falling numbers test averaged 388 compared to last year.

Better growing and harvest conditions in 1981 resulted in lower damage, as assessed by visual inspections, compared to 1980. Total defects for the region averaged 1.8 per cent, down from the 2.1 per cent defects last year.

Durum wheat quality survey shows that the 1981 crop graded 45 per cent No. 1 hard amber durum (HAD), and 29 per cent No. 2 hard amber durum. Regional average grade was No. 1 HAD. Minnesota's crop graded No. 3 HAD. Test weight for the 1981 crop is 60.4 pounds per bushel compared to 59.3 last year. Moisture content averaged 12.3 per cent for the new crop down from 13.7 per cent in 1980.

Falling number values for this year's durum crop are considerably higher than 1980, averaging 351 compared to 174 last year. This again indicates less sprout damage in 1981 than in 1980.

According to Satter, results of the 1981 wheat quality surveys will be discussed with wheat buyers and processors, during a series of crop quality seminars to be conducted in Europe, Latin America, and Asia during November, sponsored by U.S. wheat associates. Professor Orville Banasik, chairman, Dr. Bert D'Appolonia and Dr. Richard Pyler from the cereal chemistry and technology department at North Dakota state university, will be participating in the seminars, traveling to Asia, Europe, and Latin America respectively.

1981 hard red spring wheat crop quality survey is the second report completed on a regional basis, Satter reported. The 1981 durum survey is the first regional report. Prior to these regional reports, NDSU analyzed North Dakota production only.

Jones Found Guilty By Jury In Dist. Court

Robert Arnold Jones of Thief River Falls was found guilty by a Pennington county district court jury Friday of first degree criminal sexual conduct. The case involved an incident with a 12-year-old girl October 24 at Countryside trailer court.

Trial of the case began Wednesday morning with Tim Faver, assistant Pennington county attorney; prosecuting the case and Dennis Murphy of Thief River Falls, public defender, representing the defendant. The case went to the jury late Thursday and a verdict was turned early Friday afternoon.

Judge John Spellacy of Grang Rapids presided at the trial and ordered a presentence investigation. Sentencing is to take place January 5. Jones has been in custody in lieu of $50,000 bond since his arrest in October and his bond has now been revoked.

In a trial which began Tuesday, Don Sollom of rural Thief River Falls was found guilty Wednesday of aggravated driving while under the influence of intoxicants. The charge is a gross misdemeanor, resulting from arrest for DWI during the time while a driver's license has been taken away for a DWI offense.

Judge Spellacy sentenced Sollom to the maximum sentence of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine, suspending $250 of the fine and six months of the jail sentence. Jail time is to be seved in the Pennington county law enforcement center. Tim Faver prosecuted for the county and Neil McEwen was the defense attorney.

TRF Company Opens National Sales Office

United Satellite Systems, with headquarters at Thief River Falls, has established a national sales office in Minneapolis at 4700 Olson Memorial highway, according to Denis Smith, marketing director.

United's sales office formerly had been located at Thief River Falls, where its 18,000-square-foot manufacturing plant is located. Formed in 1978, United Satellite is the largest manufacturer of satellite systems in Minnesota.

The company provides complete systems for receiving television programming from satellites, both for consumers and commercial customers. These systems include a complete electronic receiver package, dish antenna and power azimuth drive, which automatically targets the antenna toward any one of the nine television braodcasting satellites now in geostationary orbit, Smith explained.

A CHANCE to unite the elderly with the young occurs at Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls, when the home conducts its babysitting service. Last service was offered in October, and it is hoped, according to Lois Anderson, activities director, that the service will be conducted once each month in the future. Most of the children attending the service are cared for by residents and staff while their mothers attend circle, but staff also bring their children or grandchildren during the service. Resident pictured is Marion Green.

Polaris Purchase Will Extend Arctic Tradition

VOICE OF DEMOCRACY speech contest sponsored by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 in Thief River Falls was won by Kim Stokke (left) of Marshall county central high school in Newfolden. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stokke. Tamie (center) and Shelly Anderson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Halward Anderson, were second and third, respectively. Tape recording of Kim's speech was entered in district judging at Moorhead with 24 other entries. District winners were from Fergus Falls, Pelican Rapids and Lake Park. Standing in the above photo are, left to right, Paul Halverson, Voice of Democracy chairman for Post 2793; Cathy Jorgenson, chairman for the VFW auxiliary; Mrs. Lucille Tunheim, speech instructor at Marshall county central; Louise Brezney, VFW auxiliary president; and Vern Dokkin, VFW post senior vice commander.

Continuation of the Arctic Cat tradition was emphasized by presidents of both companies as announcement was made last week that Polaris Industries, Inc., had joined Arctic Enterprises in signing a letter of intent to purchase Arctic's snowmobile operations.

W. Hall Wendel, Polaris president, and Kenneth Severinson, Arctic Enterprises president, told the Times they are pleased that the product line will continue and that manufacturing will take place in this area of Minnesota. Polaris plans to conduct engineering and manufacturing of Arctic Cat snowmobiles in its plant at Roseau, beginning with the 1982 model year.

The purchase involves the Arctic Cat snowmobile, parts and accessories lines and Arcticwear clothing, the company presidents said. Included are the production line) such as jigs, molds and specialized tools and machines. Not included are fixed assets which include the plant in Thief River Falls and the garment plant and operations at Karlstad.

Sale of the company is subject to a resolution of the details with a definitive agreement expected in mid to late January. Terms of the sale were not disclosed.

Severinson said that sale of the snowmobile operations will permit the company and a local task force of concerned citizens to more actively pursue sale of the plant to a manufacturer. He said that contact had been made with a realtor who deals nationally in large plants located in small communities and expects efforts to continue along those lines.

"The Arctic Cat snowmobile, Arcticwear clothing, parts and accessories line will be continued essentially unchanged as a separate product line," Wendel said. "We intend to market Arctic Cat products through the existing Arctic Cat dealer organization, independent of the Polaris dealer organization."

Severinson noted that "Arctic and Polaris both have quality products with exceptional consumer loyalty. Both were founded by the Hetteen family and are backed by strong dealers. This union of the two brands will produce a strong, viable company in the snowmobile industry. I'm glad to see that even with two bad snow years, the Arctic tradition will continue."

In noting that the purchase is an important and exciting step for his company, Wendel said the move "...allows us to acquire what we want — more market share, key personnel specialized in the Arctic product line, a strong dealer organization, loyal consumers and an excellent name — all without buying what we do not need, the fixed assets. The next step is diversification to other products and markets."

Ownership change-over is expected to take plave on April 1. Arctic Enterprises will continue to provide snowmobiles, garments, parts

Nursing Grads Score High On State Boards

Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute (AVTI) was recently informed that all 22 graduates of its practical nursing program who took Minnesota state board test poll examinations in October had passed.

Out of 27 schools offering practical nursing programs in Minnesota, only four, including Thief River Falls AVTI, had 100 per cent of their graduates pass the examinations. Of 894 persons taking examinations at the same time, approximately nine per cent failed.

A memorandum from AVTI director Dr. Orley Gunderson to supertendent of schools Robert Block, which summarized test results, asked Supt. Block to share the data with the board of education, "as it reflects on a policy decision they made approximately three years ago."

Fred Ballou, assistant AVTI director, elaborated that that decision resulted in the school participating in Agassiz Region Nursing Education Consortium (ARNEC), a move to which he credits much of the students' success, "along with an excellent staff in the nursing department."

ARNEC is a partnership of educational institutions which includes Thief River Falls AVTI; Northland community college; East Grand Forks AVTI-Agassiz Valley school of practical nursing, East Grand Forks and Crookston; U. of M. technical college, Crookston; Bemidji AVTI; Bemidji state university; University of North Dakota college of nursing, Grand Forks; and U. of M. school of nursing, Minneapolis.

Sharon Erickson, Thief River Falls AVTI's practical nursing program director, echoed Ballou's commendation of the program, explaining that by requiring students to take some classes such as microbiology, general and developmental psychology, freshman English and sociology at Northland community college, they were actually on their way to earning an associate degree in nursing.

She said that at the time program modifications were proposed, a lot of concern was expressed that college level classes might "put some blocks" in the way of vocational students, but noted experience had proven just the opposite. "Our students, both last year (the first year of the program) and this year, did very well on their exams," she said, noting that retention of nursing students also remained high.

Erickson explained that the ARNEC program was designed to create a leveling of nursing education, allowing for each level to build upon previous training without having to go back and start all

35 Buy Gifts In 'Operation Christmas'

Thirty-five underprivileged children were provided with money and assistance to shop for gifts for their families recently through the annual Operation Christmas project conducted by the Thief River Falls Jaycees and Jaycee Women.

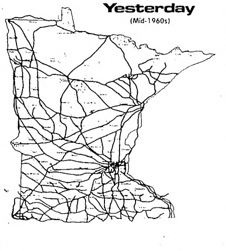
Members of the sponsoring organizations accompanied the youngsters on the shopping tour, assisted them in selection and purchase of gifts. (Ace Hardware was the shopping site this year) and wrapping them for Christmas giving. Lunch was furnished by McDonald's and Christmas stockings made by the Jaycee Women were distributed to each child participating. Items in the stockings were donated by local merchants.

Monetary donation from the Hartz foundation helped offset cost of the shopping tour, which was also partially supported by fund-raising effort of the sponsoring organizations.

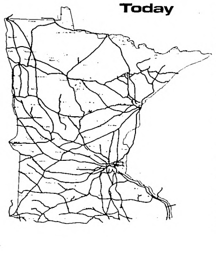
Those who assisted the children were Holly Haugen, Debbie Swanson, Margaret Peterson, Amy Schroeder, Lana Christianson, Sherry Sorenson, Rod and Janell Axtell, Dave and Sandy Cariveau, Tom and Lois Wang, Tim Faver and co-chairmen Al Rux, Ken Yutrzenka, Sue Sculthorp and Geno Johnson.

Major Changes Expected In Railroad Service System

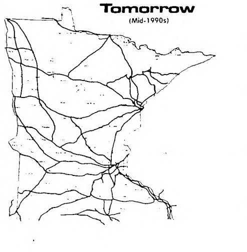
Yesterday
(Mid-1960s)



Today



Tomorrow
(Mid-1990s)



(Editor's Note: Railroad abandonment plans and actions have been in the news in Minnesota for a number of years. Jerry Fruin, an extension transportation economist at the University of Minnesota, and Robert Lunt, marketing economist with the Minnesota department of agriculture, have cooperated in preparation of an extension publication entitled "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow — Railroads in Minnesota". Because of general interest in the subject, information from the publication is reprinted here.)

Major changes can be expected to occur in the rail system serving Minnesota and the Upper Midwest during the next few years. More Branchlines and even some railroads though of as mainlines will be abandoned.

This will be an effect of federal passage of the Staggers Rail Act of 1980 which formally changed the railroad regulatory environment and has deregulated many maximum rates for railshipments. The Stafggers Act allows railroads and shippers to enter into contracts, and encourages railroads to abandon unprofitable service.

The act substantially reduces the railroad industry's common carrier obligation that all shippers, large or small, be treated equally with regard to rates and service and that all rates be reasonable. Now railroads can contract to provide individual shippers rates or service different from that offered to the general public. The Interstad Commerce Commission no longer has the power to rule on the reasonableness of many rates.

Yesterday

From about 1880 to 1920, railroads were predominant in serving Minnesota's transportation needs. Railroads served virtually every community and provided transportation for people as well as for goods. Railroads shipped out the products of agriculture, forestry, and

Violet Torgerson And Edwin Olufson Wed

Violet Torgerson and Edwin Olufson exchanged marriage vows recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Bernice Jelle, sister-in-law of the bride. She played "The Bridal Chorus" for the processional. During the ceremony, Grace Hammer sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Follow Me."

The bride was given in marriage by her sons, Douglas Torgerson and Scott Torgerson.

She was attired in a floor-length gown of off-white lace styled with a bateau neckline and long, flowing sleeves. Matching lace edged her chapel-length veil. She carried a nosegay of red roses, accented with white carnations, greenery, babies' breath and satin ribbon streamers.

Delores Nomeland attended her mother as matron of honor. Bridesmatrons were Marilyn Heit, daughter of the groom, and Linda Torgerson, daughter-in-law of the bride. All wore pastel-colored floor-length gown complemented by corsages of red roses, white carnations, babies' breath and white ribbon bows.

Tillie Sabo was the bride's special guest.

Swanson-Brekke Vows Spoken At Black River

Pam Swanson of Thief River Falls and Jay Brekke of Plummer exchanged marriage vows recently at a two o'clock ceremony at Black River Lutheran church, rural St. Hilaire.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swanson, rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brekke, Plummer.

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organist was Mrs. Donald Mosbeck, a friend of the couple. She played Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the ceremony, the bride's sister-in-law, Marilyn Swanson, and a friend of the couple, Diane Mosbeck, sang "If," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer." "Trumpet Voluntary," was the recessional. Acoloytes were Mike Brekke and Kevin McKeever.

Floral arrangements graced the altar and piano, and clusters of matching flowers and bows marked the pews.

The bride wore a white organza gown styled with a modified empire bodice featuring a Queen Anne neckline trimmed with Venise lace and seed pearls. Corresponding lace motifs graced the bishop sleeves and skirt front. Her tiered, cathedral-length train of organza ruffles were enhanced by Cluney lace trim, in varying widths, and narrow satin ribbon. A satin ribbon encircled the waistline. Her Venise lace headpiece, encrusted with seed pearls, held a finger-tip veil edged with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of yellow and peach roses, white carnations and babies' breath.

Maid of honor was Val Knutson, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Betty Schantzen, New Town, N.D., a sister of the bride; Kim Koropatnicki, Goodridge, a friend of the couple; and Sue Brekke, a sister-in-law of the groom. They wore floor-length gowns featuring pleated skirts and peach blouson floral tops with spaghetti straps, scooped necklines and off-the-shoulder sleeves. To complete their attire, they wore peach wide brimmed hats with matching silk headbands. They carried silk bouquets of peach roses accented with brown and off-white azaleas.

The bride's personal attendants were Gloria Svir and Barb Sundrud.

Jessica Knutson, a niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white empire fashioned gown with long, full sleeves, a square neckline and a floor-length flared skirt gathered into a wide waistband. Her headpiece was a white wide-brimmed hat with white ribbon streamers.

The rings were carried by Jason Svir, a nephew of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white tuxedo with a white ascot.

Attending the groom as best man was Blair Gustafson of Plummer, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Brian Brekke, Plummer, a brother of the groom; Scott McKeever, Middle River, a cousin of the groom, and Jim Swanson, a brother of the bride. The ushers were Larry and Curt Swanson, brothers of the bride; Bob Brekke, a brother of the groom, and Alan Mattson, Plummer, a friend of the couple. They wore dark brown tuxedos, white shirts, brown ties and silk peach rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a sleeveless mint green gown with a pleated skirt and a matching sheer cape. The groom's mother was attired in a sleeveless aqua gown, styled with a scooped neckline. Their identical corsages were of brown roses, peach azaleas and babies' breath.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the reception that followed in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Knutson. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Swanson were at the guest book, Annette Bydlon and Cindy Morkrid ladled the punch, Shirley Yonke and Vivian Brekke pinned the flowers, and Lynn Mosbeck and Carol Sorvig presided at the gift table.

The four-tiered wedding cake, with lemon filling, was iced in white and decorated with peach and brown flowers. On either side were stairways with miniature replicas of the wedding party on the steps. At the base was a flowing water fountain. The cake was cut and served by Margie Carlson and Lillian Fournier. Idella Rawertz and Elaine McKeever poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Kristi Larson, Wanda Sylvester, Tina Kruse and Joni Mosbeck.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Man., Canada, the couple is now at home in this city at 309½ South Conley. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, and the groom, a welder for the pipeline, is a graduate of Plummer high school. Photo, LeMar studio, Crookston.

over. Thus, under ideal circumstances, a full time student could become a nursing assistant after four weeks training, become a practical nurse after an additional academic year, and then go on to gain as associate degree in nursing from the junior college in only one additional academic year. Ultimately, for two additional academic years at one of the ARNEC member universities, they could become a baccalaureate degree nurse (RN). Graduates of non-ARNEC practical nursing programs are given some college credits for their training, but would need to invest considerably more time to obtain either the associate or baccalaureate degrees.

"With the upward mobility available now, I think what's happening in the nursing profession today is just fantastic," says Erickson.

Training of practical nursing students at AVTI also includes practical experience gained by working at Northwestern Hospital, where they learn to care for patients while under direct supervision of an instructor. "That's a big portion of their education," comments Erickson. Instructors include Sylvia Jensen, Mary Kay Isaacson and Betty Roadfeldt (all RNs), whom Erickson refers to as "highly dedicated and very professional." but she adds, "you really have to give credit to the students. We've really been fortunate there. They've been just great!"

Plans For RRV Winter Shows Near Complete

Red River Valley winter shows scheduled for February 19-28 are taking final form with many volunteer committee members from 14 counties working on details with the board of managers.

Demand for booth space by farm service exhibitors is running heavy, according to Larry Brekken, manager. Premium book is in final stages of revision and will be mailed out in December. Board of managers is looking at more entertainment, with the educational seminar schedule about filled.

Shows offer opportunity to take a winter break and renew acquaintances in the next county while mixing fun with learning.

Resolution Supports FmHA Loan Policies

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz (R-Minnesota) has joined as a co-sponsor of a resolution clarifying Congressional support for the present repayment policies of certain loans made by the Farmers' Home administration (FmHA).

Resolution, addressed to the secretary of agriculture, urges the FmHA to do everything possible to help farmers having difficulties meeting short-term loan obligations.

"Many FmHA borrowers have had trouble making their loan payments due to drought or other natural disasters. FmHA should do all it can to help these farmers work things out if they have good repayment records and management ability," Boschwitz said.

Many farmers who were notified about defaulted loans in recent months considered these notifications as the beginning of foreclosure proceedings, Boschwitz explained. In most cases, the FmHA simply wants them to come in and arrange a restructuring of their payment schedules.

"This resolution helps eliminate some of the confusion occurring over the direction of their payment schedules.

Christmas Countdown

Following comments are by Larry Windom in his "Et Cetera" column in the Detroit Lakes Tribune:

On Dec. 1, I spotted the first sure sign of the Christmas season.

Browsing through the many, many newspapers we get at the office each week, I opened a Dec. 1 daily newspaper to see the first "only so many days until Christmas" cartoon.

Not all dailies run them, but alot of them do. I've been seeing them for years, usually on the front page. Everyday, a different cartoon announces in one way or another, that there are only so many "shopping" days until Christmas.

Popular for the past few years has been the Peanuts cartoon characters.

On Dec. 1, for example, I spotted Snoopy and Woodstock the bird staring off into space. Snoopy was thinking, "Woodstock can't believe Christmas is so close! Only 23 shopping days to go!"

Two days later, as another example, Snoopy is shown walking through the snow, saying to himself, "I'd have my Christmas shopping done, but they wouldn't accept my Beagle Express Card! Only 21 days to go!"

Get the idea?

Actually, it's a good idea. The intention is to spur on shoppers, and it probably works a bit. At least it drives home the fact that the "shopping days" until Christmas are dwindling... and whether a person likes it or not, shopping and buying are synonymous with Christmas.

And, I think, there is something captivating about a countdown, going from a higher number to one. Sociologists and psychiatrists probably would have an explanation for that.

Anyway, I've always considered the Christmas as official when the Christmas countdown comic appears first. And that, like I said, was Dec. 1 (23 shopping days until Christmas).

If I was going to be placing such a cartoon in this newspaper, though, I'd have to make a few slight changes... changes which probably reflect a truer preseason mood.

For example, on Dec. 1, I'd have to have my cartoon character say, "There's 23 shopping days until Christmas. I think I'll go bowling."

On Dec. 2 the cartoon character would say, "There's still 22 shopping days left until Christmas, still plenty of time to start thinking about gifts next week."

On Dec. 3, the cartoon character would say, "Since there's only 21 shopping days until Christmas, the ice on the lake must be safe. I'll try a little fishin' today.

And on Dec. 4, the cartoon character would comment, "Still 20 shopping days until Christmas. I think I'll let the early Christmas shoppers thin out a bit before I venture downtown."

That's how a true Christmas shopper would act.

And with two shopping days left, the character would get serious and state, "I'll wait until the last shopping day tomorrow because that's when there will be bargains.

On the last shopping day, my cartoon creation would be rushing about and wondering, "Where'd the time go?"

The Fantastic Farmer

If Minnesota's agricultural statistics were averaged out over all of the farmers in the state, the composite average farmer would be quite a fantastic individual. There is no such "average farmer", of course, but if there were, this is what he would be:

The average Minnesota farmer would be 47 years of age, farm 286 acres of land worth about $300,000 and have farm machinery and equipment worth about $45,000. His effort would create four off-farm private enterprise jobs in the state.

Production from one out of every three acres he harvests would go overseas, for the average farmer in Minnesota feeds 48 Americans and 28 people in foreign lands. His farm would have 36 head of cattle, 49 hogs, three sheep, 124 chickens and 245 turkeys plus a couple of mink and some bees.

He would produce 91,683 pounds of milk, 5,867 bushels of corn, 102 tons of silage corn, 1,465 bushels of soybeans, 986 bushels of wheat, 795 bushels of oats, 333 bushels of barley, 10,131 pounds of sunflowers, 18 bushels of rye, 15 bushels of flax, 68 tons of hay, 34 tons of sugarbeets, 110 hundredweight of potatoes, 46 pounds of timothy seed, 29 pounds of red clover seed, nine pounds of dry beans, 221 pounds of apples, 21,375 eggs and four and half mink pelts.

Last year he paid $8,800 for feeder livestock and poultry, $10,600 for farm services including rent, $7,200 for feed, $1,850 for wages and labor, $6,670 for interest, $5,000 for fertilizer, $5,300 for fuel, $3,700 for farm and motor supplies, $4,500 for building, fencing and farm improvements, $8,600 for machinery, $2,200 for seeds and plants, $1,300 in taxes and $2,200 for chemicals.

And after he paid his production expenses, his net income was $14,000.

This year he probably won't do as well.

Is It The Answer?

"Some scientists and engineering experts are raising the issue of the entire concept and safety of landfilling hazardous wastes. Even under present governmental guidelines, landfills, no matter how carefully constructed under today's technology, will not be effective long term, perpetual means of disposing of hazardous wastes."

This is the conclusion of John C. Fine, an attorney and counsel for the senate committee on hazardous waste and toxic waste dangers in the current issue of "Water Spectrum", published by the U.S. army corps of engineers.

Fine says that his conclusions have been made clear by engineering experts whose testimony was reported by New York state's special grand jury investigating hazardous waste landfills. He cited the following testimony received by the grand jury:

"The objective of a secure landfill is to isolate the hazardous waste from the surrounding environment. Plastic liners on top of clay have been used in New York and elsewhere to line hazardous waste land buriel sites. When full, the landfills are usually 'capped' with clay and plastic to seal off the chamber.

"The history of these types of facilities has been all bad. Secure landfills have been 'abysmal' as a mechanism for isolating wastes from the environment. In the land burial sites studied by an engineering expert, levels of leachate within the chambers had risen to the brim.

"At one such facility, a strong odor of 'volatile organic chemicals' was being emitted and as many as 300,000 gallons per month of leachate had to be pumped out of a series of closed secure landfills in order to prevent the toxic matter from contaminating the environment."

The type of landfill mentioned above, involving plastic liners and clay base and cover, is what is being proposed at present for a Minnesota hazardous waste disposal site.

Local area residents have voiced and apparently will continue to voice concerns about potential hazards from hazardous waste disposal. They question whether a landfill type of facility can effectively contain waste.

"One problem with the land burial of industrial wastes is that it is almost impossible to segregate the chemicals to keep them from mixing," attorney Fine writes. "PCBs, industrial solvents such as trichloroethylene and trichloroethane and pesticides may, for example, all be placed together in a single land burial facility. Reaction of these chemical wastes coming into contact with each other can radically affect the ability of the protective liners to retard the migration of chemicals out of the site.

"One example given the New York grand jury involved PCBs, which do not pass easily through clay with the same speed as water.

"Because of the extreme toxicity and the failure of certain hazardous wastes to degrade, once a parcel of land has been used as a disposal site, the land probably can never be used for any other purpose."

It is the ifs and maybes that concern people in the area of sites being considered as hazardous waste disposal sites. In the absence of an ironclad guarantee against any potential hazard, the reservations and opposition appear justified.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Two hillbillies were relaxing in their mountain cabin. "Son," the older yawned, "take a look out and see iffen it's raining'." "Shucks, paw," the younger said. "jest call in the dawg and see iffen he's wet."

Definition of the Internal Revenue Service: "A federal government program to handicap the hired."

Two men were sitting in a blood donor clinic. "Are you really a full-blooded Indian?" one asked the other. "Well, no," the Apache replied. "Right now I'm about a pint low."

Last summer one-third of our population was ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished. They were on vacation.

Conference on Aging

Another White House Conference has come and gone. Everyone gives out a big yawn and moves on to something important. Right?

Wrong. The White House Conference held during the first week in December focused on one of the most important issues of the 1980s: the problems and opportunjties of older Americans.

The 1981 White House Conference on Aging won't be filed away with reams of paper and stacks of reports. In fact, judging by the results of the first two national aging conferences, held in 1961 and 1971, we can look forward to some pretty dramatic changes out of this year's conference.

Twenty years ago, the White House Conference on Aging passed more than 700 resolutions, including one urging the creation of a health insurance program. Four years later, Congress passed Medicare.

Ten years ago, delegates to the 1971 conference recommended that Social Security benefits be adjusted annually to protect recipients against increases in the cost of living. Another resolution from that conference called for increased funds for the elderly under public assistance programs. Both resolutions received favorable action in Congress.

The White House Conference on Aging isn't just another convention where people come in from around the country to talk pie-in-the-sky issues. The work on the 1981 conference began almost the day after the 1971 conference ended. Starting at the local level, organizers began collecting information, listening to the concerns and ideas of everyone who was interested and putting together possible resolutions for the 1981 conference.

Finally, all of this information was brought together at the state level. Minnesota's State Conference on Aging was held in St. Cloud in May. When I spoke to the state conference I could tell that Minnesota would be sending an outstanding delegation to the White House Conference.

And sure enough, your representatives did a great job. They did their homework and made some important contributions to the conference and the final recommendations. Minnesota was well represented.

About 600 resolutions were passed by the 1981 conference. Not surprisingly, many of them dealt with Social Securty. Among other things, the delegates said that earned benefits for current recipients should not be reduced. As a member of the Senate Special Committee on Aging and the Social Security Subcommittee, I'm convinced that this is one of the top priorities for Congress. We have to strengthen Social Security, but it won't come at the expense of today's retirees.

On a personal note, it was great for me to meet with Minnesota's delegates and observers at the reception and lunch I hosted. The reports I received at those meetings really helped me to put the conference in perspective.

Virgil Christensen of Mankato really hit the nail on the head when he said that it's up to us to bring the information from the conference to the people in Minnesota who couldn't attend. That's important.

Virgil also made another key point: "The policies we've worked on are not just for older Americans today. They'll have an impact on today's 40-year-olds and even today's 20-year-olds."

The success of the first two conferences bear that out. The resolutions passed in 1961 and 1971 — and the changes in law that come about as a result of those resolutions — are affecting every older American in 1981.

Now, the conference is over, but the work still goes on. It will take some time to study the reports of each of the 14 committees at the conference, but the information in those reports will shape our country's policies on older Americans for years to come.

The Senate already has started to move the resolutions ahead. Right after the conference, the Senate — with my support — passed a resolution directing the appropriate Congressional committees to give early and careful consideration to each of the conference's recommendations.

Let's get started now to make the 1980s the best years ever for older Americans!

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I recently saw the movie "Halloween II", a continuation of "Halloween" which was released last year and involves an escaped patient of a mental institution. The patient Michael Myers had murdered his sister on Halloween at the age of seven. When Michael escaped he returned to his hometown and began a rampage of violent murders. "Halloween" concluded with Michael being shot six times and his uncanny disappearance after he was shot. This is where "Halloween II" begins.

For those who have not seen "Halloween II" and who plan on seeing it, I will not review the plot. The movie, however, contains multiple grotesque deaths: a hatchet through the head, severe scalding, draining of the blood from the body, strangulation, a drug injected into the temple with a syringe, a butcher knife plunged into the chest, a medical tool stabbed into the back of a nurse and raising her off the floor with it, and a detailed slitting of the throat.

I was very uneasy through the movie and broke out screaming several times, not to find myself the only one. The movie was very upsetting to me, but not as upsetting as the presence of a five-year-old boy who sat in front of me. Before the movie was over, the boy was crying in horror. He was not attending the movie alone but just as well could have been. He was with (I assumed) his older sister and a few of her friends — none of them ore than twelve years old.

The boy was so terrified that at one point his sister took him out of the theater. It wasn't moments later before both of them returned to their seats. The boy refused to sit in his seat and sat between his sister and a friend. He soon stopped crying and began shouting at the characters in the movie. He shouted instructions to the means of eliminating the villian, Michael Myers of which none were very humane.

This situation made me angry: Where are the values of the parents, and not only them, but the proprietor of the theater! The movie was rated "R" and it is my understanding that an "R" rating means that no one under 18 is permitted unless accompanied by an adult. If this is true, why were this boy and his companions allowed into the theater? How will this movie affect them? It sure left a horrifying impression on my mind, and I'm 18! I think it's high time we take a look at our value system and start placing our moral standards above the value of money!!!

Rep. Opposed To Gov's. Plan For Education

Gov. Quie's proposal to cut $271 million in state aid to school districts could have a disastrous effect on local schools, according to State Rep. LeRoy Stumpf, District 1B.

Proposed cut, equalling $142 million this year and $127 million for the 1982-83 school year, would lower the per pupil spending allowance by $304. Stumpf maintains the end result would be significantly higher property taxes or inferior education for Minnesota's school children.

"The Legislature has spent 10 years equalizing and improving our public schools by providing adequate support," Stumpf said. "Now the Governor wants to turn that around and promise future school children something less."

Exact dollar loss for area schools is as follows:

School district — 436, Alvarado — 1981-82 reduction, $31,372; 1982-83 reduction, $25,115; 437, Argyle — $48,885; $41,441; 441, Newfolden — $89,622; $77,380; 442, Oslo — $30,647; $24,696; 446, Warren — $117,101; $97,520; 561, Goodridge — $50,214; $44,557; 564, Thief River Falls — $479,522; $407,646; 627, Oklee — $61,999; $53,576; 628, Plummer — $49,390; $41,466; 630, Red Lake Falls — $107,230; $91,556.

"School districts cannot absorb cuts of this magnitude," said Stumpf. "They may have to sacrifice some of their dollars because of the budget crisis, but the Governor's recommendation is far too extreme."

"Funding responsibilities currently with the state are to be shifted back to local levels under the Governor's plan," he continued. "But he fails to understand that practice is not always in education's best interest. History shows that certain parts of the state, certain communities, are able to spend more on education so we end up with a situation of more for the rich, less for the poor. The governor obviously feels this sort of inequality is justified. I say it's not fair to the children involved."

Stumpf said he will join other legislators in opposing the governor's plan for education. And he said he will work toward finding a more suitable alternative to help Minnesota out of its financial crisis.

Legislation Brings Aid To Small Business

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz has coauthored legislation which permits easier access by small business to government contracting opportunities.

"This bill improves the ability of small business to compete with larger firms for government contracts," Boschwitz said.

Legislation establishes minimum time periods that agencies must adhere to when soliciting bids through the "Commerce Business Daily" the publication used extensively by both large and small business contractors.

Because of greater resources, larger firms are better able to respond to solicitation notices on the "Commerce Business Daily." Solicitation notices are often published with time limits that hinder small business from preparing and submitting timely bids for government procurements, Boschwitz explained.

Current regulations provide for a 20-day notification period which is easily shortened at the discretion of agency heads. "Commerce Business Daily" legislation provides for two time periods: the first gives small businesses 15 days in which to request a copy of a solicitation; the second time period provides at least 30 days from the issuance of the solicitation before bids are due. Small businesses would receive a total of 45 days to complete the entire process.

"The new time periods take much of the pressure off small businesses to meet the burdensome solicitation dates. As a result, small businesses will benefit by improving market for their products and services, while the government should realize a savings through increased competition in their contracts," Boschwitz said.

"Because small business is so important to our national economy through its competitive ability, and especially with the goods and services government buys, I will urge my colleagues to consider this legislation promptly and favorably," Boschwitz added.

THIS YOUNGSTER receives her name tag from Pearl Sheady during a babysitting service offered by Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls. Service gives mothers of various circles the opportunity to attend their meetings while their children are cared for by the home's residents and staff. It is hoped that in the future the service will be conducted once each month.

DFL Plan To Balance Budget Announced

Senate majority leader Roger Moe has revealed outlines of a DFL Senate plan to balance the state budget by a combination of budget cuts, reductions in property tax relief and an increase in revenue-raising measures.

"The plan has the support of our caucus," he added, "but it will be open for suggestions and amendment as it goes throughout committee process."

"Members of the DFL Caucus are not in agreement on every item in the proposal," Moe said, "but our Caucus is in total agreement that the Republican proposal to shift more than a half-billion dollars to local governments and property taxpayers is absolutely unacceptable."

"Minnesota state government is facing the most severe fiscal crisis in history," Moe said, "and passing the problem onto school boards, city councils, county boards and the property taxpayer, as advocated by many Republicans, is not an acceptable way to solve the problem. We in the Senate are proposing to spread the burden caused by the deficit as fairly as we can."

"The problems with the Republican plan are clear," Moe said. "The Republican proposal calls for higher property tax increases, historically unprecedented deficit financing for local units of government, massive teacher lay-offs, cutbacks in police and fire protection for our cities and the transformation of our state hospitals into warehouses for the mentally ill and retarded."

"In the area of real estate taxes, the Governor's own Administration has admitted that this state's farmers will soon be faced with unbelieveable tax hikes. In Northwestern Minnesota, for instance, the average size farm of 785 acres will have an average tax bill of $3,774 under the Quie plan. That's an equitable and unrealisitic increase of $1,395," stressed Moe.

Senate DFL plan proposes to cut over $382 million from the state budget and also includes an income tax increase proposal which adjusts for serious flaws in the governor's 1979 indexing plan.

"In the spirit of compromise, our plan does not tamper with the indexing law. Indexing will continue," Moe said. "Our plan simply adjusts for some of the revenue losses caused by the gross miscalculations that were part of the indexing law in 1979-1980 and for the last half of this year."

"The Senate plan raises $165 million through the indexing adjustment and another $16.5 million by simplifying the state income tax form, Moe said. He added that the Senate proposal also raises about $160 million by expanding the sales tax and an increase in excise taxes on cigarettes and liquor.

Professional Services Tax Is Opposed

Minnesota society American institute of architects recently issued a statement regarding the Legislature's proposed sales tax on professional services.

In releasing the statement, James Cramer, executive director of the society said, "It seems illogical that the state would consider proposing such a tax, as similar proposals in states such as Wisconsin, Ohio and New Jersey have all failed recently, and it would have such a major effect on an already faltering construction industry."

Statement released on behalf of the architectural profession in Minnesota, stated:

"The Minnesota society American institute of architects is adamantly opposed to the proposed sales tax on professional services for a number of reasons:

With the depressed state of the economy and its impact on the construction industry, we believe that to add a sales tax to professional fees, thereby increasing costs of construction, would only contribute to the problem, not serve to solve it.

Proposed tax may be inequitable, as it may only apply to Minnesota architectural firms doing business within the state, or in other states. Firms outside Minnesota doing business within the state would not be affected, giving them an unfair business advantage. It could also encourage Minnesota firms to move out of state and act as a deterrent to the establishment of new firms.

Minnesota architectural firms would not only have to pass a 5 per cent tax on to their clients, but would also be required to pay a tax on the legal, accounting and computer services that they procure, with an attending strong financial impact on small and large firms alike.

Tax, if imposed, could have a dramatic negative impact on the quality of design in Minnesota, giving rise to a monotony of design due to the re-use of old plans. It may also encourage the use of non-registered and unqualified designers for both public and private projects. It is believed that this is in conflict with state law requiring the licensing of design professionals to protect life, health and safety.

Due to the timing of the proposal, immediately prior to the holiday season, it is not likely that the bill will receive adequate public hearing and consideration if action is to take place prior to the holiday recess."

A joint effort to oppose the tax is being mounted with the Minnesota consulting engineer's council and other professional groups. Leonard Parker, FAIA, president of the society commented, "In an area so competitive in the design fields, such a law would only make the position of Minnesota architects even more untenable, and they simply won't be able to compete."

51 Give Blood At Last Drive Here Dec. 7th

Staff of United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest, on behalf of the many patients who will benefit, notes that 54 people signed up to donate and 51 were able to give pints of blood at the blood drive in Thief River Falls December 7. Eighteen of the donors were first-timers.

Clarice Collins was blood drive coordinator and members of the Eagles auxiliary sponsored the drive, recruited donors helped with publicity, served refreshments for donors and preregistered donors the day of the drive. Northwestern hospital services provided space to hold the drive.

Blook donations help United Blook services to meet the needs of many area patients in the 48 hospitals it serves. Without the support of people in communities like Thief River Falls, the job of providing this precious fluid would be next to impossible.

Dear Readers,

Christmas celebrates the birth of Jesus Christ. In many European countries, Santa Claus is unknown. It is the Christ Child who brings gifts to the children. This naturally 'keeps Christ in Christmas' and lessens the commercial aspect of the holiday. Singing of the beautiful Christmas carols is still an appropriate way to celebrate this joyous season.

Respectfully,

Traveling? Be Sure Auto, You Are Insured

If it's a visit to the Aztec ruins in Mexico, or a hunting and camping trip in Canada, vacationers planning trips by car to either of these countries should be aware of a few special auto insurance requirements.

"Most large U.S. insurance companies offer protection through their auto policies that cover policy holders driving in both the United States and Canada," says an insurance company spokesperson. Persons planning a trip into Canada should double-check their insurance policies or call their agents to be sure they are completely covered.

Law enforcement officials in Canada, by law, can demand evidence of insurance from U.S. citizens driving in the country. Many insurance companies provide 'proof of insurance' cards to their policyholders upon request. The cards can usually be obtained from their agent or a company customer service representative.

Most U.S. insurance policites are not recognized in Mexico. An uninsured driver who is in an accident could be held by the Mexican authorities until payments are made to the injured party, the Allstate spokesperson says.

For trips planned any further in the country than 75 miles, Mexican insurance must be obtained. It can be bought on a daily basis for short trips, or on a long-term basis, depending on how long the policyholder plans to stay in the country or how frequently he or she plans to visit.

Special automobile policy for tourists contains theft, fire and lightning and a few other coverages. Property damage and bodily injury coverages are required. However, collision coverage with a mandatory $100 deductible is optional. Medical payments liability coverage is also optional. For optimum coverage, the whole package should be purchased.

Cost of the policy depends on actual cash value of the automobile, the policy limited requested and the length of stay in Mexico. There is a small policy fee retained by the selling agency as a commission and a six per cent Mexican government tax is applied to the premium amount excluding sales commission.

So, whether you are traveling north or south of the border, and depending on how long you plan to stay and how far you plan to travel, be sure you and your automobile are properly insured.

For more information about Mexican insurance, write the Mexican Insurance Association, 7857 Conzoy Court, San Diego, CA 92111.

Action On State-Federal Bill Urged

"Failure to conform Minnesota's unemployment benefit program to federal standards on extended unemployment benefits could cost state employers over $200 million," said Rolf Middleton, commissioner of the Department of Economic Security. Middleton urged members of the House governomental operations committee recently to take speedy action on a third special session bill, HF3.

Author of the bill, Rep. John Rose (IR-Roseville) said it would bring state law into conformity with recent federal legislation; allow states to continue taking out federal loans to cover costs of paying unemployment benefits, but at an interest rate of up to 10 per cent (currently interest is paid on such loans); change the "trigger mechanism" which determines when a state goes on or off of the extended benefits program; tighten eligibility requirements for extended benefits and for trade readjustment assistance benefits (the Trade Readjustment Act provides special benefits to people who lost their jobs because of foreign competition).

"The bill doesn't make any changes in the state's regular unemployment benefits program, but deals only with state-federal extended benefits," said Rose.

Extended benefits are those individuals get after they've used up regular state unemployment benefits when economic conditions are usually bad. State and federal governments share cost of those benefits.

In Minnesota, the state offers benefits for up to 26 weeks. If the extended benefits program was "on", those additional benefits would be available for up to one-half that time, or 13 weeks.

Committee laid the bill over, to take up at a later date.

A MINOLTA LETTER

Dear owners and future owners of a Christmas Minolta:

Why is Minolta such a great camera? First of all it is manufactured by an outstanding company with ties to Leica in Germany. The combination makes the two companies the most innovative quality conscious camera manufacturers in the field. Secondly — every Minolta is manufactured to the same tolerances and attention to detail from the Hi Matic G2 at $86.95 to the XG-1 at $239.95 to the XK motor drive at $1,500.00. As a comparison, look at the lower priced models in other manufacturers' lines and notice how the physical fit and finish suffers. It is indeed a shame that other manufacturers purvey such products on the public in the name of saving a few dollars.

WHY IS EKEREN DRUG A MINOLTA DEALER?

For several years we tried several makes as to determine the line we would choose. Other makes suffered from design maladies that made them prone to breakdown. Ekeren Drug services what it sells but high service frequency disqualified several candidates. Only Minolta offered the two-year full warranty on the body and five-year lens warranty that properly protected our customers. The unexcelled durability of the Minolta camera is respected industry wide. Minolta offers such an outstanding camera and accessory line at affordable prices that our choice became obvious. Over the years well over 1,500 Minolta cameras have been sold by Ekeren to some very satisfied people.

Why should I buy a Minolta from Ekeren's? Because Ekeren's is genuinely proud of the cameras it sells and takes great care to ensure that every customer is satisfied. We do not try to oversell nor do we undersell the needs of our customers. Our skilled photographic consultants do everything in their power to match you to the ideal Minolta for your purposes. Take advantage of Ekeren's many years' experience when choosing your Minolta.

MINOLTA OWNERS ARE SPECIAL.

At Ekeren's, we close the sale with an invitation to return and share your experiences with your Minolta. Sometimes an obvious need for a lens or flash will improve picture taking quality substantially. Our trained staff can tell at a glance what problems in technique the photographer may exhibit.

Remember — you're not just buying a CAMERA. You are buying a Minolta.

With Best Wishes for Your Photographic Success and a Wonderful Holiday Season

BSU President Accepts CSU Appointment

Bemidji State University president Rebecca Stafford has accepted the appointment as executive vice president of Colorado State University in Fort Collins, CO.

Announcement was made by CSU president Ralph Christoffersen. Stafford will begin her new responsibilities February 1, 1982.

Executive vice president will be second in command of the university and in charge of the school when the president is absent from campus.

"I will miss my friends and colleagues in Bemidji," Stafford said. "We have accomplished some exciting things and I have enjoyed the challenge. The full fruit and benefit of last year's program planning and review, for example, will help assure a strong future for Bemidji State University."

"The offer from Colorado state was a rare opportunity in my career, and one which I did not feel I could turn down. I will work with the president of a large, land grant university and the state board of agriculture, and reporting to me are the vice presidents, the extension service, the state forestry service, agricultural experimenmt stations, and several research institutes," she said.

"Bemidji State University is in a strong position today," Stafford added. "It has avoided a threatened major budget cut. It can withstand any scrutiny of program services, thanks to last year's program planning and review process that established the centers of emphasis. I am proud of the students, faculty and staff, and of their accomplishments, cooperation and future prospects."

CSU executive vice president, in addition to salary, receives a tenured full professorship in the sociology department.

Chancellor of the Minnesota state university system Garry Hays said, "I very much regret Dr. Stafford's decision to leave. In a very short time, she has had a positive impact on Bemidji State University."

"She initiated a badly needed planning process, established priorities and was committed to enhancing the quality of Bemidji State University. It is our hope that these efforts will be continued. Obviously, we wish President Stafford well as she assumes a new position," Hayes added.

Hays will be in Bemidji Tuesday (December 22) to consult with various components of the University and community regarding interim staffing of the BSU presidency. Subsequent to those meetings and following discussions with State university board members, an acting president will be named by the State university board.

In making the announcement, Christoffersen commented, "We are delighted to have been able to secure for the position of executive vice president such an outstanding individual. Dr. Stafford brings to this campus superb backgrounds as a teacher, researcher and administrator. I am certain she will provide outstanding leadership for the CSU campus."

Polaris Makes Plans To Buy Arctic Assets

and accessories through its dealers until that date. Severinson said the company has supplied dealers with parts from its inventory and through vendors "to service those machines that are out there". He said some of the parts had been manufactured locally late last fall from inventories on hand, and that parts sales were ahead of projections in both the U.S. and Canada.

Severinson also noted that since the company had been granted permission to sell its snowmobile operations by the federal bankruptcy court, he did not believe the agreement with Polaris is subject to any third party approval. Creditors and shareholders of the company approved its plan of reorganization in November.

Polaris does not assume any of Arctic's indebtedness in the purchase, Wendel said. He added that Polaris would be interested in employing certain Arctic salaried personnel in functional areas where their expertise could be utilized, but said that it would be premature to list specific areas at this time.

Prior to the anticipated April 1 change-over, Wendell said, he expects Polaris to be doing a lot of things including getting tooling set up and contacting vendors, suppliers and dealers. When Arctic stops supplying parts to its dealers by April 1, an inventory will have to be conducted and other activity conducted which is expected to take about a month.

He said he looks on the purchase as a great opportunity to take advantage of the Arctic Cat name and reputation for the benefit of dealers and consumers as well as of the Polaris company.

Severinson said he looks on the sale to a company which plans to continue manufacture of the product line as "a big plus for the dealer and consumer". He said there had been a number of inquiries from people interested in taking over parts and service operations, but the company believed it best to sell to a manufacturer who would keep much of the organization intact.

He said that "very little emphasis had been placed on the sale of facilities until we knew what would happen to the product line, hoping that someone would acquire the plant and the product line." Now that sale of the product line has been arranged, sale of facilities can be undertaken mining and received goods from all over the United States.

Major Changes Expected In Rail Service

During those years, the rural road system was complementary to the railroads. A good road system meant more goods for long hauls on the railroads. Initially, motor trucks provided an improved local gathering and distribution system for moving goods to and from the railstops located every few miles on the railroads crisscrossing the state. However, as early as the 1920s, some rail lines were suffering from a lack of traffic, and rail abandonments began. In fact, total railroad mileage in the Midwest peaked prior to 1920, and several hundred miles of railroad were being abandoned in the United States each year during the 1920s and 1930s.

After 1920, it was necessary for a railroad to get permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission before abandoning a line. Because of the common carrier status of the railroads, the great importance of rail service to the public, and the political and social attitudes of the time, permission to abandon was generally difficult to obtain. Consequently, most railroads that were abandoned had actually been abandoned first by the shippers and the railroad company for lack of business long before formal abandonment took place with Interstate Commerce Commission authorization.

Throughout most of those years, farm products such as grain moved by truck or wagon from the farm to a local shipping point such as an elevator. It was then shipped by boxcar to a milling or processing point such as Minneapolis. Multiple-car rates that were lower than single car rates were viewed as discriminatory and, hence, illegal. Grain hopper cars had not yet been invented. The typical are was switched three to five times on a move of a few hundred miles.

The yesterday map shows Minnesota's rail network at the close of that era in the mid-1960s. There were still approximately 8,400 miles of railroad crisscrossing the state. Most small towns still had trains.

Today

Since the mid-1960s, many changes have occurred in Minnesota's agriculture and the transportation system which serves it. Some farming areas have chaged from livestock or dairy producing areas to cash grain areas. Grain yields have increased and Minnesota's farmers have participated in the huge increase in U.S. grain exports during the early 1970s. Fertilizer use has increased. All of these changes have increased Minnesota agriculture's need for long-distance commodity transportation.

Transportation technology has also changed. The covered hopper car capable of carrying over 3,500 bushels of grain replaced the old boxcars of 2,200 bushel capacity. The covered hopper has significant cost and handling advantages over boxcars which it replaced. Multiple-car rates for grain that were lower than the single-car rates are another widely adopted innovation. The use of 75 and 100 car unit-trains has spread from the very dense grain surplus regions of Illinois throughout the midwest and Minnesota. These unit-trains have low costs resulting from the high use of crews and equipment.

But these developments were not favorable for many of Minnesota's branchlines and, in fact, contributed to their decline. Most of the branchlines were built before 1900 with light rails. Bridges, rails, and roadbeds were inadequate to handle fully loaded hopper cars and modern locomotives. The railroads and shippers on branchlines were unable to take full advantage of the potential cost savings of hopper cars and multiple-car shipments. These developments, in fact, hastened the day when a branchline would become technically obsolete and require decisions on whether to spend capital to upgrade or to abandon.

At the same time, technological developments caused trucks to become more efficient. The cumulative expenditures on local and state roads and the development of the Interstate System allowed trucks to provide better service over increasing distances. Barge transportation of grain, which was almost non-existent prior to 1050, developed as diesel engines and improved technology revolutionized the barge industry. Barge shipments of grain then virtually exploded in the 1970s as U.S. grain exports expanded. Barge transportation had the advantage of being a low cost mode, and the waterways were favorably situated in the major grain producing areas.

As a result of these developments, over 2,000 miles of branchline have been abandoned in Minnesota in the past 15 years. The name of one railroad that served Minnesota, the Rock Island, has ceased to exist. Another, the Milwaukee Road, is undergoing reorganization and will operate in the future as a much smaller railroad.

The today map shows the railroad network that existed as the start of the 1980s after these abandonments. Most 2,500 or more population towns still have rail service but railroad mileage as of July 1, 1981 is just over 6,300 miles. However, the economic and technological trends that have caused these reductions in railroad mileage will continue and be accelerated by the provisions of the Staggers Rail Act of 1980. In fact, an additional 1,255 miles now are identified for potential abandonment by the railroads.

Tomorrow

The tommorrow map illustrates the best judgment, estimate of how the state's rail system will look in the early to mid-1990s as abandonments continue, about 4,200 miles of railroad are left or only 50 per cent of the mileage on the yesterday map. The lines remaining, with certain exceptions, currently carry 5 million or more gross ton-miles per year. Lines that are currently lightly used are prime candidates for abandonment and have been deleted. This rail map has also been modified for expected adjustments due to current government funding problems that restrict branchline rehabilitation. Light density lines that formerly qualified for federal programs have, therefore, been omitted. Under current policies and funding levels, neither the state of Minnesota nor the federal government will be able to prevent this map from becoming reality.

Indeed, the policies and philosophy of the Staggers Rail Act of 1980 will encourage the "rationalization" of the state's railroads down to a "core" rail system. Much of the common carrier responsibility of the railroads has been eliminated. The carriers are now encouraged to compete aggressively with other modes of transportation. To do this, capital and equipment must be consolidated statewide. An emphases on "return on investment" as a measure of the railroad industry's well-being will motivate a reduction in miles of track, locations served, and types of traffic and commodities desired. The tomorrow map will become a reality unless shippers, producers, and citizens clearly assert their willingness to financially support and use the rail system.

Implications

Tomorrow's rail system will contain fewer miles of track than today's, fewer points will be served, and the best rates and services will go to large-volume rather than small-volume shippers. This will be true both for shippers who contract with the railroads and those who use common carrier service. Consequently, shippers and receivers must take advantage of tommorrow's system — or at least minimize its disadvantages. In many instances, consolidations and mergers may be appropriate, while in others, physical movement to another railroad may be necessary. In extreme cases, purchases and operations of the railroad as a shortline may be a feasible alternative.

There are also implications for the road and highway system. Heavy commodities like grain and fertilizer will be shipped farther over rural roads to get to railheads. These may be roads that have not had heavy traffic volumes before. The best Minnesota highways have an east-west orientation. Much of this rural traffic to train-loading stations will have a north-south orientation and will go on roads that were previously used very little. The end result may be substantial increases in traffic and maintenance expenses on township and county roads.

Boschwitz Appoints Page

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has chosen John Schonebaum of Maplewood, to serve as one of 20 senate high school pages in the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., from January to June, 1982.

Schonebaum, 16, is a junior at North senior high school in North St. Paul and the son of Rev. and Mrs. William Schonebaum. Gay Cordes of New London and Kristin Hatch of Minneapolis were chosen as alternates.

Naval Training Completed By S. Bergdahl

Navy seaman recruit Scott D. Bergdahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Bergdahl of Thief River Falls, has completed recruit training at the naval training center, Great Lakes, Ill. He joined the Navy last September.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

Higher Farm Export Prices Are Needed

U.S. farm export earnings in 1981 could have been $5 to $10 billion higher than they were if some attention was being paid to the price tag on those exports, the 40th annual convention of Minnesota Farmers Union heard recently in Minneapolis.

Milton D. Hakel, editor of the National Farmers Union "Washington Newsletter, said that if farm exports were priced at the typical cost of production, farm export earnings and the U.S. balance of trade would improve by $10 billion a year.

"Just a dollar a bushel increase in the export prices on wheat, feed grains and soybeans, would improve export earnings by $5 billion and this could be done without incurring any appreciable loss of market volume," he continued.

"One hears a great deal in Washington, D.C., these days about expansion of farm exports, but most everyone talks about market access and volume and no one except Farmers Union seems interested in doing something about the bargain-basement prices at which our crops are sold," he continued.

Although farm exports in fiscal 1981 have set a record value of $43.5 billion, this is $5 billion less than the total which had been projected by USDA economists at the start of the year.

"If we are to make any sigificant gains in 1982, it will have to come from better prices rather than larger volume," he added.

Hakel complained that U.S. farm prices are being kept at needlessly and damaging low levels, reporting that among the 40 major nations producing wheat and corn, the U.S. farm price support levels are the lowest in the world.

"Other major producing countries would respect our action if we would raise the support price on our major grains since this would help strengthen world market prices," he stated.

He asserted that the negative attitude of the U.S. federal government is the main roadblock to establishment of international commodity agreements which would place a fair floor price under farm commodities.

"If our government exerted positive leadership such agreements could be readily consummated. The climate exists for economic cooperation. But, instead of taking the road to cooperation, our government is engaging in a policy of confrontation. We are on the brink of a trade war with the European community and our trade relations with Japan and Canada are getting worse. We are systematically antagonizing some of our best customers," Hakel charged.

Moisture In Tight Homes Controllable

Some of the best efforts to save costly heating fuel may be causing moisture problems in homes, said Roger Peterson, extension residential energy specialist at the University of Minnesota. As homes become tighter to save energy, there is less air leakage to carry off humidity from showers, baths, cooking and laundry.

Peterson says that today's tighter homes require mechanical ventilation, such as ducted bath and range vent fans. Laundry rooms also may require a ducted vent fan that carries exhaust to the outdoors. Mechanical venting is more efficient than hundreds of small leaks because vent fans are used only when needed. The furnace can take a break when the fans are not running, Peterson adds. The fans can be installed with a timer that shuts them off automatically.

An even more efficient system is to bring several vent fan ducts together into one end of a sheet metal duct that is at least six feet long and vents to the outdoors. A metal duct or plastic enclosure around the one carrying exhaust air out brings in fresh air and preheats it from the warmth of the exhaust duct. Peterson reminds homeowners that they must separate the fresh air intake holes several feet from the exhaust outlet, or exhaust will come back into the house. Commercial equipment which preheats fresh air by the warmth in exhaust air ducts is also available.

COLORING a Christmas tree to be displayed at Oakland Park nursing home in Thief River Falls is this youngster, who joined several others at the home last Wednesday when a babysitting service was conducted for children of mothers of the Sarah circle of Zion Lutheran church. Service offers the home's residents a chance to work with children on various activites. Last Wednesday, residents, staff and youngsters worked on Christmas decorations.

Lincoln Basketball Fortunes

Most observers came away from Thursday's Thief River Falls vs. Moorhead high school basketball with genuine respect for the Prowlers, even though they lost by a sizeable 59-36 count. The 1981-82 Thief River Falls home opener didn't produce a win, didn't draw a large crowd or even prove that the Prowlers can be competitive in North Half Region 8AA. But it did prove that new Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt has the Prowlers playing hard, and playing with enthusiasm.

Thief River Falls opened the 1981-82 season with wins over Roseau 39-30 and Graftson 41-40, thus reaching the halfway mark of their win total for the entire 1980-81 season. The Rams and Spoilers are not fielding very strong teams, though, and it might be a lot tougher getting those next two wins. It's going to be a while before the Prowlers begin another game as the favorite. They were certainly underdogs against the Spuds, and they'll have to play the same role when they go against Warren and Argyle in the University of Minnesota-Crookston holiday doubleheader Tuesday and Wednesday, December 29-30.

Maybe it doesn't cast a very good shadow on Class AA participants Thief River Falls and Crookston when they are underdogs against Class A opponents Warren and Argyle in the UMC games, but that's the way the area basketball scene has been in recent years: Region 8A championship-caliber teams have been stronger than the Region 8AA also-rans in northwestern Minnesota. Teams like Warren, Argyle, Middle River, Lake of the Woods and Marshall County Central have played better basketball than teams like Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji the past few years. At least, the basketball people in those smaller towns would argue that way, and they would have some pretty good evidence to back their claims.

Argyle is the preseason favorite in Region 8A this winter, with Warren presenting the Eagles with a top threat in District 31. Marshall County Central and Middle River of District 32 hope to be in the Region 8A picture, too.

That means if Thief River Falls doesn't get its offense to start producing points, the Prowlers may run into a lot of trouble in the UMC event. Teams may have trouble scoring against Thief River Falls' hustling defensive play, but to win the Prowlers will still have to score at least one more point than the opposition.

Northwest Athletic Conference games against Bemidji and Crookston Jan. 8 and 15 will reopen Thief River Falls' basketball schedule after the holiday break. Perhaps the Prowlers will be scoring points by then. If they are, they could very well be in contention for a conference title shot in this, the last year of NWAC competition.

UMC Cutting Hockey Penalties

First-year University of Minnesota-Crookston hockey coach Jim Clauson admitted to Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston, who is now writing a weekly hockey column in the Crookston Times, that one of his first orders of business with the Trojans was ridding them of their penchant for chippy play that earned them the reputation of a "goon squad" in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA).

Marv Bachmeier, UMC athletic director, acknowledged the problem. "We felt it was a big problem — the lack of discipline and the reputation our team was getting," he told Fee, saying Clauson is accomplishing the goal. "I think they've realized you don't have to take penalties to play hockey."

"We wanted to counteract the penalties," said Clauson, "so I asked the kids what they wanted out of hockey. If you want to play hockey, fine. If you want to box, then go join a boxing club."

UMC and Northland community college, the early season MJCAA leaders, will once again feature a month-long string of Wednesday night meetings to complete their four-game conference schedule against each other. The series starts Jan. 13 in Crookston and includes games Jan. 20 in Thief River Falls, Jan. 27 back in Crookston and finally Feb. 3 in the sports arena here. Undoubtedly the spirited rivalry between the Trojans and Northmen will resume, but this time it might result in faster-paced hockey instead of crowded penalty boxes.

FARGO SOUTH goalie Jon Farber kicked out this second period shot by Thief River Falls' Tom Kenville during Friday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena, but moments later Kenville scored an unassisted shorthanded goal for the Prowlers, staking them to a 3-0 lead that eventually wound up a 6-3 victory over the Bruins.

Tom Ose Gets Hat Trick Against Fargo South . . .

Prowlers Skate By Bruins 6-3

When you win 6-3 and pretty much dominate play, the lockerroom is a fun place to be. Thief River Falls took care of Fargo South by building a commanding 6-1 lead, then settled for a three-goal high school hockey victory Friday, and the coaching staff showed their pleasure with the play of the Prowlers, who were particularly impressive moving the puck.

"I thought we moved the puck very well," confirmed Thief River Falls head coach Wendell Grand.

Junior varsity coach Dave Peterson explained Thief River Falls' adept passing skills by attributing a quote to varsity assistant Bill Poole, an addition to the staff this year, who allegedly said: "I just show them how, and they do it."

"Put that in the paper," laughed Grand.

That's the kind of night it was for the Prowlers, who came up with their second strong game of the week — having upset Bemidji 4-1 Tuesday — after back-to-back one-goal losses to Crookston and Fergus Falls to open the 1981-82 season.

They completely dominated play at the start, out-shooting Fargo South 15-1 in the first period, although they came out of it with just a 1-0 lead when defenseman Steve Olson hit the upper corner from the right side just 1:51 into the game.

It became 2-0 when senior wing Tom Ose scored the first of his three goals for the night, putting a centering pass from Steve Wiskow past South goalie Jon Farber with a backhand at 3:13 of the second period.

An unassisted shorthanded goal by Tom Kenville made it 3-0 at 6:54 and broke the game open. He took the puck away from a Bruin in the South zone, came in alone, but Farber on the ice and slipped the puck behind the netminder from the left side.

Just 20 seconds into the third period it was 4-0 as Tim Bergland lifted up a rebound on the Prowlers' first trip down ice.

Ose then became the second straight Thief River Falls hat-trick scorer as his speed enabled him to skate by South defenders and face Farber 1-on-1. He scored during a 3-on-3 situation at 3:28, then followed a 4-on-3 power play goal by Fargo's Peter Stensgaard at 4:54 with a similar goal during a 4-on-4 situation at 5:04. Both times he skated across the goal mouth, waiting for Farber to commit himself, and simply lifted the puck up and over the prone netminder. In addition to his three goals, Ose missed two other scoring chances in the same mold.

"It was a super effort by Ose," acknowledged Grand. "He utilized his speed. It was enjoyable to watch."

Ironically, Jeff Imgrund, who had a pure hat trick — three consecutive goals — against the Lumberjacks, missed the South game with two cracked ribs suffered near the end of Tuesday's game at Bemidji. He may not play Tuesday, either, when Thief River Falls hosts Moorhead in a 7:30 p.m. Section 8 game.

Sitting on a 6-1 lead, the Prowlers — who made a successful debut in their sharp new white jerseys and gold socks — suffered their only defensive lapse of the game in getting caught up with the offensive part of things and the Bruins got two late-game goals as the result, taking a little luster off the Prowlers' otherwise strong showing.

Paul Wennberg, who has established himself at the Prowlers' No. 1 goalie after a wide-open scramble for the vacant position at the start of pre-season practice, finished with 17 saves and deserved a 6-1 victory, just as he deserved a shutout at Bemidji. Farber was kept busy handling 33 shots.

"We're pretty pleased with how the forwards came back and helped out on defense again," noted Grand, "and our defensemen played very well position-wise."

HAL SWANSON, a freshman from Thief River Falls, played an outstanding ball game Saturday for Northland community college, but he was caught stepping on the base line on this play in the first half of the game against North Dakota State University-Bottineau in the Northland gym. Kevin Dhyuyvetter of Bottineau defended against Swanson, who finished with 10 points. Bottineau won it 76-74.

Third Straight Northland Loss . . .

Bottineau 76-74 Winner Over Northmen Saturday

There was a little bit of everything for the fan Saturday afternoon as Northland community college and North Dakota State University-Bottineau tangled in a non-conference basketball game in Thief River Falls. There was some fast-break offense; some slow-down offense; some hard-nosed defense; some ineffective defense; some rallies and counter-rallies; some technical fouls; some controversy; and a down-to-the-wire finish. There was even some good basketball thrown in for good measure; albeit not much of the latter.

When it finally ended, Bottineau went home with a 76-74 victory.

Bottineau, trailing 31-23 and on the verge of falling too far behind to be able to catch up midway through the first half, suddenly capitalized on Northland's impatient offense that insisted on forcing shots that just weren't there to outscore the Northmen 13-3 in a three minute span to go ahead for the first time, 36-34, with 4:54 left, and went into the lockerroom at halftime ahead 43-42.

Northland again appeared on the verge of blowing Bottineau off the court in the middle of the second half, outscoring the visitors 13-2 to make up a 61-53 deficit and lead 66-63 with 6:44 to play. Hal Swanson, a Thief River Falls freshman who put in the best effort of any Northland performer, scored on a fast break lay-up with 4:07 remaining and the Northmen seemed to be in command at 74-67.

But that's when they stopped scoring and Bottineau ran off the final eight points to win it.

Bottineau's William Poindexter, a 6-2 freshman from Chicago who scored 13 of his 16 points in the second half and most of those down the stretch — pulled his team within 74-73 with two free throws after Northland guard Derek Stokes forced a long jump shot that came up short as the final two minutes appeared on the clock.

Then after Northland's Kyle Hams missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation, Bottineau's Don Boespflug, a 6-3 sophomore from Minot, N.D., slipped underneath, took a nice feed from Poindexter and scored the game-winning basket with 38 seconds to go, making it 75-74.

Northland still had two chances to win it. But Stokes' apparent go-ahead basket with 24 seconds remaining was erased on an offensive charge, and freshman Thad Forman was off-target from the side with eight seconds to play — following the game's controversy.

Ahead 75-74, Bottineau tried

Area Deer Hunting Success Is Noted For '81 Firearms Season

Jon Parker, Department of Natural Resources area wildlife manager in Thief River Falls, reports deer hunting success in 1981 increased considerably over 1980 figures in this area of the state.

Parker's figures announced last week showed:

+Deer registration for the five stations nearest Thief River Falls was up 26 per cent over 1980 (750 animals registered this year, compared to 591 a year ago).

+Deer registration in Fourtown and Grygla was up 96 per cent from 1980, with the take nearly doubled from a year ago.

+Registration for Kill Box 11, which includes Agassiz national wildlife refuge, along with Elm Lake, Eckvoll and Mudlac wildlife management areas, was up 38 per cent over 1980.

"Early indication are that hunt success was high," reported Parker. "Agassiz national wildlife refuge estimated that buck season success was 41 per cent and antlerless season success was 32 per cent."

Parker also reported that 23 of 25 parties of moose hunters on the Agassiz, Elm Lake, Eckvoll and Mudlac areas were successful during the Dec. 5-13 season. The harvest included 12 bulls, 10 cows and one calf.

Total deer take in the kill block areas covered by Parker, which includes registration stations in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Goodridge, Viking, Warren, Oslo, Middle River, Gatzke, Grygla, Fourtown, Greenbush, Badger, Roseau, Wannaska, the Agassiz refuge and Thief Lake WMA, was 3,230 animals in

1982 Hunting Dates Listed By State DNR

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has announced the opening dates for three major hunting seasons for 1982.

Commissioner Joseph Alexander said that "in each case it is obvious when they should occur in 1982; therefore, they are being announced early to allow people ample time to plan vacations."

Small game opener will be Saturday, September 18; waterfowl, Saturday, October 2; and the firearms deer season Saturday, November 6.

Alexander said that opening dates for other 1982 seasons will be announced later after 1981 season results are analyzed and after obtaining the views of DNR field personnel and the public.

Knutson Leads Hockey Scoring In Section 8

Scott Knutson of Warroad, last year's Section 8 high school hockey scoring leader, once again heads the scoring charts compiled by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

Knutson, who has a hand in 23 of the Warriors' 33 goals through their first five games, has nine goals and 14 assists.

Through Saturday's games, Warroad scorers hold down the top four positions in the first scoring list of the 1981-82 season. Art Krahn, Kenny Knutson and Merlin Ravndalen have 16-15 and 14 points, respectively, to rank 2-3-4.

FAST BREAK by Thief River Falls' Rick Trontvet was interrupted by Moorhead's Matt Odegaard Thursday in the first half of the North Half Region 8AA high school basketball game played in the Lincoln high school gym. Steve Marquart (3) of the Spuds also hustled downcourt to defend against the play. Moorhead spoiled Thief River Falls' 1981-82 home opener, 59-36.

Ponies Outlast Nordics 55-54 In Double Overtime Ball Game

A match-up of two top Class A high school basketball teams in northwestern Minnesota produced a dandy ball game Saturday as defending Region 8A champion Warren edged Marshall County Central 55-54 in double overtime at Newfolden.

"It was some game," reported Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, whose team has another big task to face Tuesday when the Nordics visit rival Middle River, the defending North Border and District 32 champion.

Warren had Lady Luck on its side Saturday. The Ponies faced a four-point deficit with just 20 seconds left in regulation time, but got a 47-47 tie out of it when Dennis Olson hit a 30-footer at the buzzer moments after a missed Marshall County Central free throw could have put the game out of reach.

It was more of the same in the first overtime period when the Ponies' Bruce Nelson tied it 51-51 at the buzzer.

Marshall County Central had a chance to return the favor in the second overtime, but the Nordics missed their last-second shot.

"We didn't play very well in overtime," admitted Ueland. "They set the tempo and we had to play catch-up."

The loss took some of the luster off an outstanding 27-point, 13-rebound performance by the Nordics' Jeff Dahl. Brian Ljunggren had 17 points to pace a balanced Warren attack.

Marshall County Central started slowly, trailing 10-4 at the end of the first quarter and down 18-15 at halftime. But the Nordics played their best basketball in the third quarter to go ahead 28-26, although they had a six-point lead narrowed by a late Warren rally, and it could have been an even bigger advantage if they would have been able to capitalize on some turnover opportunities.

"We really played well in the third quarter," mentioned Ueland, "but we missed some lay-ups that could have really broken the game open for us. We did a lot of things well, but we didn't shoot very well."

Marshall County Central finished with a 23-for-52 effort from the field (44 per cent) and was 8-for-19 at the line (42 per cent). Warren was 25-for-47 from the field (53 per cent) and 5-for-11 at the line (45 per cent). The Ponies had a 41-29 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover charts 21-7.

"Our defense is doing much better than I had hoped for," explained Ueland, "but our offense isn't as good as I had hoped."

The loss was the first in three starts for the Nordics. Ueland said he didn't think the Nordics would be "down" going into the game against the Skippers. "Middle River is too big of a game for our kids to be down for," he acknowledged.

Middle River, 3-0, has been idle since beating Badger 67-39 last Tuesday.

Rick Spong and Jeff Milender scored two goals apiece Friday as the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team beat Fargo South 6-2.

Jeff Storhaug and Dan Imgrund added single goals for the winners, who led 1-0 at the end of the first period, made it 4-0 through two periods and had a 5-0 lead before South got on the scoreboard.

Thief River Falls is 3-1 for the year.

Goodridge 66
Plummer 43

Plummer and Goodridge, two teams scheduled to host four-team holiday tournaments tonight (Monday) and Tuesday, met in a Polar Conference game Friday and the Huskies went home with a 66-43 victory.

"It was a sloppily played game," confessed Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, "but we saw some good things," he said, referring to the leadership being developed by Ken Frazer; the ever-improving play of Ross Parnow; and the steady performance by Darrin Easthouse, who, according to Nelson, "consistently plays well for us."

Easthouse had 15 points and Jeff Langen 13 for the Huskies, now 2-1. Tim Gagner had 13 and Warren Tvedt 12 for the 0-4 Cardinals.

The Huskies, who led 27-16 at halftime, shot 31 per cent from the field on a busy 22-for-72 night and shot 56 per cent from the free throw line on another busy 22-for-39 march. Plummer, meanwhile, fared even poorer, shooting just 29 per cent from the field on a 17-for-58 showing and 31 per cent from the field throw line, 7-for-23. Goodridge had a 39-28 edge on the boards and Plummer topped the turnover charts 32-22.

In the Goodridge holiday tournament, tonight's first round games match Mentor vs. Badger at 7 p.m. and Gonvick-Trail vs. Goodridge at 8:30. Winners and losers meet Tuesday at 7 and 8:30 p.m. In the Plummer holiday tournament, tonight's pairings match Erskine vs. Oklee at 7 p.m. and Red Lake Falls vs. Plummer at 8:30. Winners and loser meet Tuesday at 7 and 8:30, also.

Goodridge Girls Win First Game

Goodridge, for a change, received balanced scoring Thursday and as a result the Huskies won their first game in five starts with a 42-36 girls high school basketball victory over Plummer.

The Huskies, who have been relying almost entirely on the offensive production of Mary Jo Kiesow, were again led by Kiesow with 15 points, but they also got 14 fron Susie Johnson and eight from Diana Troska.

"We played four good quarters of ball," pointed out Goodridge coach Georgine Troska. "We hustled."

Plummer owned a 12-7 first quarter lead, but Goodridge led it 23-20 at halftime and went ahead 35-26 in the third quarter.

In addition to her 15 points, Kiesow also pulled down 18 rebounds. Jody Pahlen led Plummer with 22 points and Bonnie Fisher had 10, giving those two players 32 of the Cardinals' 36 points.

Goodridge shot 31 per cent from the field (18-for-58) and 55 per cent from the free throw line (6-for-11) while Plummer shot 27 per cent fron the field (16-for-54) and 36 per cent from the line (4-for-11).

Both teams will be idle until after the holidays. Goodridge visits Red Lake Falls Thursday, January 7, and Plummer, also 1-4, hosts Oslo Friday, January 8.

MCC 47
Middle River 35

Marshall County Central closed out a season-opening five-game homestand Friday with a 47-35 win over Middle River, hiking the Nordics' record to 5-0. Middle River fell to 1-4.

Three Marshall County Central scorers hit double figures as Jill Johnson scored 14 points, Dorene Larson 10 and Debbie Peterson 10. Diane Black led Middle River with 14 points.

The heavily favored Nordics had trouble with the Skippers, leading only 12-10 at the end of the first quarter and ahead just 26-18 at halftime. However, Marshall County Central opened up a 41-26 third quarter spread.

Both teams shot 33 per cent from the field, but Marshall County Central was 22-for-66 while Middle River was just 10-30. The Skippers stayed close at the free throw line where they were 15-for-26 (58 per cent) and the Nordics were just 3-for-15 (20 per cent).

"We committed an awful lot of fouls, and they made their free throws," noted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, who was also disappointed with his team's shooting percentage. "We'd get the good shots, but they just wouldn't go down."

Middle River will wait until Tuesday, January 5, to host Lake of the Woods, while Marshall County Central will be idle until Saturday, January 9, when the Nordics play at Warren.

Spuds Pull Away At End In 59-36 Win Over TRF

Final score: Moorhead 59, Thief River Falls 36. It looks like a rout — the kind many might expect when you match the Prowlers, who won just four games all last year and twice got blown out by the Spuds (81-56, 91-52), against the defending North Half Region 8AA high school basketball champions.

But it was different this time. Moorhead still wound up with a relatively easy 23-point victory, but it wasn't nearly as simple as last year when the Spuds' starters raced to an early lead, then watched as reserves added to the point-spread.

Thursday's 1981-82 home opener for Thief River Falls actually found the Prowlers playing the Spuds on even terms for the first 1½ quarters, and still in the ball game at the start of the fourth quarter before things finally got away from them. It can be duly noted that the Spuds were forced to use their starters through the four-minute mark of the fourth quarter. A year ago they would have had the chills by that time because they hadn't played the second half.

"I don't think our kids have any reason to hang their heads," said first-year Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "I thought we played well for three quarters. We made too many foolish turnovers — no question about that, but as far as effort on defense and hustle, I couldn't ask for any more out of them."

Fast-paced first quarter featured entertaining basketball and a 15-11 Moorhead lead when 6-6 Brian Leines, the only starter back off last year's Region 8AA finalist squad, scored on an offensive rebound with two minutes to play to give the Spuds a 12-11 lead they never relinquished, and 6-3 reserve Dan Beckstrum scored his only points of the night — a three-point play on another offensive rebound with 1:03 left.

Thief River Falls stayed right with Moorhead through the first part of the second period, trailing only 23-19 as guard Kevin Sanders, not introduced in the starting line-up after several days of illness, hit one from the top of the key with 4:31 on the clock.

But that's when the Prowlers lost sight of the Spuds. The visitors out-scored their hosts 8-1 over the final 4½ minutes to take a 31-20 lead into intermission. Seven of the 16 second quarter Moorhead points came at the free throw line as the Spuds gained inside positions and drew fouls. Meanwhile, a patient Thief River Falls offense produced turnovers instead of points.

"We had the opportunities to score," acknowledged Hunt. "We're just not reacting to what the defense is giving us; we're spending too much time on the perimeter, we have to work on movement and getting the ball inside the key area."

Moorhead opened up a 43-30 cushion in the third quarter, but Thief River Falls was still within range when guard Kent Kainz drove the baseline for a 43-32 game 40 seconds into the fourth quarter.

The Spuds then took over by scoring 12 straight points over the next four minutes to make it look like a rout.

Richard Rix, a 6-4 forward, had 17 points for the Spuds to lead all scorers. Leines and 6-1 forward Matt Odegaard had 12 points apiece. Mark Gere had nine points to lead the still-struggling Thief River Falls offense that has averaged just 38.7 points through three games.

"We've got to do something with our offense," sighed Hunt. "We just didn't do a very good job executing what we were supposed to be doing on offense. If we can just get something going on offense we can be competitive."

Thief River Falls shot 31 per cent from the field (15-for-49) and was 6-for-14 at the free throw line (43 per cent). Moorhead shot 38 per cent from the field (24-for-63) and was 11-for-20 at the line (55 per cent). The Spuds finished with a 36-28 rebound edge, although that statistic was even at 24-apiece through three quarters. The Prowlers topped the tunover charts 25-19.

Moorhead jumped out to a 14-3 first quarter lead, made it 32-8 at halftime and coasted to a 56-23 win over the previously unbeaten Lincoln junior varsity Thursday.

Northwomen Lose 56-46

Trailing by an embarrassing 27-10 margin at halftime, the Northland community college women's basketball team staged a face-saving second half rally before surrendering a 56-46 decision to North Dakota State University-Bottineau Saturday afternoon in Thief River Falls.

Northland's rally shaved Bottineau's once safe lead to 39-34 with 7:04 remaining. But that's as close as the Northwomen got, falling behind 45-36 with five minutes to go and trailing 54-42 when Bottineau cashed in on three free throw opportunities — a technical foul shot and a bonus situation — with 2:05 on the clock.

Coach Deb Jacobson found satisfaction in the second half rally by the Northwomen. "We did three things," she explained: "We got fired up when we were able to break their press; we forced them into some turnovers; and we got some rebounds."

The Northwomen struggled through a poor shooting performance, hitting just 17 of 71 field goal attempts (24 per cent) and only 12 of 21 free throws (57 per cent). Bottineau was 21-for-74 from the field (28 per cent) and 14-for-22 from the free throw line (64 per cent) in the roughly-played game.

Northland slipped to 1-6 with the loss. The Northwomen will be idle until a Jan. 8-9 road trip to North Dakota when they will play at Lake Region and Bottineau.

Cut In State's Park Budget Is Possible

A 28 per cent cut in the state's park budget is possible, commissioner Steve Thorne, Department of Natural Resources, told the House environment and natural resources committee recently.

Governor is asking for a 12.4 per cent cut in the CNR's budget, but Thorne said some things he can't cut. Dedicated money from license fee, income producing projects in forestry, and money for federal matching programs are either impossible or impractical to cut.

"We doubled every fee last year and got very few complaints. We told people fee increases would keep facilities open and now we're slamming those gates," he said.

A PAIR OF North Dakota State University-Bottineau defenders made it difficult for Northland community college freshman Deb Koskela to get off this second half shot during Saturday's women's basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Bev Isabey (15) of Bottineau ended up with a foul in the play. The Northwomen lost the game 56-46.

GOOD DEFENSE has been the strong suit of the Lincoln high school basketball team in the early portion of the 1981-82 season. Here, the Prowlers' Dave Upham played behind Moorhead's Dan Beckstrum while Mark Gere played in front of him to effectively cut off the inside during Thursday's game in the Lincoln gym. The Prowlers' offense, though, is still struggling and they lost a 59-36 decision to the Spuds.

Warren Mat Title Won By Rams Saturday

Roseau edged Fosston 174½ to 173½ Saturday to win the Warren high school invitational wrestling tournament.

Rest of the field included Warren with 145 points, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 140½, Walhalla 118, Erskine-Plummer 90 and Warren junior varsity 35½.

Weight winners were: 98 — Ernie Zeller, Sacred Heart; 105 — Paul Stremick, Walhalla; 112 — Mark Wieberg, Fosston; 119 — Rick Milner, Roseau; 126 — Les Kvein, Roseau; 132 — Terry Erickson, Warren; 138 — Bruce Murphy, Fosston; 145 — Gary Przekwas, Roseau; 155 — Dave Clement, Sacred Heart; 167 — Jim Urseth, Walhalla; 185 — Marty Gubrud, Fosston; heavyweight — Daryl Mikkelson, Roseau.

Erskine-Plummer advanced one wrestler into the finals, with Troy Gustafson losing a high-scoring 15-10 decision to Murphy at 138.

Two Cardinals won third place matches as Rod Duden edged Daryl Loman of Fosston 4-2 at 105 pounds and Mick Brekke pinned Mike Ware of Fosston in 2:47 at 155.

Erskine-Plummer will be idle until Saturday, January 9, when they participate in a tournament at Lake Park.

Waubun defeated Oklee 36-20 in a Friday night dual meet at Waubun. The Bobcats, who fell to 1-2 with the loss, will wait until Thursday, January 7, to host Roseau.

One expert describes the burro as "500 pounds of free enterprise." The August Reader's Digest says it may have contributed more to the winning of the West than any other animal. Suited to its desert habitat, it only needs a drink every 24 hours in summertime; once every three days in winter.

Lincoln Girls Lose To Park Rapids By 38-36

A fourth quarter rally came up two points short Saturday as the Lincoln high school girls basketball team lost a 38-36 game at Park Rapids.

"If we'd had another minute, I think we would have pulled it out," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We played well most of the game, we just came up short at the end."

The Prowlers started out slowly, trailing 13-9 at the end of the first quarter and down 21-15 at halftime. They still faced a 31-23 deficit as the third quarter came to a close.

"We changed to a half-court press and it worked really well," said Schafer about the Prowlers' come-back efforts. "But our problem was that we'd get the ball down and not do anything with it."

Thief River Falls actually out-scored Park Rapids from the field, going 15-for-45 (33 per cent), while the Panthers were 14-for-39 (36 per cent). But the winners were 10-for-18 at the free throw line (55 per cent) where the Prowlers were 6-for-11 (54 per cent). Thief River Falls held a 36-32 rebound edge and Park Rapids topped the turnover charts 23-16.

Tara Nicholson paced the Prowlers with 13 points. Dawn Hinneberg scored 19 for the winners, 13 of those coming in the first half.

The loss snapped a three-game win streak for the Prowlers, who will take a 3-2 record into the holiday break. They return to action Tuesday, January 5, at Moorhead.

Park Rapids jumped out to a 14-4 first quarter lead en route to a 33-26 win in the junior varsity game, dropping the Lincoln JV record to 2-3. Tricia Armstrong scored 10 points to lead Thief River Falls to a 29-8 win in the freshman game, improving the winner's record to 2-0.

FWS Director Is Appointed By James Watt

Robert A. Jantzen was sworn in as director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) by Secretary James G. Watt in a ceremony at the Department of Interior.

"This administration had determined that we would have professionals managing the natural resource agencies in the Department of Interior," Watt told an assembly of Fish and Wildlife Service employees, "and Bob Jantzen has spent nearly 30 years of wildlife management with the state of Arizona. He is a career wildlife manager who has earned the respect of other professionals."

Watt said that he wanted an experienced state wildlife biologist as head of the agency because of his desire to see that fish and wildlife resources are managed scientifically and federal-state relations improved. In addition, he said that strong leadership was needed to carry out his commitment to rehabilitate deteriorating facilities on many units of the service's 89-million acre national wildlife refuge system.

"When I first took office, I made the commitment to overcome health and safety deficiencies in the national parks," Watt said. "Since then I have learned that for too many years the political managers of the Interior Department overlooked similar deficiencies on the national wildlife refuges and ranges managed by the Fish and Wildlife Service. We are determined to overcome these deficiencies, and to carry out this commitment we need a professional wildlife manager like Bob Jantzen."

Jantzen, a former director of the Arizona Game and Fish Department, was nominated for the Interior post in October and confirmed by the Senate November 4. In his first remarks as director, he said that the economic situation meant that the Fish and Wildlife Service would have to "do better with perhaps fewer resources," and called for a stronger partnership between the service, state wildlife agencies, and private organizations.

DRIVING BETWEEN a pair of North Daota State University-Bottineau defenders, Northland community college freshman Mark Simon tried to score on this play in the first half of Saturday's basketball game played here, but William Poindexter of Bottineau blocked the shot. Simon finished with a game-high 16 points and 11 rebounds, but the Northmen lost 76-74.

Northwomen Are Beaten In Itasca Basketball Tournament

Participating in their third straight two-day tournament to open the 1981-82 season, the Northland community college women's basketball team suffered a pair of losses at the Itasca invitational played Thursday and Friday in Grand Rapids.

University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) defeated Northland 66-34 in opening round play and host Itasca stopped Northland 65-47 in the third place game.

Prior to the Itasca event, the Northwomen played in tournaments here in Thief River Falls and in Rochester.

University of Minnesota-Crookston ran up a 37-13 first half lead and finished with an easy 66-34 win over Northland Thursday.

The Northwomen, who were just 4-for-23 at the free throw line (17 per cent), were led by Donna Stewart and Diane Fisher with 10 points apiece. It was the first Northland game for Fisher, a member of the 1,000-point club in high school at Plummer, she transferred to Northland this year from Moorhead State University, but her start with the Northwomen has been slowed by a knee injury that knocked her out of the Dragons' line-up a year ago.

Another ineffective effort at the free throw line hurt Northland in a 65-47 loss to Itasca Friday.

The Northwomen, down 35-23 at halftime, were just 1-for-8 at the free throw line (13 per cent). Itasca, finishing with a 26-23 edge in field goals, padded the margin with a busy 13-for-22 game at the line (59 per cent).

Diane Fisher scored 16 points for the Northwomen to lead all scorers.

Lake Region 76-54 Winner Over Northmen

Held to just 17 points in the first half — which has to rank as a school low, the Northland community college basketball team was soundly beaten by a strong Lake Region squad 76-54 Wednesday in Devils Lake, N.D.

"They're good," acknowledged Northland coach Chet Engelman. "They're big. They got us down early and never let up."

Northland, trailing 38-17 at the half, was just 7-for-29 from the field (24 per cent) through the first 20 minutes of play. The Northmen managed to play a respectable second half, but it was a case of too little, too late.

In addition to shooting poorly — just 23-for-65 from the field (35 per cent) and 8-for-14 at the free throw line (57 per cent) — the Northmen were also beaten badly on the boards as Lake Region finished with a big 53-36 edge in rebounds. "They just hammered us on the boards," reported Engelman. "They beat us to death."

Northmen Lose To Bottineau

to pad its lead when Boespflug drove to the basket with 14 seconds left. Northland's Mark Simon went up with him and both officials — Greg Pribula and Tim Olson — blew their whistles. One said Simon blocked the shot and forced a jump ball, but the other said he fouled Boespflug with his body on the play. After huddling for several moments, it was ruled that the block occurred first — thus ending the play, and the foul, in effect, never took place. And under the new no-jump ball college basketball rule this year, Northland got the ball on the pre-determined alternating possession rule.

Bottineau coach Mike Carroll was incensed. But it became academic when Forman rushed his shot and Bottineau iced it with a free throw at the end.

Northland coach Chet Engelman said he was disappointed with the outcome. "We played all right in spots, but at other times . . ."

Biggest problem for the Northmen came at the free throw line where they were just 10-for-24 (38 per cent), which included misses at the front end of five bonus situations. All toll, Northland had a chance to add 19 points to their total at the free throw line.

"We just can't make 'em," said Engelman about the team's free throw problems.

They weren't bad from the field, hitting 32 of 61 attempts for 52 per cent. Bottineau was a nearly-identical 32-for-62 from the field, and had troubles of their own at the line where they were 12-for-22 (53 per cent). It was even, too, in the rebound department (41 apiece) and turnover charts (22-20, Bottineau).

Northland, losing for the third straight game and 4-3 for the year, will be idle until a Saturday, January 9, game at the Grand Forks Air Force Base.

"It was a bad way to go into the break," acknowledged Engelman. "We're just not winners yet."

Pari-Mutuel Betting Bill Reaches House

Bill providing for a constitutional amendment to allow pari-mutuel gambling made it through the general legislation and veterans' affairs committee recently in St. Paul.

If the legislature passes the bill, a constitutional amendment would be on the ballot for the next statewide general election in November. If the amendment gets a majority of positive votes by everyone voting in the election it would give the legislature power to set up a system to allow for pari-mutuel racing and betting in the state.

Several people testified before the committee in favor of the bill, but no one came forward to testify against it. Committee questioned a member of the governor's staff, and he expressed the governor's opinion that he did not approve of legalized gambling, because he felt it would introduce a criminal element into the state which does not now exist.

Gov. Quie doesn't have the power to veto a proposed amendment to the constitution. He could veto only bills which would come out of the legislature setting guidelines for pari-mutuel betting if the amendment is approved by voters.

House sill consider the bill during the regular session which starts January 12.

Quie Shares Ways To Make Holiday Safe

Gov. Al Quie has offered this holiday message to encourage a safe holiday season for everyone:

Holidays are a time for sharing the joy of the season with our friends, neighbors and families. It is also a time often marred by the tragedy of road accidents related to the use of alcohol during holiday parties.

Purpose of this message is to bring a greater awareness of ways to make every holiday party more joyful and safe. If our holiday parties include alcohol, we must accept the responsibility to use common sense.

We have all heard of the message not to mix drinking and driving. We are all aware of the law forbidding the operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Yet people still continue to drink and drive. This holiday season we must do everythink we can to prevent this problem from happening.

Responsible holiday hosting, a cooperative effort between host and guests, is one method of prevention. Our job as responsible hosts is to create a climate that encourages an enjoyable time regardless of whether alcohol is served while discouraging over indulgence. Our responsibility as guests, if we choose to use alcohol, is to moderate our use and not to put our hosts in a difficult situation. This cooperative effort requires individual initiative to be successful. We need to make the effort to show that we care about our friends.

Minnesoat prevention resource center (MPRC) has numerous materials that can be of help in planning a responsible holiday party; recipes for nonalcoholic beverages, tips for planning a party, recipes for snacks and suggestions on how to respond to those who misuse alcohol. You may receive these materials by writing to the MPRC at 2829 Verndale Ave., Anoka, MN, 55303, or by calling (612) 427-5310. Its services are available to individuals and groups throughout Minnesota.

This spirit of group interaction, concern and planning will always be more successful than all of our laws against drinking and driving. It is my hope that this holiday season will be a safe and joyous time for all Minnesotans. It can be, if we all use common sense when it comes to using alcohol and are responsible hosts and guests.

Christmas Comes To Area Churches

While area churches focus on the birth of the Christ Child in Bethlehem those many years ago, the observances planned include a variety of programs and services. All of the churches invite those of the community who have no church home to share in their observances of their choice and receive the added blessings that attendance and worship can bring.

United Methodist church, with Rev. Melvyn Budke and Rev. Mark Johaningsmeir as pastors, will have candlelight services at 5 and 9 p.m. on Thursday with nursery care provided at the 5 p.m. service.

Evangelical Free church with Rev. Curtis D. Anderson as pastor will conduct its Christmas eve worship service Thursday at 5 p.m.

St. John Lutheran church with Rev. Allen Ashbacher as pastor, will have its children's Christmas program tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., a candlelight service with holy communion on Thursday at 7 p.m., and a morning worship service at 9:15 a.m. Friday.

Our Saviour's Lutheran church with Rev. Les Galland as pastor will have a Christmas eve candlelight service at 10 p.m. Thursday. Tonight the junior choir will go caroling and skating at 6 p.m. and return to the church for refreshments at 8 p.m.

City Council Maps Strategy On Air Service

Strategy for saving airline service was the major topic at the regular meeting of Thief River Falls city council last night in council chambers at city auditorium.

Attorney Robert Wurst reported on a Local Air Service Action Committee (LASAC) meeting which he and Mayor Carlson had attended, noting that the organization of communities had passed a resolution in opposition to Republic Airlines' notice of intent to discontinue passenger service to Thief River Falls.

Republic has cited low number of boardings and discontinuation of subsidies as reasons for the suspension.

Wurst noted that the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) would be inviting 30 commuter airlines to come in and make proposals for replacing Republic's services. If one of them proposed to furnish service without subsidies they would be given a contract. If nobody bids without subsidies the decision would be between CAB and the bidders. Republic could be ordered to maintain service until an adequate replacement is found.

Wurst said he had received a questionarie from CAB which sought information on boardings, etc. He noted that one of the questions asked if there were extenuating circumstances or reasons why declining number of boardings should not be used to determine essential air service. He said that question indicated that CAB intended to downgrade services to Thief River Falls. "Our job is to make sure that the replacement is available to the people," he said.

Alderman Don Goodrich responded, "That isn't the way I look at it at all. We've got a wonderful system of transportation right now, and we should do everything possible to keep it." Alderman Bill Penning agreed, stating "the strategy of the council should be to hold Republic Airlines to this business for as long as possible and use whatever tactics as would be good for the citizens." Wurst

"We are asking that reservations be made so that we can adequately prepare for those who will attend. Persons who need rides should also let us know when they call so that we can arrange transportation."

Mrs. Kruse, her husband Mike, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Gobell and Dr. and Mrs. Alex Easton are spearheading the annual effort this year. Serving time is expected to be about 5:15 p.m.

Jane Smith Body Unclaimed And Awaiting Burial

A 17-year-old girl who apparently considered herself unwanted in life now seems to be unwanted in death as well.

According to an article researched by Carol Uebe for the Red Lake Falls Gazette, Jane Elizabeth Smith's body has lain at Petterson Funeral home in Red Lake Falls for the past 45 days awaiting burial or cremation.

Seventeen years old and five months pregnant, Smith died November 8 in Oklee of cardiac arrest following an overdose of Amitriptyline, according to Uebe's article. Funeral services were held in Oklee November 13 in accordance with the wishes of her adoptive mother on the East coast and her natural brother and sister of this area.

But her adoptive parents have officially disclaimed liability for the body as does the Bucks county social services department in Pennsylvania. Minnesota department of public welfare maintains the body belongs to the adoptive parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith.

Born to George and Margaret Fetherman in Norfolk, VA, Jane Elizabeth was adopted by the Smiths at the age of seven. Mrs. Smith was her second grade teacher. She left the Smith home at Newton, PA, at the age of 16 and came under care of Bucks county social services. That agency reportedly released her last fall to seek her natural mother, Margaret Hegland, and she arrived in Oklee in September.

Petterson Funeral home needs authority in writing from the responsible party or parties to dispose of the body be cremation or earth burial. Until the responsible party is officially determined, the funeral home can do neither. A death certificate can not be completed until final disposition of the remains has been determined.

Friendship Club Means Sharing, Love, Concern

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

Love and concern; together these two ingredients make friendship. At Christmastime, friendship should be of utmost importance, although many of us, as normal human beings, often seem to take for granted our friendships as we become involved in our rushed lifestyles.

Since Sept. 8, 1967, when the first meeting of the Friendship club was conducted in the basement meeting room of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls, four club volunteers have enriched the lives of club members. Since its beginning, the club has provided a social and recreational outlet for over 100 persons once hospitalized for mental illness.

First coordinator of the club was Joan Harris, according to Val Chommie, who took over that position 13 years ago. Presently serving on the club's liaison committee with Val are Clarice Collins, Esther Gausen, Inga Shetler, Norm Midthun, Gary Erickson and Art Heinze.

When Ron Mooers (past Pennington county social services director) asked Mrs. Chommie (then a social services board member) if she would assist in forming a club in Thief River Falls for the mentally handicapped, she hesitated. Organization of such a club appeared to be a major problem. Attempts to organize clubs of this type in various Minnesota cities of equal size to Thief River Falls were failing.

When the idea was presented to representatives of various organizations for their support, most people just didn't seem to have the time, Chommie said. That is, until four volunteers — Clarice, Esther, Inga and Val — united and have been instrumental in maintaining the club ever since. Volunteers, acting under the sponsorship of the Pennington county mental health association and the Pennington county social services department began to plan activities for former state hospital residents to ease the lonely and isolated feelings many dischargees are faced with.

Officers witnessed the growth of membership from seven to 10 in 1967 and from 17 to 23 in 1977. Presently, there are 18 members active in the club.

"They're the happiest people you'd ever want to meet," Mrs. Chommie said during a recent visit to her home. "They're just like a family."

Val arrived early at the courthouse meeting room to decorate for the club's recent Christmas party. Candles had to be placed on tables (just as they are for every meeting), and angels, elves and garland had to be hung. At the party were gospel readings, caroling, lunch and the distribution of gifts by Santa Claus. Officers also remembered their "extra goodies," not often forgotten.

"Little things mean a lot," Collins said.

"Santa comes every year to give out presents," Chommie said. "You should have seen those beaming faces when he arrived! There was too much excitement for Bingo that day!" she exclaimed, beaming herself. Bingo is a favorite of club members, as is special music. Every oc-

School Board Acts On Salary Matters Mon.

Adjustments in salaries for several positions were made and requests for a salary increase and other considerations were received from a substitute teachers group when the Thief River Falls board of education met Monday evening in room 120 at the Thief River Falls AVTI.

Negotiations were conducted by the board at 7:30 p.m. with the supervisor of buildings and grounds, Jerry Prickett, and the school district business manager, Harry Nelson. At the regular meeting, salaries and benefits for both were approved.

Both Prickett and Nelson were granted 1981-82 salary increases of $2,000, their insurance coverage paid by the district was increased from $80 to $95 per month and vacation time was increased from 10 to 15 days per year.

The board granted a 25 cents per hour salary increase for part-time farm management analysis secretaries for 1981-82. The secretaries work on analysis of farm records submitted through the AVTI's adult farm management program.

Tuition rates for the farm management program were established for the year beginning July 1, 1982. Rates were set at $175 per year for the first three years of participation, $225 per year for the fourth and fifth years and $300 per year thereafter. Tuition increase to $30 was also approved for the motorcycle rider education program.

Pat Dunning, representing the substitute teachers group, made the request to the board for a salary increase and presented several concerns which substitute teachers presently have. Among the concerns were credit for substitute teaching time toward experience increments on the salary schedule, development of a policy book as a guide for substitute

Youngsters Explain The Meaning Of Christmas

What does Christmas mean to second grade students? This question was asked of student at two randomly selected elementary schools in Thief River Falls recently. Answers from students at Northrop and Washington schools ranged from "opening gifts" to "The day Jesus was born." Following were selected samples written by students. (Although all the explanations written were enjoyable, we were not able to use all of them because of limited space available. Those selected are representative of the group.)

Washington students — Nathan Egge — "I Love Jesus and my family and my teacher and my grandpa and grandma. It also means giving gifts and love."

Scott Srnsky — "The meaning of Christmas is Jesus was born on Christmas day and made us live. Jesus was born in a manger. Just presents isn't Christmas and Christmas trees isn't the meaning of Christmas and stocking isn't the meaning of Christmas and food isn't the meaning of Christmas. But angels are the meaning of Christmas and stars are the meaning of Christmas."

Kristy Srnsky — "I will go to bed when you say to. I will clean my bedroom when you say to. These are my gifts to Mom and Dad."

Erica Rae Kostrzewski — "What Christmas means — it's Jesus birthday and giving people things when Santa Claus become so you better watch out 'i'm telling you why."

Cory Offerdahl — "I love Jesus and my family and I'm going to help my dad work and my mom work, and I'm going to clean up my room, for a gift to them."

Jason Hageman — "Merry Christmas to you. I like Christmas. It is no gifts, thats not it. It's love too. I will clean my room as a gift to mom."

Lance Moe — "What Christmas means to me — I think Love and family comes home to share love."

Katie Olson — "Christmas mean to me. Jesus' birthday, giving gifts, and being with my family and loving. That's what Christmas means to me."

Students from Northrop school had these answers to offer:

Michael Sampson — I like Christmas. There is lots of things to do on Christmas. You get lots of toys on Christmas. Christmas is the best time of the year."

Derrick Anderson — "When the light shines on the Christmas tree. And when you get gifts for Christmas day, getting gifts from you're mom and dad and you're sister and brothers. Especially the big ones that you get on Christmas eve night. In the morning you'll get Santas gifts. And when Christmas eve is on the 31 night. And when the cartoons are on. You can wach the night before Christmas and frosty the snowman is on night."

Kyle Mehrkens — "Christmas means to me joyful and Happiest that Jesues is reborn in to our hearts. Merry Christmas."

Sara Anderson — "What Christmas means to me. I like Christmas becase it's so nice to get presents from your mom and dad and your friends and especially when you get to decorate the tree."

Kelly Lehr — "Christmas is a gift getting season. Christmas is when baby Jeses was born. Merry Christmas

Mutnansky-Skibicki Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at a one o'clock ceremony at St. Bernard's Catholic church, Thief River Falls, by Patricia Anne Mutnansky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mutnansky of Goodridge, and Stanley Steve Skibicki, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Skibicki, Sr., also of Goodridge.

Rev. Stanley Bourassa officiated at the double ring ceremony. Kari Peterson, a friend of the couple, was the organist, playing the traditional "Wedding March," for the processional. During the ceremony, music was provided by the bride's sisters, Jodi Mutnansky, soloist, and Bonnie Mutnansky, as accompanist. Selections were "God, A Woman and a Man," "Wedding Song," and "One Day at a Time," which was rendered during Holy Communion. Altar boys were Ricky Neuschwander of Grygla and Ronnie Kiesow of Goodridge, cousins of the bride. Dale Neuschwander of Melrose, also a cousin of the bride, was reader.

Arrangements of white gladioli and yellow pompons graced the altar, flanked on either side by potted yellow mums.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white empire-fashioned organza gown styled with a Queen Anne neckline trimmed with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. Matching lace formed the cuffs on her sheer bishop sleeves. Her lace edged, bouffant skirt with a paneled and scalloped cathedral-length train was enhanced by a front pickup, revealing crystal pleating. A fitted lace headpiece held her finger tip veil, also edged in lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses, mint green carnations, white button pompons, babies' breath and greenery.

Diane Mutnansky of Thief River Falls attended her sister as maid of honor. Other attendants were the bride's sisters: Mary and Bonnie Mutnansky of Willmar, Jane Mutnansky of Bemidji, Jodi and Paula Mutnansky of Goodridge; and sister-in-law, Arletta Mutnansky of Goodridge, and the groom's sister, Sarah Weber, also of Goodridge.

All wore jade-emerald floor-length gowns featuring empire bodices, pleated skirts and Chantilly lace capes with satin bows. In their hair, they wore satin ribbons, matching their gown. They carried long-stemmed, open yellow roses, Sweetheart roses and yellow and green satin ribbon streamers.

Flower girl was Emilie Solberg, Goodridge, a cousin of the bride. She wore a floor-length, spaghetti strapped gown of mint green polyester cotton with yellow floral flocking. Topping her gown, made by her mother, was a matching short, puffed sleeved bolaro trimmed with lace and yellow ribbon. In her hair, she wore a cluster of babies' breath with yellow ribbon. She carried a white lace basket filled with yellow satin roses, babies' breath and yellow and green ribbon streamers. Her silver cross necklace was a gift from the bride.

The rings were carried by Eric Mutnansky, Goodridge, and Tony Kassa, Thief River Falls, nephews of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, they wore green Byron tuxedos and white ruffled shirts trimmed in green. Their boutonnieres were a single yellow rose.

The groom, attired in a white royale tuxedo with a yellow rose boutonniere, selected as best man Jim Mutnansky of Goodridge, a brother of the bride and his close friend. Groomsmen were Joe Stroot, Euclid, friend of the couple; Paul Troska and Jon Wilson, Goodridge, friends of the groom; Mark and Miles Skibicki of Goodridge, brothers of the groom, and Billy and Bobby Neuschwander of Grygla, cousins of the bride.

Ushers were Joe Mutnansky, Goodridge, brother of the bride; Tim Kassa, Thief River Falls, a brother-in-law of the bride; Ricky Kiesow, Goodridge and Dwight Larson, Viking, cousins of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a shrimp colored floor-length gown with cape sleeves. The groom's mother wore a wine floor-length gown.

Honored guests were Mrs. Mary Kiesow, Goodridge, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sturre, Goodridge, grandparents of the groom; Jerome Mutnansky of Goodridge and Lester and Carolyn Larson of Viking, uncles and aunt of the bride; and Paulette Kassa of Thief River Falls, the bride's sister, who served as personal attendant.

Host and hostess at the reception served in the church parlors by St. Anne's Ladies aid of Goodridge, were the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Neuschwander of Grygla. Ron and Renae Timm registered the guests as Lou Ann Kiesow and Laurie Kiesow served the punch and the kransekage, a traditional Scandinavian wedding cake. All are cousins of the bride.

Highlighting the serving table was a chocolate and white wedding cake featuring three individual cakes. The upper tiers were supported by lucite tubes filled with yellow silk roses and greenery. Connecting the cakes were stairways featuring miniature members of the bridal party. A miniature bridal couple backed by a gold cross and a flower framed cathedral window topped the center cake. Surrounding the cake at the base were fresh leather leaves. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Margaret Rupprecht and was cut and served by Harriet Kiesow and Lauretta Stucy, cousins of the bride.

Pouring coffee were Irene Kiesow, cousin of the bride, and Avis Frazer, aunt of the groom. Waitresses were Mryna Skibicki, sister of the groom, Judy Kiesow, Linda Brandt, cousins of the bride, Lorenda Frazer, cousin of the groom; all of Goodridge; Kathy and Mary Lee Neuschwander of Grygla, and Dorene Larson of Viking, cousins of the bride. The rice packets were distributed by Missy and Marie Skibicki, cousins of the groom. Shelly Cullen, a cousin of the bride, and Ruth Pittman, a friend of the bride, presided at the gift table.

The couple is now at home at Goodridge where the groom operates a grain and dairy farm. The bride is a graduate of Mount Saint Benedict, Crookston, and the groom is a graduate of Goodridge high school. Photo, Don Nordlund, Bagley

Congressman Says Farm Bill Best Available

Congressman Arlan Stangeland today attacked the stance of those who opposed the 1981 farm bill and are now bitterly attacking the legislation which draws the basic outlines of federal farm programs for the next four years.

After seven months of protracted debate, Congress passed the farm bill in the final hour of the 1981 session. President Reagan has signed the bill.

"One of the most disturbing parts of American politics is the way demagogues try to gather popular support by ignoring the facts," Rep. Stangeland said. "Unfortunately, you are seeing that kind of situation developing around the 1981 farm bill.

"Anyone who says he was serving the best interests of the American agricultural community by opposing the 1981 farm bill is either uninformed or trying to mislead the public," he said. "In the process, he is making a poor situation worse."

Rep. Stangeland is a member of the House agriculture committee and the author of the sugar provision in the 1981 farm bill.

"We were not given the choice between the 1981 farm bill and some better option when the voting took place last week," he said. "Our choice was between the weak farm bill and utter chaos in the farm community.

"The provisions of the 1977 farm bill expire on New Year's eve," Rep. Stangeland said. "If we had not passed the 1981 farm bill, all our basic farm programs would have reverted back to their original levels, which were set in 1949 or 1938.

"This would have been a disaster for Minnesota farmers," he pointed out. "There would have been no sugar or soybean programs. And under an archaic allotment system, Minnesota wheat growers would have lost 60 per cent of their acreage."

Congressman Stangeland pointed out that some commodities would have benefitted temporarily by returning to the 1949 levels. For example, the dairy subsidies would have risen to 75 per cent of parity.

"However, given the consumer-oriented attitude of this Congress and the budget-conscious attitude of this administration, you can be sure that emergency legislation would have been quickly passed to eliminate these temporary benefits for our dairymen," Rep. Stangeland said.

"There is another consideration to be made," Rep. Stangeland said. "If the 1981 farm bill had been defeated, we would have been faced with the task of writing a new farm bill next year. And as Congress and the President look for further budget cuts next year, you can be sure that any farm bill accepted in 1982 would have been far more austere than the one we just passed.

"I think it is safe to say that anyone who wanted to defeat the 1981 farm bill didn't consider all of these implications," he continued. "They also didn't consider some of the improvements that were made in this bill.

"For example the target prices and loan rates for wheat, corn and feed grains have been increased," Rep. Stangeland said. "Although these increases don't keep pace with the growing cost of production, at least we did get some increases — and that was no small task in a year of sweeping budget reductions.

"The 1981 farm bill also has a four-year sugar program, which will help the 1,200 beet growers and 1,500 factory workers who live in our area," he said. "It will also help consumers by stabilizing prices and assuring a steady supply.

"You won't hear me claiming that this farm bill is adequate," Rep. Stangeland said. "However, I've been a farmer for nearly 30 years, and there has never been a full farm bill that came close to covering our growers' true cost of production.

"This year, farm-state legislators faced two groups of opponents while putting the farm bill together," he said. "Urban legislators, who dominate Congress, wanted to cut through the bone on agricultural supports. And President Reagan, who is trying to reduce the federal deficit, supported a more market-oriented farm bill.

"On the whole, I believe we did better than was expected in turning back the urban forces," Rep. Stangeland said. "This farm bill will provide a shock absorber for most farmers, even though it will not solve the massive problems facing our agricultural sector.

"We prevented chaos by passing this bill," he said. "Now it is up to us to try and improve on this bill. In the next several years, we will try to increase the support levels wherever possible.

"We will also be continuously urging agriculture secretary John Block to use the discretionary powers Congress granted him in the 1981 farm bill," Rep. Stangeland said.

"Our most important task, however, is still the fight against high inflation and interest rates, which are the greatest enemies of American farmers," he added. "To do that, we've got to keep the federal budget as lean as possible in every other field.

"The 1981 farm bill is not a strong piece of legislation," Rep. Stangeland concluded. "But it is an improvement over the 1977 farm program in many ways, and it is certainly better than the options of a return to levels set 30 and 40 years ago and writing another farm bill in the rough and tumble 1982 session of Congress.

"I hope Minnesotans will keep that in mind when demagogues attack the 1981 farm bill in the coming days."

teachers in dealing with classroom and other situations, and the sometimes lengthy period between time of substitute teaching and receipt of paycheck. Board members deferred action on the requests until the next meeting.

Final revised 1981-82 school calendar for kindergarten through grade 12 was distributed to the board. Supt. Robert Block informed board members of the method used to determine back pay for teachers who received an increase under the new two-year contract adopted following the strike earlier this year. Some faculty members had questioned the method, he said, and he wanted the board members to be familiar with the procedure. The district has made the payment to its faculty.

Report was presented on future planning for the district and it was suggested that the board meet late in January to proceed with further planning. A teacher in-service workshop is scheduled for January 16 and the planning meeting will follow that workshop.

Board chairman Ken Wiebolt and Supt. Block were delegated to meet with the city council regarding the aviation mechanics building at the airport. The building is owned by the city and leased by the school district. An arrangement concerning ownership would have to be made before funds from an energy grant could be expended on the building..

Authorization was given for the administration to apply for and raise funds for playground equipment for the handicapped and to hire a student tutor at the AVTI to work with special needs students.

Resignations were accepted from Greg Sandahl, custodian presently on leave of absence; Dian Fay Johnson, management aide for the preschool handicapped unit at Mark Twain; and Joe Courneya, bus driver.

Hired were Vern Scholin, tool crib attendant in Carpentry I at the AVTI; Gerald Odegaard and James Dahlstrom, bus drivers; Marlys Olson, management aide for the multiple handicapped at Mark Twain; David Hanson, long-term substitute in drafting and electronics at Lincoln high school and the Northwest vocational center;

Also Loree Kreps, AVTI sales and marketing instructor; Linda LaFave, AVTI cosmetology instructor; Lona Schuett, AVTI secretarial non-shorthand instructor; and Victoria Boman, EMH long-term substitute at Knox. Walt Redinger was appointed Title I director for 1981-82.

Leave of absence without pay was approved for Joan Frissell, SLD teacher at St. Hilaire.

Permission was given to the transportation supervisor to approach the city safety council concerning a number of three-way stop intersections in the community which appear to pose a safety problem. Administration was given permission to proceed with remodeling the board room and center office area in the school district service center.

Director Orley Gunderson of the AVTI was given approval to submit budget plans A and B as presented to the state department of education.

Proposals will be solicited from the two accounting firms in Thief River Falls for presentation at the next meeting of the board on January 11. Authorization was given to employ a mechanical engineer to evaluate the boilers at Lincoln senior high school. Discussion was also held on the bus driver contract which is presently being negotiated.

City Council Maps Strategy On Air Service

noted that the committee was already doing all they could, but said they had no legal action available to stop the suspension.

Penning said they should request an extension on the date for returning the questionnaire, citing need for time to get a citizens action committee together. Wurst and Mayor Bob Carlson noted that the questionnarie could be filled out using currently available data to "put the best possible light on the situation," but agreed to try for an extension as a delaying tactic. He noted that CAB representative Linda Hall had agreed to come to Thief River Falls to hold hearings and said that would be the time to have people come forward to testify. "As far as fighting CAB, I've been doing that for 28 years and I don't intend to quit now. I'll take all the help I can get," said Wurst.

Mayor Carlson noted that he and Wurst had fought to save rail service previously, but noted that if people weren't using the service, it made it difficult to make a good argument. "It's going on all over the country. Thief River is not an exception," he said. At one point he suggested that they might consider talking to Republic officers about concessions the city could make to them as well as putting on a blitz to get boardings up. He referred to eliminating rent charged for the airport, stating, "what would a $10,000 a year concession mean to Republic?" Noting that the airpot would have a $9,000 deficit budget for 1982, he said, "what of another $10,000. I've got no problems in taking money out of the earnings of the liquor store to subsidize an airport for the purpose of having adequate air service here, if it would attract Republic."

Actions will continue with hearings to be set up with CAB and attempts made to get Republic to withdraw its notice of intent to suspend service.

Council approved the following appointments by the mayor to city council committees for 1982-83: Streets, Clayton Restad, chairman, Don Goodrich, Milan Borsheim; Park and Recreation, Goodrich, chairman, Mayor Carlson; Labor, Ambrose Wysoski, chairman, Restad; Liquor, Borsheim, chairman, James Womack, Ken Murphy; Utilities, Penning, chairman, Murphy, Borsheim, Wysoski; Health and Santitation, Murphy, chairman, Penning; Tax, License and Finance, Womack, chairman, Wysoski, Carlson, Restad; Public Safety (police, fire, airport), Carlson, chairman, Wysoski, Goodrich; Insurance and Building, Womack, chairman, Murphy, Penning.

In other business the council:

—approved rebidding of group health insurance due to rate increase by Equitable Life Insurance Soceity of America of approximately 37 per cent, effective February 1. Bids will be opened January 19 by finance committee and acted on by council at January 26 meeting.

—approved changing payroll play so that employees would be paid every two weeks instead of first and fifteenth of every month, to simplify paperwork.

UMC Initiates New Interior Design Course

Interior design technology course began this fall at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

Program is the first of its kind in the area, as it presents an interdisciplinary venture between the home and family services division and the business division. Students in the program will graduate from both divisions.

"Primary reason for establishing the interdisciplinary approach to interior design is to bring together and identify the need for a well-rounded professional, qualified to handle both design and business questions while at the same time maintaining good client communication," said Colleen DeMartin, instructor for the course.

Interior design is a specialized sales and service career area that deals with understanding the wants and needs of individuals. The option will prepare students for business activities including retailing, accounting, salesmanship, and management as well as providing an understanding of the technical interior design and specialty areas such as history, furniture construction and drapery.

The new program will replace housing and home furnishings within the home and family services division and interior furnishings merchandising within the business division.

Boschwitz Cites Embargo Provision As Farm Bill Plus

Senator Rudy Boschwitz today said that embargo protection is the most important provision of the 1981 farm bill.

Embargo protection provision was attached to the bill in March by Boschwitz, a member of the senate agriculture committee. It effectively prevents a selective embargo on agriculture by requiring staff payments made to farmers on embargoed goods. The bill requires that a farmer be entitled to a deficiency payment equal to the difference between the market price and 100 per cent of parity on the entire year's crop during which an embargo is imposed or is in effect.

"The last three Presidents have embargoed agriculture", Boschwitz said. "If agriculture is ever selectively embargoed again, the American farmer would be protected." It is particularly unfair to single out a specific industry to pay the price of our foreign policy.

As for the rest of the 1981 farm bill, Sen. Boschwitz said it was "the best package we were going to get in these days of budget cutting.

"The farm bill is not everything we could have wished for from the very beginning," he added, "but it is better than it might have been."

He said that supports for dairy, feedgrains and corn all look better in the final bill than the one that had earlier passed the senate. This year also marks the first bill to include sugar.

Total cost of the 1981 farm bill (S. 884) as reported by the conference committee is estimated at $11 billion. This is a compromise between the $10.6 billion Senate bill and the $16.6 billion House version.

Dairy provisions set milk price supports at a minimum of $13.10 per hundred pounds for fiscal year (FY 1982, $13.25 for FY 83, $14 for FY 84 and $14:60 for FY 85. These minimum price supports would be effective if surplus purchases during the year are projected at more than $1 billion.

For any year in which purchases are less than $1 billion, the minimum would be 70 per cent parity. Additionally, the support floor would rise to 75 per cent parity if projected surplus purchases are less than four billion pounds of milk in FY 83, 3.5 billion in FY 84 and 2.69 billion in FY 85.

The conferees also directed the secretary of agriculture to report on the strengths and weaknesses of existing (and possible new) programs for controlling milk surpluses. They also recommended that the President establish a limit on the import of casein because of its impact on the dairy price support program.

The wheat target prices are set at a minimum of $4.05 per bushel for the 1982 crop (which is up from $3.81 in 1981). For 1983-85, the prices are set at $4.30, $4.45 and $4.65 respectively. Price support loan rates for the 1982-85 crop would not be less than $3.55 per bushel (as compared with $3.20 for 1981).

When the secretary of agriculture determines that excessive wheat surpluses are likely, he has the authority to rule that farmers who want price support would be required to comply with either cropland set-aside or direct wheat acreage reduction programs.

The feed grain provisions set corn target prices a minimum of $2.70 per bushel on the 1982 crop (up from $240 in 1981), and at $2.86 for '83, $3.03 for '84, and $3.18 for '85. Price support loan rates for corn would be set at a minimum of $2.55 per bushel in 1982-85. A similar regulation on set-aside or direct acreage limitation as a condition of support would exist for corn as for wheat.

The secretary of agriculture would also be required to provide target price protection for grain sorghum and oats. The price support loans for grain sorghum, barley and oats would be set at a "fair and reasonable" level tied to the level for corn. The conferees urged the secretary of agriculture to consider, as in the case of wheat, an increased loan rate to any producer who enrolls in a future set-aside or direct acreage reduction program.

The four-year price support program for sugar is set at 17 cents a pound for '82, 17.50 cents for '83, 17.75 cents for '84, and 18 cents in '85. The sugar price support program is designed so that the treasury does not bear any costs.

Also included in this massive farm bill is a requirement that the secretary of agriculture continue the existing farm-owned reserve program for wheat and feed grains. It requires the secretary to set price support loans for grains placed in the three-year reserve at a minimum of the support rate in effect at the time the grain goes into the reserve. The secretary is given the authority to set terms for withdrawal from the reserve and to limit the size of the reserve (although not less than 700 million bushels of wheat and one billion bushels of feed grains.)

Whenever a reserve is in effect, the department of agriculture cannot sell any government-owned grain for less than 110 per cent of the current "release price" level applying to farmer-owned reserves. In addition, the interest rates on price support loans for reserve grain must not be less than USDA's cost of borrowing from the treasury (although the secretary is given authority to waive or adjust interest).

Hilkey Named District Heart Fund Chairman

Ernie Hilkey, Crookston, has been appointed 1982 district one heart fund chairman for the American heart association, Minnesota Affiliate, Inc., according to Dave Torgerson, state heart fund Northwest regional chairman.

American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, is the only statewide health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel disease.

Hilkey will direct fund raising and volunteer activities for the 1982 state heart fund campaign in Roseau, Red Lake, Kittson, Marshall, Pennington and Polk counties.

Conducted year round, the campaign is highlighted in February, heart month, when 60,000 Minnesotan volunteers call on neighbors to receive contributions and distribute lifesaving information on heart disease.

Last year's state heart fund campaign raised $2,201,615 which enabled the affiliate to increase its support for heart research, community programs and professional and public education programs.

Although efforts by the American heart association have resulted in a 20 per cent decline in heart disease deaths over the past 10 years, heart disease still claimed the lives of 975,550 Americans, including research, community programs and professional and public education will America's number one health problem be controlled.

Christmas Star Still Has Wise Men Wondering

A blue star, a red star and a dazzling white planet are lighting up holiday sky as another astronomical phenomenon may have done thousands of Christmases ago.

Three especially luminous planets in conjunction may have appeared to be one brilliant star, the star of Bethlehem, some astronomers believe. About once every 800 years, orbits of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars bring those planets into alignment or conjunction so that, when viewed from Earth they almost seem to touch.

Other scientific theories explain Crhistmas star as a supernova or nova, massive explosions that cause stars to brighten for several months, or an exceptionally brilliant meteor or comet that passed by Earth and never returned.

Blue star now decorating the sky throughout night is Rigel, part of the constellation Orion, largest winter stellar configuration. To find the constellation, look for Sirius, brightest star in the sky, now in the southeast just above the horizon.

Once you have located Sirius, look up for Orion, a giant lengthwise rectangle in the southeastern sky. Horizontal line of three stars in center of the rectangle forms the belt of the hunter in Greek mythology for whom Orion was named. Vertical line of three other stars below the belt forms Orion's sword. In lower right corner is Rigel, the hunter's knee.

Blue-white Rigel is, at 15,000 degrees Fahrenheit, among hotter stars in the universe, three times hotter than Earth's sun. Astronomers can judge a star's temperature by color, much the same way a blacksmith gauges heat of fire by color of a glowing iron horseshoe, said Thijs van der Hulst, astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

If Rigel had planets, they would be bathed in bright blue light. But such a giant star (80 times the size of the sun) would envelop planets in deadly ultra-violet radiation and searing heat, unless they formed relatively far away, so life as we know it probably could not develop.

Rigel is moving toward star death. Within a billion years, it will probably become a supernova, most violent and explosive "galactic fireworks" of all, van der Hulst said.

Red star is Betelgeuse, left shoulder of the Orion rectangle. At 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit it is cooler than the sun, althoug 500 times as large. This star is now in early old age and will gradually shrink into a white dwarf, then fade completely.

Both these bright winter stars still have plenty of life left, however. Each now emits 60,000 times more light than the sun. This is enough light for Rigel to be seen from 900 light-years away and for Betelgeuse to be seen from 520 light-years away. (One light-year is about 6 trillion miles.) They, like many stars that appear to be in the same sky area are really nowhere near each other.

Much closer to us, at only 28 million miles away, shines Venus, Earth's sister planet. Venus is at its most dazzling white now, since it and Earth have drawn close together on their concentric orbits around sun. Look for Venus well above the southwestern horizon after sunset.

Mayors Voice Support Of Quie Proposals

Gov. Quie brought several mayors from around the state to a news conference at the State Capitol recently to announce their support for the governor's proposals to reduce the state budget, including cuts to local governments.

Spokesperson for the group, Paul Scheunemann, Burnsville, said local governments welcome the return of local control to their cities. Mayors, from Brainerd, Ramsey, Lake Crystal, Edina, Albert Lea, and Eagan, said they can cut their budgets to make up for loss of state aid, and can raise taxes, most likely property taxes, if necessary.

Governor earlier proposed to eliminate a state deficit through spending cuts, reduced homestead credits, delayed payments to local school districts and local units of government, and additional borrowing.

"To try to solve the budget problems, as the governor proposed, would have a disastrous impact on senior citizens on fixed incomes, struggling farmers, and young families barely able to make their existing house payments," countered House taxes committee chairman, Irvin Anderson at a recent news conference. "If there must be a tax increase, the best way is to raise the income tax."

House DFL leadership announced their budget proposals which would make cuts in state agency and higher education budgets; reduce school aids and change payment schedules to school districts; increase state income through an income tax indexing revision, and change the method of taxing oil companies.

Speaker of the House, Harry Sieben, said "It is a balanced approach, fair in the distribution of the added tax burden."

WALL SIZED POEM and a Christmas tree decorated entirely with items from the laboratory won second place in the Christmas decorating contest at Northwestern hospital this year. Members of the laboratory staff created the decorations. Third place in the decorating contest went to the first floor of the convalescent and nursing care unit, but decorations were so dispersed throughout the entire unit that a representative photo was impossible to take.

Congressman Concerned By CCC Loaning

Congressman Arlan Stangeland today expressed concern about the growing financial crunch at the Commodity Credit corporation (CCC), the agency which administers the department of agriculture's loan programs.

"Under federal law, the CCC is not allowed to have more than $20 billion in loans out at any time," Rep. Stangeland said. "As of December 15, there were $15.8 billion out in CCC loans, and we are making almost $100 million more in loans every day.

"At this rate, we will have $17.4 billion in loans out on New Year's day," he noted. "Although the demand for CCC loans has historically dropped in January, there are indications that many farmers will ask for loans after the start of a new tax year. If that happens, we could bump into the $20 billion ceiling by mid-February, forcing the CCC to stop increasing loans to farmers.

"There is reason for concern, but not for panic," Rep. Stangeland said. "During the next few weeks, I will be closely monitoring the situation. If it appears that the CCC will hit its limit in the near future, I will introduce legislation to raise the cap above $20 billion.

"Should that action become necessary, I would anticipate some firm opposition from urban representatives," he said. "However, I believe that this emergency legislation could be forced through the Congress."

Rep. Stangeland, a member of the House agriculture committee, said that, if necessary, he would introduce this emergency legislation when the House reconvenes on January 25.

Travel Tips For Holiday Motorists

For the past several years, Christmas and New Year's holidays have been safer for travel than any other throughout the year. Minnesota safety council (MSC) anticipates a continuation of that tradition since traffic fatalities in Minnesota through mid-December have declined over 15 per cent from 1980 and almost 17 per cent from 1979. Safely council estimates that between three and six people may lose their lives in Minnesota during each of the 78-hour holiday periods.

Minnesota safety council urges holiday motorists to take extra care to practice patience, courtesy and common sense, particularly when driving through congested city streets, traveling long distances or when on highways under poor weather conditions.

Safety council recommends motorists plan ahead to make sure car is in good repair and properly winterized for travel. Check air pressure in tires, check the battery, headlights and taillights, make sure windshield wipers are in working order and the engine tuned to ensure that car runs safety and efficiently.

Motorists should make certain vehicle's trunk contains; tire chains, booster cables, blankets, matches, a flashlight, flares, quick energy foods such as dried fruits and candy, an extra set of warm clothing for each member of the family, a coffee can to use in melting snow for drinking water, a first aid kit and other items a family may need in an emergency.

Whether you're on the freeway or on city streets, allow plenty of space between you and the car ahead of you. It could take as much as twelve times more distance to stop on ice than on dry pavement.

Don't drink if you plan to drive. If you're the host, don't send your family and friends home drunk. If you're a guest, allow one hour to pass for each drink consumed before getting behind the wheel. Even better, elect one person to refrain from drinking to do the driving home after your holiday celebration.

Make it a rule in your auto that the driver and all passengers fasten their safety belts for this holiday trip and every trip. And observe posted speed limits. This holiday season, save yourself for someone special — drive 55 mph.

Durenberger Against Polish Food Embargo

Senator Dave Durenberger said he will oppose any effort to embargo food shipments to Poland.

"We should have learned our lesson when former President Carter embargoed grain shipments to the Soviet Union to punish that country for its invasion of Afghanistan. Unless everyone in the world is involved in an embargo, it just won't work. All we do is end up punishing the American farmer," Durenberger said.

Minnesota's senator urged the Reagan administration to stop speculating on the possibility of a food embargo. "The day an embargo was first mentioned the prices on most commodities plunged. That's in a market in which most prices are already lower than they were three years ago and during a year in which farm income is at its lowest point in at least 20 years and maybe since the Depression."

Durenberger said that one of the reasons for the problems in Poland is the lack of affordable food. A food embargo just hurts the people who are already suffering, he said.

"An embargo against the Soviet Union won't work unless everyone joins and we know that just won't happen," Durenberger said.

While opposing a food embargo, Durenberger said he would not rule out "the other kinds of embargoes that probably are more appropriate."

Storhaug Is Teaching Through BSU

Mark Storhaug, Thief River Falls, is fulfilling student teaching requirements through Bemidji state university winter quarter, according to Dr. Gordon Oberg, director of student teaching at BSU. Storhaug is teaching science in Bemidji.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

Safety Council Urges Clean-Up After Parties

Minnesota safety council hopes your holiday party is a rousing success. When you close the door after your last guest, you may be tempted to trade a pickup half hour an extra half hour of sleep. Before you decide to leave that mess until morning, however, here are a few things to consider.

Drinks left standing in half-empty glasses are a magnet to children who like to play grownup. Just several ounces of alcohol can depress the nervous system low enough for death to occur to a small child. Dispose of left-over drinks and place liquor bottles out of children's reach before retiring for the night.

Be cautious, too, of fire that may be caused by cigarettes or embers smoldering in sofas or chairs after the guests have gone. Ashes can smolder in upholstery for 40 minutes or longer before you even smell danger. Gather up ashtrays after your party and place them in the kitchen sink until morning to make sure all ashes are out.

If you've had a fire in the fireplace, remember to wait until the fire is completely out before closing the damper. And, be sure that the fire screen is in place while the fire is still blazing.

The safety council urges you to take a few extra minutes to clean up after your guests depart and then, sleep well.

Fall Potato Crop Larger Than Year Ago

Production of fall potatoes in Minnesota in 1981 is now estimated at 13.3 million hundredweight, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This year's production is 34 per cent above the drought-reduced crop of 1980 and three per cent above the 1979 crop but 11 per cent below the crop of 1978. The increase in production over 1980 is the result of a 6,000-acre increase in area harvested and a boost in average yields of 35 hundredweight per acre.

Despite the 34 per cent increase in production, stocks of potatoes on December 1, 1981 in Minnesota are only eight per cent above 1980 and estimated at 9.1 million hundredweight. The 1981 stocks are 13 per cent below 1979 and 24 per cent below 1978. A breakdown of stocks by type of potato shows 21 per cent red, 50 per cent white, and 29 per cent russet.

Stocks of potatoes in the North Dakota-Minnesota Red River valley are estimated at 21 million hundredweight, 31 per cent above 1980. Stocks by type show 24 per cent red, 65 per cent white, and 11 per cent russet. Production in that area is up 30 per cent to 28.2 million hundredweight. Acreage harvested increased 4,000 to 164,000 acres while yield was up 36 hundredweight to 172 hundredweight per acre.

Holen Elected To County ASC Committee

At the Pennington county convention of ASC committeemen held in Thief River Falls Friday, Selmer Holen was elected to a three-year term as a member of the county committee.

Holen succeeds Olaf Olson of Hickory township, who had served for nine consecutive years and was no longer eligible to succeed himself. Olson had been vice chairman of the county committee for the past two years.

The convention also renamed Harold Kalsnes to a one-year term as chairman of the county committee. Duane Vatsaas was named as vice chairman and Holen as the regular member of this three-man committee. Arnold Hammer was selected as the first alternate and Kermit Finstad was named as the second alternate.

Convention also heard from Jim Holen of the Minnesota Wheat Growers association which is headquartered in Red Lake Falls, and viewed a new film entitled "We Can Turn the Tide". This film has been produced by the National Association of Wheat Growers, and discusses the need for continuation of exports of agricultural commodities from the United States.

Christmas Gospel

In the hustle and bustle of preparation, entertaining and gift selection that accompanies the Christmas holiday season, it is too often possible for the meaning of Christmas to be crowded into the background.

But the ever familiar story can not be told too often, and we should join the tellers and the listeners in the awe and wonder which the story invokes. Share once again the Christmas Gospel from Luke 2, versus 1-20, as told in the Revised Berkeley Version:

"In those days an order went out from Caesar Augustus that a census should be taken of the whole world. This registration first occurred while Quirinius was governor of Syria.

"They all went to be registered, each to his own city, and Joseph, too, went up from Galilee out of the city of Nazareth to Judea, to the city of David called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family of David, to be registered with Mary, his betrothed wife, whose pregnancy was advanced.

"While they were there her days were completed to give birth, and she bore her first-born son, whom she wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

"There were in the same country shepherds, staying in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night. And an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they feared greatly.

"And the angel said to them, 'have no fear, for behold I announce to you good news of great joy that will be for the people; for today there was born to you in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord.

" 'And this is a token for you: you will find the baby wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger.'

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in His favour!'

"As the angels went from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, 'Let us go straight to Bethlehem, and let us see what has happened that the Lord has made known to us.'

"And hastily they went, found both Mary and Joseph, and saw the baby lying in the manger.

"When they had seen the child they made known to others what had been told them regarding it, and every one who heard it marveled at the things that were reported to them by the shepherds.

"But Mary treasured those reports and thought them over in her heart. And the shepherds went back, gloryfying and praising God for everything they had heard and seen, just as it had been told them."

Thank You, Solidarity

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

People have a tendency to forget. We have just about forgotten the bloodshed in Hungary and the occupation of Czechoslovakia by the military arm of Soviet socialism. If the present crisis in Poland has done nothing else, it has reminded the whole world what Soviet-style Socialism is all about. . . and it explodes a few of the myths which have been so carefully nutured by the Iron Curtain rulers in recent years.

Socialism, at least that brand expounded in Europe and in the U.S., is the concept that the "workers rule." The Rhetoric directs the worker to rise up and throw off the yoke of oppression. The posters depict the worker with his tools in one hand, his other hand clenched in a rebel salute. It is very impressive. It is particularly impressive to college students who come under the influence of professors who love to dwell on the shortcomings of the free enterprise system and lavish praise on the theories equal distribution of wealth and benevolent brotherhood inherent in socialist central planning. What they fail to mention is that the system behind the Iron Curtain operates only under direct control of the police and the army.

In Poland, the workers attempted to make the system live up to its promise. Solidarity, or the union of workers, attempted to put freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and free representation within the government into effect. Unfortunately, the raised fist on the socialist posters is misleading. That fist isn't fastened to the arm of a worker, it is sticking out of the sleeve of an army uniform. And it isn't aimed at the source of the it isn't aimed at the source of the oppression, the bungling bureaucracy, it is aimed at the heads going mainly to keep socialist party officials living in a style considerably above the average factory laborer. . . euqality nothwithstanding. Furthermore, the concept of central planning has nearly destroyed the nation's economy.

The lid finally blew off last week when Solidarity made two public demands: 1. Freedom from the iron hand of Russia. 2. Free elections. That brought down the wrath of the socialist party leaders backed by the arm. They quickly made clear: 1. Poland is under the control of Russia and the people must not challenge that. 2. Free elections are unthinkable.

The reports being issued from Russia and other Iron Curtain countries, justifying the military crackdown on the workers, state that it was necessary for the Army to move because Solidarity planned a bloody uprising to take over the government. This might have some validity if the world did not know that no one in Poland or any Iron Curtain Country can own a gun, even a BB gun, except the Army. What the socialist leaders did was come down like a ton of bricks on their countrymen who were armed with nothing more than the threat to strike. The Russians, with their usual flair for fiction, claimed Solidarity planned to assisnate the Polish government leaders. Perhaps beat them to death with slogans.

In the face of certain imprisonment and possible execution, the Polish workers and the Catholic church, with incredible courage, have exploded the whole socialist myth.

At this Christmas season, while our prayers go out to the Polish people, our grateful thanks should also be sent to these incredible citizens, having suffered generation after generation of oppression, yet still keep the flame of freedom and their faith in God alive. . . and in doing so, remind us what real freedom is. . . and its price.

Work Service And Restitution

Following editorial is from the Mille Lacs County Times:

How to deal with law violators, particularly when the offense does violence to the person or property of another, has been a problem since time immemorial. The goal is to avoid repetition.

Punishment that is too severe or poorly administered can make a hardened criminal out of a first offenser and leniency can be an encouragement rather than a deterrent to further anti-social conduct.

Mille Lacs County has joined with Sherburne, Benton and Kanabec in a work service and restitution program that deserves encouragement and support as a more effective way of influencing attitudes and conduct of those arrested for unlawful conduct.

Work service involves sentencing a person to a term of duty in a nonprofit public service agency or institution in the hope it will arouse feelings of concern and caring for others instead of predatory indifference.

At the state womens' corrections institution at Shakopee, one of the most helpful rehabilitative programs involved using the facility as a transition care center for children placed under state guardianship.

Restitution involves personal confrontation between offender and victim to work out a program of recompense for damage or loss. It provides times for rethinking and facing the consequences of conduct in terms of righting a wrong as nearly as can be done.

In every crime or misdeed there is a factor of thoughtlessness and irresponsibility, sometimes greater than malicious intent. If we accept the principle that there is a nobler capacity in every human being then the challenge is to help people function more nearly at their best. The restitution and work service program may be the effective middle ground between leniency and punishment — something the Chinese call reeducation.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The Miami playboy had his new yacht christened "After You". Now when he meets a lovely girl at a party, his conversation opener is always, "I have a boat named after you."

If nobody will believe what you have to say, try whispering it."

These are times when a person goes into politics with a wonderful future and comes out with a horrible past.

"You're teeing off in front of the mark," advised the passing golfer. "No I'm not," the duffere replied. "This is my third shot."

No Magic Solutions

Mounting budget problems in Minnesota have increasingly raised speculation about the ability of the state's system of financial planning and management to deal with budget matters.

In September, faced with revenue collections which consistently fell short of projections, I appointed a Task Force on State Finances to investigate the Minnesota financial system by reviewing the operations of the state finance department and interagency finance systems and by critiquing the procedures used by the state in projecting revenues.

Last week the task force, a group composed of experts in finance and management from private industry and higher education, delivered its report to me.

The task force found that methods of forecasting used by the state were appropriate and pointed out that errors in forecasting will occur since the future cannot always be accurately predicted. And, most importantly, the task force emphasized that there are no magic solutions to resolving the state's fiscal problems.

Our budget shortfall has resulted from a lagging national and Minnesota economy — which no one accurately predicted — and the overextension of state programs.

However, the recommendations outlined by the task force in its report, if implemented, should help provide an earlier warning of potential financial problems. And, when financial problems do occur, these suggestions offer an opportunity for a less painful resolution of those problems and contribute to more effective use of the state's financial resources, in both periods of economic prosperity and of budgetary constraint.

One of the task force's recommendations was that the state revenue forecast be extended for at least two biennia. We need to look more than two years into the future when making spending and tax decisions; tax and spending programs adopted today may have significant financial consequences in the future, as the level of support for a program diminishes or the number of recipients increases.

For example, the report notes that property tax relief payments have grown at an annual rate of 14 per cent over the past 10 years and that this is primarily due to changes in the amount of relief that taxpayers were eligible for under existing law.

Another recommendation was that a mechanism be included in the state budget to allow for a pre-planned adjustment to a budget shortfall. This may be achieved in several ways. A reserve fund ay be built up during the next few years that can be drawn on in case of a shortfall. A contingency plan may be developed to provide for expenditure reductions during a shortfall; or, authority may be given to the Commissioner of Finance, upon approval of the governor, to remedy a cash shortage within the biennium.

These are just a few of the recommendations of the task force. I intend to review and implement the task force recommendations which will improve the quality of our state financial planning and management.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

Did you know that there are far more deer in Minnesota today than there were when the first white people set foot in our fine state? By some counts, we have three times more deer than we had 200 years ago.

The reason for this increase is quite simple: the environment provided by the farmers and rural homesteaders in Minnesota is far superior to that which was here before they came.

Under present law, the folks of rural Minnesota are not recognized for the beneficial habitat they provide for the deer nor are they rewarded. I think it's time we changed that.

I am, therefore, coauthoring legislation to guarantee that 80 per cent of all does and fawns to be taken in season go to residents of the hunting zones for which the permits are issued. Such legislation would still allow the taking of bucks by any and all, including our big-city neighbors, but it finally gives credit where credit is due: to rural Minnesotans.

The bill will further provide that no individual can get a permit for two consecutive years. There are only so many permits to go around, and I've heard a lot of grumbling about people getting permits two and three years in a row. Too many good, responsible rural sportsmen have never received a permit, and it's time we changed that.

I hope you support me in this measure. I would appreciate it if you would let me know your feelings, either by mail or over the phone. My address is Room 261 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 and my phone number there is (612) 296-8660.

Little Oak

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Haugen were coffee guests at the Bud Homme home near Thief River Falls Thursday forenoon. They also went into town to do some Christmas shopping.

Sheryl Haugen and Andy Achmen of Virginia arrived at the Terry Haugen home late Thursday night. They spent the weekend visiting here.

Those who came to the Terry Haugen home Thursday evening to celebrate Jared's sixth birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Johnsrud, Mr. and Mrs. Telov Johnsrud, Edna McEnelly of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Steve Paulson and Chad, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Johnsrud and Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Austad and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Haugen and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Johnsrud and girls. They all enjoyed supper including a birthday cake and Jared received gifts and money from his guests.

We are sorry to hear that Bradley Johnson was admitted to the Northwestern hospital Thursday evening. Those who have visited with Bradley at the hospital include his mother Sharon, Cora Oftelie and Lois Burstad. We hope his stay won't be long so he can be home for Christmas. Get well Brad.

Cora Oftelie and Mrs. Gladys Hanson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mostrom and Randy attended the Christmas program at the St. Pauli Lutheran church Saturday evening. Their granddaughter Sarah Mugaas took part in the program. They enjoyed coffee afterwards at the Dave Mugaas home.

$71 Million Spent On MN. CETA Training

More than 39,300 persons participated in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs in Minnesota during the year ended September 30, at a cost of $71 million.

Of the total number of persons enrolled, 8,300 left the program before training was completed; 9,600 found permanent jobs; 14,500 entered full-time schooling or other job training; and 6,900 participated in CETA job training programs which continued beyond September 30.

Total enrollment for CETA program in Minnesota for previous year ending September 30, 1980, was 47,500 persons. Cost of that year's program was $74 million.

Program activities were reported by Minnesota department of economic security.

CETA provides job seekers with career counseling, job search skills, on-the-job training and classroom or vocational schooling.

Employers who hire job seekers enrolled in CETA programs may qualify for tax breaks on wages paid to their new employees or may receive reimbursements for on-the-job training costs.

Weight Limits Different For Roads, Bridges

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) advises that although allowable truck weights on 10-ton routes will be increased by 10 per cent on January 1, some bridges retain their posted weight limits.

Curtis Christie, Mn-DOT maintenance engineer, said it is illegal to exceed posted weight limit on a bridge. Freezing of highway subgrade permits increased loading, he said, but bridges must retain their posted weight limits in order to avoid structural damage.

Information on the location and weight limits of specific bridges is available from Mn-DOT district offices and from Mn-DOT's transportation permits office by calling (612) 296-6441.

New weight limits will remain in effect statewide until March 7 each year, unless otherwise determined by Mn-DOT, Christie said.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

As a newcomer to the area I was impressed by the article on the December 21 issue of the times from Rep. LeRoy Stumpf. It is especially gratifying to see a public official take a positive approach as Rep. Stumpf does when he wants to preserve the present educational system which are important and integral parts of our communities.

Cutting out close to 1 million dollars from a school district like Thief River Falls is going to have a devastating effect on present programs if the governor's proposed budget is adopted. Also to look at the amount cut out of smaller district's budgets will have a very negative, regressive effect on smaller schools.

Again I want to applaud the efforts of Rep. Stumpf on behalf of his district and programs that are important to his constituents.

Robert Flaten Wrote Thoughts On Christmas

Christmas

It's Christmas. It's Christmas today. Christmas is a time for fun and laughter, to open presents and be close to one another. But Christmas isn't just giving presents to your loved ones; it's celebrating the birth of Jesus.

Most of the younger children think it is a time for getting presents and to run and play all day, but if they don't know the reason they got the present, then there is no meaning.

God said "whoever believes in me will live forever". If we don't tell the children what that present means, why give it to them? And if they don't know, then it is useless.

Christmas is a time to feel good inside, but if you have no happiness all you do is drive your boxed car and live in a boxed house, and when you die they will come with a box just for you, lower you in the ground and you will be forgotten.

Believe in Jesus and praise His name so that Christmas will be fun for everybody. Christmas can be every day, so from my heart to your home, Merry Christmas and God bless you in years to come.

The Star and the Steeple

Our photographer's wizardry has given us a dramatic reminder of the Star of Bethlehem.

We remember especially how the Star led the Wise Men to Christ. It stood over where the young child was!

Christ is not limited by time or space. He is everywhere. But at Christmas it seems there is a star over every steeple. This joyous season calls us to God's House.

Christmas glows from our hearts as we worship together the newborn King.

Friendship Club Means Sharing, Love, Concern

casion is celebrated, including birthdays, which means cake and gifts.

United Way support and monies through the Pennington county social services department help make gifts from Santa possible and keep the club going, according to the four officers we spoke with recently. United Way support for the group now totals $500, as compared with the first $350 United Way allocation in 1971.

From then (1971) on there was true happiness, the four agreed. "We could do what we wanted for them (members)," they said. Other organizations, churches, individuals and businesses have helped support the club, for which officers and members are grateful. Special gifts for the Christmas party were made by a homemakers club member.

"We would appreciate their love and support in the coming year too," Chommie stated. Because of interest and community support, the Thief River Falls club has grown and remains one of the very few in the state.

"We are grateful to the people who helped us from the start," Chommie said. "If we didn't have people helping people, we'd defeat our purpose. We're happy we've been able to continue."

Christmas parties, much like most meetings conducted by the club, are social times, Chommie said. "Most of these people are overcome with joy," she added. "They have a tremendous love for one another. They're concerned when a member isn't at a meeting."

Meetings are conducted twice each month. During her 13 years as coordinator, Chommie has missed few meetings, and she wouldn't give up her work with the club for anything. "It's a big part of my life," she said. "I'd be lost without it.

"As most of them (members) tell us," she added, "those are the two really bright spots they look forward to during the month."

Christmas shared by club members is personal — probably the only personal Christmas many of them have. "Many of them have no families left," Chommie said.

People are referred to the club by the Pennington county social services department or by doctors, if it is felt they could benefit from the club. Coordinator of the club calls prospective members, talks with them, and invites them to a meeting. "Some don't care to join and that's fine, too," Chommie said, but a special effort is made to help new members feel welcome. "If we can get them there most of them love it," Chommie said.

Club is open not only to mentally handicapped adults (former residents of the Fergus Falls state hospital now living in Thief River Falls), but also to lonely people and people who enjoy companionship. All club officers agreed they would like to see, and have plenty of room for, more members.

Officers pick up and bring home every member who wishes to attend meetings. Years ago, the group would drive to Oklee on Thanksgiving, in weather that was often "terrible," the four said. Then there were trips to the winter shows in Crookston and to other towns, and the group is often treated to dinner.

"They sing table grace before each meal," Chommie said. "They never forget that."

A friendship club, it seems, has much meaning, especially at Christmas. "People don't have to do that much outwardly to make people happy," Chommie said. "Just putting your arms around these people (or anyone) makes them happy. It's the little things — like when they say, 'God Bless you', before you leave a meeting, that mean so much."

None of the officers consider the work they do actually "work," they said.

"People are so appreciative of what you do for them," Collins said. "You receive so much more from them than what you give. I feel that we're four very selfish people because they make us feel so good. It's really something to be needed."

"You see so much sadness in the world today, it makes your heart said," Chommie added. "I think getting involved with the club took me out of the self pity feeling I had after losing my husband. People miss so much in life. They just don't take the time to look around to see how much they're really needed.

"Love, to me, is the best type of rehabilitation there is," the coordinator continued. Main objective of the club, she said, is love, concern and sharing. "A day doesn't go by without a phone call from a lonely person just wanting to talk to someone," she added. (Her words became a reality as the phone chimed throughout the spacious home as we prepared to leave).

This is something that is absolutely theirs, the members agreed, referring to the club.

When some of the members first joined the club they were unappreciative. But now they've changed. "Everyone shares in the club," Clarice said. "It's a two-way deal. They give of themselves to us and we help them."

"The club is not just members getting together for meetings," Chommie concluded. "The members are friendship. And friendship is love and concern."

REPORT

Here are more provisions of the economic recovery act of 1981:

The introduction of the accelerated cost recovery system (ACRS) in 1981 and of expensing and corporate rate cuts in 1982 can make a substantial difference in some companies' tax liability. This may be seen by considering a corporation whose net income aside from depreciation on new assets in $50,000 each year. Assume the firm buys $10,000 of machinery per year, which was formerly written off over 10 years, using double declining balance depreciation. Here's how depreciation and tax liability compare for 1980, 1981, and 1982.

Net income before depreciation on new assets	$50,000	$50,000	$50,000
Amount of investment	10,000	10,000	10,000
20% bonus depreciation	2,000	0	0
$5,000 expensing	0	0	5,000
Regular first-year depreciation	800	1,500	750
Total depreciation on new assets	$ 2,800	$ 1,500	$ 5,750
Net income	$47,200	$48,500	$44,250
Tax before investment credit	8,690	8,950	7,657
Investment credit	1,000	1,000	500
Tax after credit	$ 7,690	$ 7,950	$ 7,157

Used property. The amount of used equipment eligible for the investment credit is increased from $100,000 to $125,000 for 1981-84 and to $150,000 thereafter. Under ACRS, used equipment and structures receive the same writeoffs as new. Smaller firms frequently purchase used equipment because they either cannot afford new equipment or cannot wait for delivery which can take up to a year or more for some items such as machine tools.

Subchapter S. Corporations. The maximum number of permitted Subchapter S shareholders is increased to 25, and under certain circumstances trusts will be permitted to be shareholders. Subchapter S corporations provide special tax treatment for investors: in particular, losses can be passed through to the shareholder and can offset the shareholder's ordinary income. The provision is effective after December 31, 1981.

LIFO reform. Changes are made in the LIFO (last-in, first-out) inventory accounting rules which will simplify recordkeeping for small retailers and wholesalers. Businesses with average gross receipts of less than $2 million may elect one inventory pool for purposes of dollar value LIFO election. The Treasury will later prescribe through the use of published government indexes. Under present law, firms must develop their own internally generated indexes at substantial cost to the company.

Accumulated earnings. The minimum accumulated earnings credit is increased after December 31, 1981 from $150,000 to $250,000. This will enable firms to accumulate a maximum of $250,000 and not be subject to tax even though the money is not distributed to the shareholders.

Research and development. Small firms tend to be highly innovative. Those involved in research and development activities will benefit from a new tax credit equal to 25 per cent of incremental R & D expenses.

Rehabilitation. Smaller firms that plan to rehabilitate a building can benefit from the new rehabilitation credits.

Stock options. Employees will be entitled to favorable treatment on stock options qualifying as incentive stock options. The more favorable treatment will make it easier for small companies which hope to grow fast to attract and keep key employees by offering stock options instead of high current salaries.

Individual retirement accounts (IRAs). Many small business people rely on an IRA to provide for their retirement. The liberalization of IRAs may enable some small firms to attract or keep workers who would otherwise seek an employer with a qualified pension plan.

Keogh plans. Frequently, small firms establish Keogh plans for their employees' and their own retirement. The maximum deductible contribution to a Keogh plan, a defined contribution plan maintained by a subchapter S corporation, or a simplified employee pension is increased from $7,500 to $15,000 effective January 1, 1982.

ESOPs. Because small firms tend to be labor as opposed to capital intensive, they may benefit from new rules regarding employee stock ownership plans (ESOPs). ESOP contributions may be eligible for a payroll based tax credit based on one-half of one per cent of aggregate employee compensation in calendar years 1983 and 1984, three-quarters of one per cent in 1985, 1986 and 1987. The credit expires December 31, 1987.

Targeted jobs tax credit (TJTC). Many small businesses have used the TJTC. Several significant changes have been made in the credit.

Miscellaneous Provisions

Administrative changes. Several of the administrative changes affect small businesses as well as individuals.

Fringe benefits: The moratorium on issuance of new Treasury regulations regarding fringe benefits is extended through December 31, 1983. Small businesses which offer group legal service plans as a fringe benefit will be able to do so through December 31, 1984.

Corporate charitable deduction. Corporations may deduct charitable contributions up to 10 per cent of taxable income for taxable years beginning after 1981, instead of the previous 5 per cent.

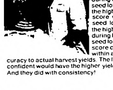
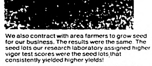
WE'RE NOT PERFECT BUT...

Our Research Lab has 93% Accuracy!





In 1981, our research laboratory predicted, through vigor testing, which seed lots would be the highest yielding during harvest. The seed lots assigned the highest vigor test score were the seed lots that had the highest yield during harvest. Our seed lots' vigor score compared within a 93% accuracy to actual harvest yields. The lots we felt confident would have the higher yields, did! And they did with consistency!

TESTING THE TEST
We maintain field test-plots at various locations throughout northeastern Minnesota. By doing so, we can verify the accuracy of the vigor test in the lab; measure the predictability of the lab tests, and prove that our vigor tested seed will be more consistent with higher yields than regular seed

We also contract with area farmers to grow seed for our business. The results were the same. The seed lots our research laboratory assigned higher vigor test scores were the seed lots that consistently yielded higher yields!

Find out how you can improve your farming profitability with vigor tested seed from Stephen Seedhouse! See your area dealer, or call us today!

Otters, Pirates Win Openers

First round of Northwest Athletic Conference (NWAC) high school basketball competition went to Fergus Falls (boys) and Crookston (girls) last week, with Bemidji on the losing end of both games. The Otters handled the Lumberjacks 53-38 and the Pirates drilled the Lumberjills 48-21.

It looks as if the Bemidji boys might have a hard time extending their NWAC success this winter. The defending champion Lumberjacks have won or shared the conference title the past six years and have taken the prize seven of the nine years the league has sponsored a basketball race. However, Bemidji lost its first three starts this winter, including the Fergus Falls contest in which the Otters' tough defense completely shut off the Lumberjacks' offense until reserves took over late in the game. It was 6-4 Jim Einarson and 6-3 Tom Hanson who led the Otters inside, while football standouts Scott Mesker and Tony Dosen directed things outside.

Bemidji, meanwhile, found itself shorthanded at guard with Gonvind Nadesan out with a broken bone in his foot and Tom Louma serving a one-game disciplinary suspension. The Lumberjacks had two sophomores in the starting line-up — Tim Gruber and Dave Lawrence — the first time they've done that since Jim Jensen and Kevin Bohlig were starters as sophomores late in the 1975-76 season.

Things were even more one-sided as the Crookston girls ran their record to 5-0 with the easy victory over Bemidji that dropped the Lumberjills to 0-4. The Pirates jumped out to a 10-0 lead and were never challenged as Lisa Rongen scored 19 points and Tracey Kelly added 16.

Thief River Falls teams start their 1981-82 NWAC basketball schedule against Bemidji. Lincoln boys will begin the New Year by hosting Bemidji Friday, January 8, while the Lincoln girls visit Bemidji Monday, January 11.

Miscellaneous

+University of Minnesota-Crookston hockey team unbeaten status in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) ended with a 13-4 pounding at the hands of Mesabi Saturday in Virginia. "We knew we had to get beat sooner or later," acknowledged UMC coach Jim Clauson, whose Trojans were 4-0 entering the game. Goalie Joel Johnson of the Trojans faced 54 shots, giving up six third period goals. "He had absolutely no help from the rest of us," noted Clauson. Mesabi's Mark Phinney, bombed by Northland the week before, stopped 46 of 50 shots. UMC bounced back to win Sunday 10-4 as Mesabi took eight penalties to just four for the Trojans. "They took a lot of useless penalties," mentioned Caluson. "But that's the type of hockey that's played on the Range."

+And also-ran the past few years in the MJCAA Northwest Division basketball race, the University of Minnesota-Crookston might be a challenger this winter, going 5-1 to date following a 116-63 rout of Itasca Saturday. It was a school scoring record for the Trojans. "We played well both offensively and defensely," said first-year UMC coach Gary Senske. Steve Espeland had 25 points to lead the Trojans and Argyle high school graduate Rich Dufault had 18.

+A special "Hockey Week in Thief River Falls" is being promoted January 17-23 by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA), recognizing the sport all the way from the 5-6-year-old Tiny Mite program through the Squirts, Pee-Wees, Bantams, Lincoln high school and Northland community college. Parents of all TRFAHA players will be introduced to the crowd at the Tuesday, January 19, Prowlers vs. Warroad game.

Nordics Edge Cold-Shooting Skippers 66-58

Round one in what many expect to be a three-round championship fight went to Marshall County Central Tuesday as the Nordics picked up a key early season 66-58 North Border Conference high school basketball win at Middle River.

Marshall County Central has been picked by most observers as the North Border Conference and District 32 favorite this winter — titles currently owned by rival Middle River. The Skippers figure to be the Nordics' top challenger. The teams will meet again February 16 in Newfolden, and fully expect to see each other a third time in post-season play.

Last night's intense struggle went into the final four minutes deadlocked at 51-51. The difference down the stretch was the Skippers' inability to cash in on free throw opportunities. They missed the front end of bonus situations four times during that span and wound up just 12-for-26 from the line (46 per cent).

"Our free throw shooting was terrible," admitted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "That was definitely the difference in the game."

Middle River also had trouble connecting from the field, finishing with a 38 per cent mark on a 23-for-60 night.

"Free throws killed us, and our outside shooting was just as bad," noted Sparby. "We out-played them in most things; I felt we played as good a game as we're capable of playing right now, but we just did not put the ball in the basket."

Middle River led 16-14 at the end of the first quarter and kept that narrow two-point edge at halftime, 29-27. Marshall County Central's long-range gunning put the Nordics ahead 46-41 in the third quarter.

"We were making shots that weren't exactly in our playbook," confessed Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland on the Nordics' long-range bombs dropped by Larry Larson, Rick VanCamp and Dave Kragness. "They made some mighty long shots," he acknowledged.

Ueland said he was happy with the win. "You've got to be satisfied when you beat a good team, and Middle River has a mighty fine ball club. We were lucky; in the second quarter we played poorly, but Middle River would turn the ball back over to us. Then the key was at the end when we executed well against the press and they missed their free throws."

The Nordics broke the Skippers' press by getting the ball inside to Jeff Dahl, who scored half of his 24 points in the final eight minutes. VanCamp finished with 15 and Larson had 12. Despite foul trouble, Middle River standout Jon Naumann scored a game-high 30 points on a 14-for-20 shooting night that helped salvage what would have been an even poorer field goal shooting percentage for the Skippers. "We did everything we could to stop Neumann, and he still got 30," said Ueland.

Marshall County Central shot 44 per cent from the field by making 24 of 54 shots and finished 69 per cent at the line by making 18 of 26 free throws.

According to the Nordics' charts, Middle River had a 34-23 edge on the boards but also topped the turnover figures 21-16.

The outcome left both teams with 3-1 records. They'll both be idle until Tuesday, January 5, when Marshall County Central hosts Greenbush and Middle River visits McIntosh-Winger.

Prowlers Beat Spuds 7-3 For Third Straight Win

Sounding for all the world like a football coach, Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand said a change to a shorter passing game was the difference Tuesday as the Prowlers produced an impressive 7-3 Section 8 win over Moorhead in the sports arean.

It was the third straight strong performance for the Prowlers, who have beaten Bemidji 4-1, Fargo South 6-3 and Moorhead 7-3 after suffering back-to-back season-opening one-goal losses to Crookston 4-3 and Fergus Falls 6-5.

"It was a good Christmas present for themselves," said Grand of the Prowlers' play. "They earned it."

Things were deadlocked at 1-1 after the first period, but Thief River Falls overwhelmed Moorhead in the second period, scoring three unanswered goals and just missing on a bundle of other scoring opportunities.

"We went to shorter passes in the second period and we moved the puck well," explained Grand. "Moorhead is a big, strong team, but not overly quick. We totally dominated the period, I thought, because our passing game was much improved; we took out time and looked around for the open man and went with the shorter passes."

It didn't take long to break that tie as Tim Bottem scored on the first shot of the second period — with just nine seconds elapsed. Tom Kenville won the face-off to start the period, and Bottem whistled a high shot that Moorhead goalie Tom Cerise failed to glove.

Rick Engelstad bommed a hard slap shot past Cerise at 2:17 for a 3-1 game and Tom Ose, who had opened the game's scoring in the first period, scored from the slot at 8:22 for a 4-1 cushion. Ose's goal came just as the final second ticked off a simultaneous two-man Moorhead penalty, and to complicate matters, Cerise had been knocked to the ice by Mark Rice, his own defenseman, who was trying to clear Prowlers out of the way.

But just when things looked easy, Moorhead rallied to cut the margin to 4-3 on a pair of Steve Hartog goals. He picked up a loose puck on a power play and clanged a shot off the inside of the goal post at 3:22 and when Thief River Falls had trouble clearing the zone, grabbed another loose puck for a rebound goal at 9:07 to make it a suddenly close one-goal hockey game.

It didn't take the Prowlers long to respond, though, as Mitch Semanko had a wide open net for a rebound goal just 63 seconds after Hartog's second goal.

That gave the Prowlers breathing room, and they rebuilt that earlier margin with two final minute goals. Steve Wiskow rifled one by Cerise at 14:12 and Ose jumped on a puck in front and put it up into an open net at 14:43 to complete his hat trick — his second in two games.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the ice Thief River Falls goalie Paul Wennberg had himself an outstanding game, stopped 32 shots — many key saves when the game was close. He had a much better game than Cerise, who has been the toast of Section 8 goalies in the early going.

"We're very pleased with Paul's game," confirmed Grand. "He was steady. He wasn't flopping all over the place. He wasn't flamboyant because he was in good position all night."

Thief River Falls returns to action Tuesday at Grand Forks Red River, a 7:30 p.m. game in the Grand Forks city arena.

State Football Playoffs Draw Record Crowds

Official paid attendance for the 35 games played in the five classes of the championship series of the tenth annual Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state football playoffs held during a three-week period throughout the state in November was a record high 74,155.

The record eclipses the old mark of 73,619, recorded in 1978.

Paid attendance figures became available when the MSHSL offices in Anoka received all of the advance ticket sale reports from the 40 schools involved in this year's playoff series.

Total attendance is up 13,983 from last year's figure of 60,172. The increase is the first in the four-year history of the 35-game format, which was instigated in 1978. In 1977 the playoffs had a 31-game format, and during its first five years had a 15-game format.

During its first years (1972-1976) attendance ranged from a low of 30,103 to a high of 46,735. The lone year (1977) the event had 31 games some 65,612 people watched play. From 1978 through 1981 attendance always exceeded 60,000 when the current 35 games were played.

Difference in the big increase this year is because of the 11,708 more people that watched Class AA play than a year ago. A record high 32,236 persons attended the seven Class AA games in 1981. The previous record high attendance for Class AA was 31,036 in 1978. Another record was set in Class C where 9,601 fans witnessed the seven games. That total breaks the old mark of 9,383, set in 1977.

While Class AA attracted its record 32,230 figure, the other four classes — A, B, C and nine-man — totaled 41,925. Class A had 13,607; Class 'B' 10,982; Class 'C' 9,601; and nine-man 7,735.

DNR Arrests 58 Under New TIP Program

Minnesota's Turn In Poachers program (TIP) netted 58 arrests during November for violations of the state's hunting and fishing laws, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Under the program, citizens receive rewards for supplying information to the DNR's enforcement division when that information results in an arrest.

The citizen remains anonymous and receives the reward even if there is no conviction.

Since the program was initiated September 1, information from TIPsters has resulted in the arrest of 144 persons. Rewards totalling $6,775 have been paid to date including $3,625 paid out during November.

Many TIPsters refuse the rewards, according to Ray Sanbeck, program coordinator.

Of the total arrests made during November 49 were for violations of the deer hunting laws.

Special phone number has been set up for those wishing to report violations to the Department under the program. The toll-free number is 1-800-652-9093.

As a gift of the imagination, U.S. savings bonds say more than "Merry Christmas." Bonds say: "We believe in all your dreams and we're with you, whatever you become."

Gonvick-Trail opened with a 19-12 first quarter lead and maintained that point spread most of the way en route to a 69-61 first round victory over host Goodridge Monday.

"We dug ourselves a hole early with mental lapses," explained Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, "and we could never overcome that margin."

The Bulldogs led 34-28 at halftime and had a 46-40 lead as the third quarter came to a close.

"I was pleased with the way we never let up," said Nelson.

Alan Wolden of Gonvick-Trail led all scorers with 26 points. He was one of four Bulldogs in double figures as Kurt Bakke hit 13, Scott Bakke 12 and Dean Birkeland 11. Jeff Langan had 18 for the Huskies, Ross Parnow 13 and Mike Drangstveit 10.

Goodridge 54
Mentor 52

Facing a 14-point deficit late in the third quarter, Goodridge rallied to overtake Mentor 54-52 in overtime in Tuesday's third place game.

The Huskies got off to a slow start, trailing 12-4 at the end of the first quarter and down 21-13 at halftime. They managed to cut that third quarter deficit down to 38-32 to start the fourth quarter and tied things 46-46 at the end of regulation time.

Goodridge, after missing a potential game-winning shot with three seconds left in regulation time, won it in overtime when Darrin Easthouse came up with a steal that led to a pair of Don Wayne free throws with just four seconds to go, providing Goodridge with a 54-50 cushion. They surrendered an uncontested lay-up at the end.

"We were happy with the way the kids came back in the second half," mentioned Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "They never gave up." He was less pleased with their first half performance: "We stood around like we had lead feet in the first half," he said.

Jeff Langan and Easthouse had 19 and 18 points, respectively, for the Huskies. Bruce Gagner of Mentor led all scorers with 23 points, while Ron Munson added 15 and Daryl Bohn 12.

Goodridge struggled through a 23-for-69 shooting night (33 per cent), while Mentor was 23-for-60 (38 per cent). At the free throw line the Huskies were 8-for-12 (67 per cent) and the Trojans were 6-for-11 (54 per cent). Goodridge out-boarded Mentor 37-28 and Mentor led the turnover charts 17-12.

The tournament split left Huskies with a 3-2 record. They'll return to action Friday, January 8, at home against Red Lake Falls.

Even though play was sloppy at times, Gonvick-Trail and Badger still put points on the scoreboard, with the Bulldogs winning the Tuesday night title game 70-65.

Four Gonvick-Trail scorers hit double figures as Scott Bakke scored 19 points, Alan Wolden 18, Dean Birkeland 12 and Kurt Bakke 10. Badger's one-two attack featured Mark Frosaker with 28 points and Wayne Lee with 20.

Gonvick-Trail coach Steve Phillion admitted his team was a little tired playing back-to-back games for the first time this season, but the defending District 29 champion Bulldogs still managed to post quarter leads of 12-10, 32-26 and 48-43.

The winners shot 47 per cent from the field (30-for-64) and 45 per cent from the free throw line (10-for-22). The Rockets shot 42 per cent from the field (27-for-64) and 50 per cent at the line (11-for-22). Gonvick-Trail had a 38-32 rebound edge but also topped the turnover charts 13-8.

Firewood Terms Are Confusing, Warns Officials

Increased use of wood as a heating fuel has produced a variety of names for the unit of measure by which firewood is sold, according to foresters in the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Some firewood sellers call this unit of measure a "kitchen cord", others a "fireplace cord" or a "rick" and others just a "cord." But these may or may not contain the same number of cubic feet, depending on the length of each stick and whether or not the wood is split.

According to state law: "In all contracts for sale of wood, the term 'cord' shall mean 128 cubic feet of wood in four foot lengths; and if the sale is of sawed wood, a cord shall mean 110 cubic feet when ranked (stacked) or 160 cubic feet when thrown irregularly and loosely into a conveyance for delivery."

Normally, a cord of wood is considered to be 128 cubic feet — or a ranked pile four feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long. However, as can be seen from the state law, this is true only when each stick is four feet long.

When wood is cut shorter than four feet, a cord of wood is less than 128 cubic feet, as shorter wood can be piled more compactly with less air space between the sticks.

Most firewood sold these days is only 16 inches long, which if split requires 120 cubic feet to make a cord. Many wood retailers call a pile of ranked 16 inch split wood measuring four feet high and eight feet long a "kitchen cord", "fireplace cord" or some other term.

Such a pile, however, is only about one-third of the cord defined in the state law. To contain a "legal" cord, a pile of 16 inch wood must be four feet high and 22½ feet long.

In 1946, the President provided for the termination of all wartime wage and salary controls, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Plummer holiday high school basketball tournament title went to Erskine Tuesday as the Comets defeated Red Lake Falls 49-41 in the championship game of the two-day, four-team tournament.

Red Lake Falls took a four-point lead midway through the fourth quarter and expanded it into a 57-45 first round tournament win over host Plummer Monday.

The Eagles led at the quarter stops 18-11, 32-23 and 40-35.

"I thought we played a helluva good game," reported first-year Plummer coach Jim Baron. "It was our best game of the year. We just couldn't get over the hump."

Greg Braaten of Red Lake Falls led all scorers with 15 points, with teammates Karl Fontaine getting 14 and Steve Huot 12. Warren Tvedt led the Cardinals with 12 points.

Plummer could have stayed closer, but the Cardinals were just 5-for-17 from the free throw line (29 per cent). Red Lake Falls was a busy 13-for-26 at the line (50 per cent).

DNR NEWS

A total of 291,487 catfish were stocked by the Department of Natural Resources in Minnesota lakes and rivers during 1981 according to Jerry Kuehn, fisheries chief.

The fish were of fingerling and yearling sizes and were stocked in 17 lakes and five streams in the southern one-half of the state.

Kuehn said that Collinwood Lake in Wright and Meeker county received 60,060 channel catfish — the largest single stocking during the year. Other lakes receiving large numbers of channel catfish included Traverse Lake in Traverse county (40,000) and Byllesby reservoir in Dakota county (35,700). Chippewa river in Chippewa county was stocked with 22,785 fish.

Number of fish stocked in other waters ranged from 1,000 to over 22,000 per lake or stream.

Many of the catfish were obtained by the DNR from the federal Fish and Wildlife Service.

Flathead catfish, which are known to prey heavily on bullheads and rough fish, were stocked in waters where experimentation with biological controls on rough fish is in progress. These flathead catfish were produced in the state fish rearing facilities in Waterville.

Catfish are highly regarded as a food fish in southern states, but few Minnesota anglers have had an opportunity to eat them.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Tim Bergland (8) had an open shot at Moorhead goalie Tom Cerise, but the Spuds' netminder came up with the second period save Tuesday in the sports arena. Defenseman Scott Sarbacker (3) was there to help clear the puck. Thief River Falls won the game 7-3.

National Wildlife Federation News Release

In a letter calling for renewal of the clean air act without crippling amendments, the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) has urged key members of Congress "not to be misled by the false argument that Americans are weary of laws and regulations that protect their health — the air they breathe and the water they drink."

Citing five recent public opinion polls, Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the conservation group, reminded members of three congressional committees that "a vast majority of Americans of all political persuasions are strongly opposed to any watering down of our basic environmental protection laws."

Most topheavy poll cited by the NWF executive was a Louis Harris survey indicating that 80 per cent of the American people would like to keep the clean air act just as it is or make it stricter, while only 17 per cent favor a less strict law. Harris testified before a House subcommittee on October 15 that "not a single major segment of the public wants the environmental laws made less strict."

Hair also cited a New York Times-CBS News poll published October 4, in which 67 per cent of the respondents wanted to "maintain present environmental laws even at a cost in economic growth," and a Minneapolis Tribune poll published October 18, in which 62 per cent thought "protecting the environment is more important than economic growth — even if it slows the economy and costs some jobs."

In a more recent survey of voter opinions in eight mountain states, conducted by a Phoenix research firm and reported in the Christian Science Monitor of November 12, "Fewer than a third of the Westerners interviewed felt it was necessary to sacrifice environmental safeguards to have sufficient economic growth," Hair said, "and this group included many Westerners who rated themselves as political conservatives."

NWF was not surprised at these "topheavy, pro-environment" figures, Hair said, because in a NWF survey earlier this year — at the height of the national debate over "over-regulation" — only 11.5 per cent of NWF's members thought the country had "too much" environmental regulation. Eighty-seven per cent thought the country had either "just about the right amount" or "too little" environmental regulation. NWF has 4.5 million members and supporters throughout the U.S. and a total of 38,927 participated in the poll.

"The evidence is overwhelming," Hair said, that Americans want to maintain their environmental safeguards. "We hope that members of Congress will remember this," he concluded, "when they are asked, in the guise of 'fine tuning,' to make the clean air act less effective than it now is."

Hair addressed his appeal to 98 members of the three Congressional committees handling clean air legislation — the House committee on science and technology, the House committee on energy and commerce and the Senate committee on environment and public works.

Middle School Students Share Toys For Tots

Three tables covered with toys were the response of Franklin middle school students to a request made by their student council as part of a Toys For Tots project which was successfully completed the Saturday before Christmas.

Council asked students to donate toys which they no longer used so that others who might not be able to afford a gift could select one free of charge. The only stipulations placed on persons selecting toys was that they choose them as a gift for someone else and have them wrapped before leaving. No questions were asked about income or financial situation.

Project was the idea of Assistant Principal DuWayne Pomerenke, who also serves as student council advisor. "All I did was suggest it," said Pomerenke, "the kids did everything else." He noted that the whole project had been put together in less than a week, having been brought up for the first time at a council meeting the Monday before.

Student Council members took care of all publicity, which included posters, radio announcements and a release in the Times. They also arranged for donations of wrapping paper from a local department store, refreshments and a visit from Santa. Santa came at the request of Student Council President Jim Hayes, whose father knows the old elf personally.

Wide variety of toys donated by the students appeared to be in good condition and included puzzles, games, stuffed animals, books, dolls, cars, trucks, airplanes, etc. Pomerenke commented, "When the toys started rolling in I just couldn't believe it. These kids really responded generously."

He noted that a lot of the bigger toys had disappeared right away. "We had people lined up waiting outside when we opened the doors at 10 o'clock," he said. One of the council members observed that puzzles and games didn't move too well, "probably because people were afraid there might be pieces missing." When the project was completed that afternoon, only one box of toys was left. These were donated to the county welfare department for distribution to needy families.

Most of the shoppers who turned out were school age children, but some adults brought toddlers in to see Santa Claus and pick out presents. Council members occasionally reminded shoppers looking over the selection that the toys had to be picked as a present for someone else. "I suppose some kids picked out stuff for themselves," said one of the volunteers, "but I don't think there were very many."

A large pot of coffee and an assortment of homemade cookies occupied a table close to where Santa was sitting, and shoppers were urged to help themselves. Pop left over from a dance the night before was given to the kids. "We took in enough at the dance to pay for it," said Pomerenke.

Most of the council members took a turn at one job or another, but not all of the workers were present when this reporter was about. All presents were wrapped free of charge by council members, using colored paper from large rolls donated by a local HOCKEY ENTHUSIASM never seems to wane for those who have been active in the game. Morris (Mouse) Efteland, a member of the first Lincoln high school team to play in the state high school hockey tournament, was a member of the Old-Timers team which played Saturday evening at the re-dedication of the renovated old arena in downtown Thief River Falls. At 58 years of age he may have lost a step in break-away speed since his high school years but the hockey spirit remains. More photos from the event which drew a near capacity crowd are in today's sports section.

Roger Tunberg

Roger Tunberg Elected To Auto Ass'n. Board

Roger Tunberg, treasurer of Tunberg Motor Co., Thief River Falls, has been elected by his fellow directors to the board of directors of the Minnesota automobile dealers association for 1982-83.

Tunberg, active in the automobile business since 1954, will serve a two-year term. His jurisdiction for the 700-member statewide auto dealers organization is District 1 which includes Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

Tunberg is a county advisor for the Minnesota automobile dealers association and also holds membership in the chamber of commerce, Lions, Masons and Shriners organizations. He is a past president of the Lions club, a past vice president of the chamber of commerce and belongs to the Elks, Eagles, VFW and Legion.

State Farmers Close Out One Of Worst Years

Minnesota farmers are closing out one of their worst financial years ever and are getting ready for more of the same in 1982. Some farms may not survive the current run of low farm prices and climbing costs, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Keeping informed on developments affecting farm profitability will take on more importance as farmers "batten down the hatches" to face another economic fight for survival this year. Following is a look by the statistics service at current and possible future developments affecting farmers:

Farmers can expect another tight year as a weak economy continues to strain consumer budgets. Price gains don't seem likely for U.S. livestock and poultry 'til at least mid-1982. A small consolation for livestock and poultry producers is that the large feed supplies are lower-priced, forage conditions are good, and interest rates moderate — they'll help to hold down production costs.

By the way, interest rates jumped 20 per cent from 1980-81 and have become a big factor in climbing production costs. Ability of the individual farmer to stay afloat hinges mostly on the extent of his debts and how much he has to rely on credit to finance his operations.

Low returns continue to plague poultry and egg producers. U.S. broiler output has gained every year since 1973. Turkey output has gained every year since 1973. Turkey output has risen since 1977, and 1976-80 brought an expansion in eggs. With lower returns in 1981, broilers should gain only slightly next year while small cutbacks are possible for U.S. eggs and turkeys.

Corn prices are being held down by large supplies. U.S. prices continue to fall and demand is weak. They'll probably stay lower, too, with large stocks, high interest rates and slow worldwide economic growth. Prices may average $2.45-$2.70 per bushel this marketing year versus an earlier forecast of $2.55-$2.80 per bushel.

Soybean exports, however, show some potential growth because Portugal has expanded crushing capacity — also Argentine soybeans available for export are smaller than expected earlier. U.S. soybean prices are now forecast at $5.75-$6.75 per bushel — cash market prices should be near the lower end of this range early this marketing year.

Despite a record U.S. wheat crop, the wheat export picture

Marvin Firm Shows Near Record Profit

Tight budgets elsewhere apparently had only a limited effect on Marvin Windows of Warroad which passed on a $1,538,499 profit to its employees at their annual Christmas party recently.

Profit was shared by 860 employees, with $384,625 going into a seniority pool, and $1,153,874 distributed to a compensation pool. The profit was the second highest ever recorded with 1979 topping it at $1,551,366.

Gold service pins were also awarded at the party, with Mel Ortmann, Charlie Landin and Francis Baldwin receiving 25 year pins. Pins were also awarded to 10, 15 and 20 year employees.

Morris Taylor reported an increase in orders of 18.9 per cent in 1981. In spite of housing starts being the lowest in 22 years, this was just short of the company's 20 per cent goal. Taylor also stated that the sales force was expanding with a heavy advertising committment again being made, and plans to have displays at a record 37 shows this fall and winter. He announced appointment of Sue Marvin as staff person in charge of marketing and advertising program from a new one-person office in Minneapolis. He noted that 15 additional companies had recently been added to customer accounts and prospects, and projected a 15 per cent increase in sales for 1982.

Doug Anderson, salesman for the northeastern United States, noted that sales in his area were up 25 per cent for 1981.

Jake Marvin gave a report on the history and development of the new plant at Ripley, TN.. He told of a new terrace door that will be produced in Ripley and distributed from both plants. Marvin noted that Warroad will be supplying machined stock to Ripley during off peak times to keep the Warroad force working with no winter lay-off.

Frank Marvin spoke on "The Magic in All of Us," nostalgically recalling what makes magic in our lives, especially with Christmas memories. He issued a challenge to his listeners, stating, "the rabbits are all there. We're the ones who have to take the time and make the effort to pull them out of the hat."

George Marvin elaborated on the subject, noting the importance of attitude and action. He pointed out that 1981 was a slow paced year but said he wanted everyone to be prepared for the "storm of orders" that they look for in 1982.

SPECIAL GIFTS were provided for people attending the Christmas eve dinner served Thursday evening at Northland community college. Fruit baskets in the foreground were delivered to residents of nursing homes who otherwise would receive no gifts on Christmas day. White sacks contained fruit, candy and $5 gift certificates from the Thief River Falls retail business association and were presented to each person attending the dinner. Cash gifts from individuals and organizations supplied items which were not donated for the event.

Christmas Eve Dinner Is An Evening Of Sharing

Christmas eve of sharing was observed Thursday at Northland community college where local volunteers served full dinners to more than 60 residents of the Thief River Falls area. The sixth annual dinner is intended for people of all ages who have no family with which to spend the Christmas holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kruse, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Gobell and Dr. and Mrs. Alex Easton coordinated the event this year with a number of volunteers assisting by serving food, providing transportation to more than half of the guests and delivering meals to those unable to attend.

According to the organizers, people attending were served a meal of roast turkey, mashed potatoes and gravy, dressing, vegetable, cranberries and ice cream dessert. Also available were lutefisk and lefse, salads, cookies, bars and other holiday goodies.

Nine meals were delivered to people who were unable to attend, several meals were sent home with guests for their spouses or others in their homes unable to attend, and half a dozen went to the county law enforcement center for staff and prisoners. Fruit baskets were prepared and delivered to several residents of nursing homes who would otherwise not receive Christmas gifts.

Each person attending the dinner received a dinner to take home for the following day as well as a gift bag including fruit, candy and a $5 gift certificate from the Thief River Falls retail business association. Fruit baskets and poinsettia plants purchased with cash donations from individuals and organizations were awarded as door prizes. Gift bags were also distributed to Hanson, Johnson and Kees boarding homes.

Gobell prepared most of the dinner at his restaurant, roasting 200 pounds of turkey and preparing the dressing, then completed preparations at the college cafeteria. A number of people — including a few of the guests — donated salads and other items for the dinner. Dishes from the restaurant were also used to serve the dinner.

History of the dinner began six years ago when Mr. and Mrs. James Kremer organized the first event and held it in the activity center of Skylite apartments. Four dinner were held there, and the last two have been held at the new cafeteria and commons area of the college and AVTI.

Transportation is provided for about half the people attending, according to Alex Easton, who arranged for cars and drivers to pick up guests and return them to their homes. Attendance this year was slightly below the normal number which has been 75 or more in prior years.

Among organizations and business places donating time, food or money to the event were Gary's Bakery, Bridgemans, noon and evening Lions clubs, Rotary Club, Knights of Columbus, Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary, KTRF and the Star Homemakers club — in addition to the RBA which donated the gift certificates.

Lefse served at the dinner this year was made by Sue Kruse, Maggie Stroberg, Audrey Donarski and daughters, Claire Courneya and Sylvia Jensen.

A number of people have been at most of the six dinners served through the years and seem to look forward to them as a social event, the organizers said. They enjoy renewing acquaintances and comparing notes on dinners served in prior years. Most are elderly and many insist on making food or cash contributions themselves.

"We really appreciate having volunteers show up to take time from their own Christmas eve and share with others," Lon Gobell said. "The dinner is sort of loosely organized, but good people help make it a good event. We really appreciate the donations and the volunteer help and would like to thank everyone for what they have done."

There will be no effort at reorganization until next November. Then a few couples will get their heads together, set a date, put out some publicity and put on the seventh annual event. Their effort does not go unappreciated. The following letter to the editor was received at the Times office from Mrs. Pearl Haugen, attending the dinner for the first time this year:

To the Editor:

Not only is "Everybody somebody in Thief River Falls" but we have beautiful people doing beautiful things in Thief River Falls.

I just want to thank everyone who participated in making Christmas eve the most enjoyable and memorable Christmas eve for us and many others who spent Christmas eve without family this year.

Thank you for the most delicious meal, gifts and fun evening. God loves you and so do we

Sincerely,
Pearl Haugen and Jerry

VOLUNTEERS joined in to help serve the Christmas eve dinner at Northland community college Thursday evening. Mrs. Bill (Ann) Duckworth is shown serving plates of turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans and cranberries to two of the hungry guests. The dinner is intended for people of any age who would otherwise be without family during the Christmas season.

Tracy Kertz-Paul Phelps Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at St. Bernard's Catholic church by Tracy Ann Kertz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kertz of this city, and Paul James Phelps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phelps, also of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Leon Rausch of Omaha, Neb., former priest of St. Bernard's parish, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Readers were friends of the couple Beth Isaacson and Mark Melander of Grand Forks, N.D. Jot King, a cousin of the bride, was the soloist and Mary Amundson was organist and pianist, playing the traditional "Wedding March," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

The bride was attired in her mother's ankle-length wedding gown, fashioned of satin and fully covered with lace. On her head, she wore a ring of daisies and babies' breath. She carried a bouquet of daisies, goldenrod, white satin ribbon streamers, and greenery, misted with babies' breath.

Attending as maid of honor was Christine Kasimor of St. Cloud. The bride's three sisters: Julie of Minneapolis, and Mary and Paula of this city, were bridesmaids. Their identical princess-styled gowns were of a white fabric sprinkled with tiny flowers in orange, purple, and yellow. Their bouquets were of daisies, goldenrod and tiny orange and purple wildflowers in a mist of babies' breath. On their head they wore rings of babies' breath.

Louis Gonsorowski of Thief River Falls attended the groom as best man. Groomsmen were the groom's brothers: Stevan of Missoula, Mont., and Brian of Brainerd, and a friend, Tom Ziemann of Bemidji. Serving as ushers were the bride's brothers: John Kertz of Fargo, N.D., Tom of Dallas, Tex., and Mike of St. Paul. Acolytes were Joe Kertz and Todd Phelps, the youngest brothers of the bride and groom.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails and cummerbund. His attendants, as well as the ushers and fathers of the couple, wore tuxedos featuring white jackets, and black pants, vests and bow ties. Their boutonneries were white carnations with babies' breath.

The mother of the bride wore a lavender pleated chiffon dress; and the mother of the groom was attired in a powder blue, two-piece ensemble. Colored ribbons, matching their dresses accented their corsages of daisies and babies' breath.

Honored guests were Mrs. Jo Mary Platz of Langdon, N.D., grandmother of the bride; and Mrs. Thelma Fraley, Arlington, Ill., and Mrs. Mary Phelps of Fargo, N.D., grandmothers of the groom.

The bride's personal attendant was Tracy Wells of Minneapolis. Anita Medina also of Minneapolis, presided at the guest book and Patti Malberg of Grand Forks, N.D., attended the gifts.

Following the ceremony a dinner reception and dance were held at the Thief River Falls Country club. Host and hostesses at the reception were Brian and Joyce Phelps, brother and sister of the groom, and Mrs. Jean King of Minneapolis, an aunt of the bride. Pouring punch were cousins of the bride: Camie Kertz of Langdon, and Barb and Jane Kertz of Fargo.

The cake was served by Cindy Kertz of Moorhead, Theresa and Jean Kertz of Grand Forks and Michelle Kertz of Thief River Falls. All are cousins of the bride.

Following a wedding trip around the southern part of Lake Superior and to Mackinac Island, the couple is now residing in St. Paul. Both are attending the University of Minnesota.

Stangeland Requests Total Energy Funds

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has called on two key administration officials in an effort to secure immediate and complete funding for Minnesota's energy assistance program.

"We are in the beginning of a potentially cold winter," Rep. Stangeland said. "When Congress wrote the 1982 budget, we allocated funds for energy assistance programs in the states hit hardest by winter. Congress intended those funds to help the needy to stay warm."

"At this time, our local agencies are being inundated with requests from those who are in dire need of a helping hand to meet their heating costs," he said. "I have spoken with the local energy officials, and they say that if there is any hitch in getting federal funds from OMB and HHS, some Minnesotans will be in danger of freezing this winter."

Congressman spoke with David Stockman (director of the office of management and budget) and Richard Schweiker (secretary of helth and human services) recently.

"I urged Mr. Stockman and Secretary Schweiker to do everything they could to release the full $69.5 million that was allocated for Minnesota's energy assistance program," Stangeland said. "Because of some bureaucratic delays, the bulk of those funds could be withheld until March 31 unless some action is taken now."

Congress failed to complete a full budget for 1982. A continuing resolution is keeping the federal government operating until March 31.

Congress approved $1.752 billion for energy assistance programs nationwide; $69.5 million of those funds were targeted for Minnesota. "Unfortunately, the OMB and HHS are operating under the assumption that the final budget will include only $1.4 billion for energy assistance programs," Stangeland said. "Consequently, those agencies are only giving out portions of each state's allotment, and those portions are being paid in small grants."

"I will push Mr. Stockman and Secretary Schweiker to make a lump-sum payment for the balance of the $69.5 million due to Minnesota at the soonest possible date," he concluded.

Two partial payments, totaling $27.6 million have already been made. Congressman Stangeland expects a response from the two administration officials before January 1.

STATE FARM INSURANCE COMPANIES

$2 Million To Be Returned To MN Taxpayers

State Treasurer Jim Lord has announced that he has almost $2 million to return to Minnesota residents and taxpayers.

Lord's office has just received unclaimed property reports from banks, insurance companies, department stores and major businesses holding such things as lost or forgotten savings and checking accounts, uncashed payroll checks and unclaimed utility deposits.

Minnesota state law requires businesses holding these funds to annually report the names and addresses of missing owners if they have failed to claim their property for seven years.

Lord stated, "My office will actively search for the missing owners of almost $2 million and will hold the money in trust until the lawful owners are located."

"Early next year the names of Minnesotans entitled to the property will be advertised in newspapers across the state," Lord said.

Last year, Lord's office identified an additional $7.8 million, which is currently in litigation.

Not withstanding the amount in litigation, the treasurer's unclaimed property program has identified since 1977 more than $15 million, owing to Minnesota residents and taxpayers by businesses throughout the country.

Lord has served for four years as president of the national association of unclaimed property administrators, a group of 39 states having similar laws, and helped rewrite the uniform unclaimed property act as an adviser to the uniform law commission.

State Farmers Close Out One Of Worst Years

also looks a little brighter. While other major exporters also report large crops, wheat output fell in the importing countries. This has boosted potential trade in 1982.

Consumers, by the way, can thank farmers that things aren't worse. Grocery store prices are forecast to climb five to eight per cent next year. Food marketing costs are expected to climb eight to 10 per cent. Cost of eating out may rise by about eight per cent. Overall, retail food prices will probably be about seven per cent higher in 1982.

How much did farm prices contribute to this hike? Virtually nothing, because of poor farm prices.

All in all, it means that the farm sector faces a possible third consecutive year of low net income, the statistics service reports.

Affecting the income picture most in the near future are the outcome of world crops, the current recession, and planting decisions by U.S. farmers this spring. A report on these planting decisions will be available in February.

"A lot of times the student council just becomes a social club whose only purpose is to organize dances and activities," said Pomerenke, "I think this project gives the kids a chance to do something positive in the community, and I think when it's all over they're going to have a good feeling about it."

Evidence supporting Pomerenke's conjecture was already obvious in conversation of council members who were discussing ways to improve on the project for next year.

Drinking Age And Safety

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

An important new study confirms that most safety experts have long known but in some cases have not been able to get across to obdurate state legislatures. Namely, that if a state raises its legal drinking age, there is a sharp reduction in auto accidents involving young people.

The University of Michigan study comes at a propitious moment since many state assemblies are not meeting or will be doing so in the winter months ahead. If there was ever any doubt about the correlation between drinking age and auto accidents, the Michigan and Maine findings should be more than enough evidence to spur the dozen or more states that allow purchase of liquor by persons under 21 to boost their drinking ages.

In 1978 Michigan restored its legal drinking age to 21 from 18. Since then, accidents involving injury or death to young people dropped 28 per cent. Single-car crashes fell by some 22 per cent. In Maine, which raised its drinking age to 20 years from 18 in 1979, there was a 17 per cent drop in non-injury, liquor related accidents.

Lowering the drinking age was a faulty decision from the beginning, when it was linked in ratification of the 26th amendment in 1971 granting 18-year-olds the right to vote. But even then safety experts were arguing that young drivers would not have the road experience necessary to handle both liquor and the wheel at the same time, especially under difficult driving conditions. That, of course, is not less true for older drivers. The important point is that the issue was always one of safety — and not one of denying "rights" granted to society at large, as argued by some young people seeking lower drinking ages.

Since alcohol-related motor accidents are said to be the leading cause of serious injury for young people, the conclusion seems inescapable. States should take note.

Hold It, Cecil!

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

Among the items which come in the mail each week, such as appeals to save whales, save the farmland, save the world (all of which are no doubt worthy causes), there was one which caught our eye with the title "Enclosed: A realistic way to stop James Watt."

Inside is a letter from former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, taking note of what he feels are some of present Interior Secretary James Watt's shortcomings in regard to air pollution, water pollution, off-shore oil drilling, expansion of the national parks and other real or fancied threats to the national well-being. Much of this concerns a good many citizens who feel that Watt is off-base on some of his recommendations. So far, so good. But then Andrus throws in the clincher: Send money to the Natural Resources Protection Fund. . . and the checks should be made payable to the Democratic Party, 1625 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. On the contribution slip is printed: "To prepare for the 1982 elections. . . to help elect pro-environment candidates nationwide. . . and to focus special attention on candidates who represent areas particularly affected by environmental and conservation issues, I am enrolling as a Charter Member of the Natural Resources Protection Fund of the Democratic Party."

Nobody faults the Democratic Party for going out to hustle a few bucks for the upcoming election. The Republicans certainly are. But there is something a little shaky about identifying a particular political party with conservation. Certainly Mr. Andrus feels that as a Democratic Secretary of Interior, he was leading the charge against the destruction of the nation's resources. But, as Harry Truman, another staunch Democrat used to say, "Let's take a look at the record."

Some of the greatest natural resources atrocities visited upon this nation were not only carried out under Democratic administrations, but proposed by members of Andrus' own party. Check out the marsh drainage projects which started back in the 1930's and 1940's under Roosevelt. With government subsidies, they managed to destroy more wildlife habitat than anything so far conceived by the mind of man. Not only were marshes eliminated, but rivers were "straightened" and turned into muddy drainage ditches. Dams were built to create huge lakes, many of which are now filled two-thirds full of muck. These projects all ran into billions of dollars. Democrat projects.

Mr. Andrus, we are sure, recalls that when former President Carter first entered office, he immediately took steps to stop those massive dredge and drain projects. Whereupon, the stalwart leaders of the Democratic Party came down on President Carter like a ton of bricks and made him back off of that particular emphasis on conservation. And the Democrats controlled both houses of the Congress.

There are some very dedicated people in the Democratic Party who are sincerely interested in the wise and long-time use of this nation's resources. And there are some in the Republican Party. There are also some Republicans who would vote for any fast buck scheme as long as a little rubbed off in their home state.

Years ago there was a famous political cartoonist for the Des Moines Register by the name of J.N. "Ding" Darling. One of his most reprinted cartoons carried a caption something like this: "The greatest enemies of conservation in the United States are the Republicans. . . and the Democrats."

Mr. Andrus knows who J.N. "Ding" Darling was. He ought to think that one over.

Some of the more objectionable projects Mr. Watt proposed have already been scrapped. Once the nation's press let daylight in on these schemes and the public had its say, the projects became, let us say, not feasible. On the other hand, there is much of what Mr. Watt says which is true and there are a number of programs he advocates which are needed, among them the saving and restoring of what marshlands are still left in the U.S. . . the ones the Democrats have not yet drained.

We hope the Democratic Party gets enough money to run a tough campaign. We hope the Democrats continue to criticize Watt when they think he is wrong. But it is doubtful that sending a check to the Democratic National Committee is going to put one more grouse in the woods or one more trout in the lakes. Far better to pick the individual candidate and send him the money. The odds are better that way.

Joining The Parade

Following editorial is from the Wright County Journal-Press at Buffalo:

Dark economic clouds have been on the national and state horizons for many months as car sales sagged and construction work nearly came to a halt.

This week another one of those dark economic clouds came to rest over Buffalo, with the announcement that the Wonderalls clothing manufacturing plant here (40 employees) will be closing its local operations and offering the facilities for sale.

Wonderalls President George Rosenberg cited several reasons for the closing of the plant here — garment industry competition, tough economic times and a bad business climate in the state.

Calling the workers compensation rates "incredible," Rosenberg said, "Businesses are learing the state and we're joining the parade."

It's pretty hard to know all the factors that go into a company's decision making process. But in general, businesses tend to go to, or stay in, areas where it is profitable to operate. Likewise they tend to leave, or not go into, areas where it is not profitable to operate.

Evidentally Minnesota, and now Buffalo, have fallen victim to some of those factors.

The job climate in a state seems to be a fairly academic subject until a plant closes in your own backyard. Then "job climate" can mean the loss of many paychecks every week.

All of us have our own individual problems; including how we are going to pay to heat our homes this winter. But unless we can find ways to keep industry producing in this state, we are all going to be packing up and moving out.

Borrowed Nonsense:

England, France and Norway pooled their resources for an unusual space experiment. An astronaut from each country was assigned to make a five-year stay in space and given a choice of 150 pounds of materials to bring with him. The Englishman chose 150 pounds of books including the works of Shakespeare. The Frenchman took a 110-pound lady friend and 40 pounds of wine. The Norwegian took 150 pounds of cigarettes. At the end of the experiment, the Englishman left the space ship quoting Shakespeare. The Frenchman emerged with his lady friend and five children. The Norwegian stumbled off trembling violently, asking, "Anybody got a match?"

Logo Winner Announced; Clinic Honors Employees

LOGO DESIGN winner in a contest sponsored recently by the Falls Clinic Professional association in Thief River Falls, was Aaron Bartsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Contoas, Thief River Falls. Aaron, 17, "waited a long time" to find out he won the contest, he said proudly. Corporate logo will be used on jewelry items awarded to employees with five or more years of service with the clinic and on all printed material used by the clinic. A framed copy of the logo was presented to Dr. George Martin, president of the clinic's board of directors, and to Aaron. Aaron and his parents were also treated to dinner at Lon't restaurant, on behalf of the clinic.

Several employees from the Falls Clinic professional association in Thief River Falls were recently honored during an employee service awards program.

This was the first year such a program has been conducted, according to Arnold Carriere, clinic administrator.

Several months ago, Carriere said during a recent interview, he begin to think about a corporate logo for the clinic. He also began thinking of the many years of work some employees have provided to the clinic. A system, he believied, should be developed to combine these two items.

Last summer a logo contest, open to clinic employees or family members of clinic employees, who could submit original or any ideas that would fit a corporate logo, was conducted.

Aaron Bartsch, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Contos, Thief River Falls, was the winner of that contest. Rick Contos is pharmacist at Northwestern hospital and Vivian Contos is director of nurses at the Falls clinic.

Aaron received a framed copy of the logo, as did Dr. George Martin, president of the clinic's board of directors. Aaron and his parents were also treated to dinner at Lon's on behalf of the clinic.

Logo, according to Carriere, will be used in all printed material used by the clinic, as well as on jewelry items awarded to employees with five or more years of service with the clinic. This was the first year that an employee service awards program was conducted. The "system," then, had been developed.

Clinic's board members, consisting of Drs. Martin, Ernest Thorsgard, vice president, and Donald Mestery, secretary-treasurer, judged the logo, which was unveiled during the clinic's recent awards program.

A firm in St. Louis, MO, added finishing touches to Aaron's logo and incorporated it into the jewelry items recently distributed to employees. Gifts awarded employees are also purchased through the firm, according to Carriere.

Employees receiving awards at the recent program include: Five year — Paula Anderson, Jean Forsell, Judy Evenson, Eileen Walseth, Carol Konickson, Millie Dahl, Nancy Harbott, Carol McGann and Marge Tiani, who all received sterling silver pins.

Ten year service awards — Millie Thorstad, Lillian Ose and Jeanne Williams, who received gold-filled pins with emerald stones. Fifteen year service award went to Doris Runger, who received a 10 karat gold charm with sapphire stone on a gold-filled bracelet. (She also received a pin for 10 years of service).

Twenty year award — Myrna Lane, Ivadell Hoppe and Shriley Johnson received 14 karat gold pendants with three-point diamonds on gold-filled chains (all three employees also received bracelets for 15 years of service with the clinic).

Twenty-five year award — Evie Hruby was presented a clock with chimes and a pendant for 20 years of service.

Thirty year award — Norma Jean Looker and Fern Williams received 10 karat gold-filled watches. Both employees also received pendants for 20 years of service with the clinic.

Gifts, from a collection, were selected specifically for each individual, according to Carriere.

"The program has been extremely well received," Carriere said, "by managers, doctors and employees."

Classical Guitar Added To UND List

Music department at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks has added classical guitar lessons to its music lifelong learning program for non-UND students wishing to take up an instrument.

In addition, the UND music department will again be offering a one-semester program of classic piano lessons for the general public.

Music lifelong learning program will continue to offer personalized instruction from UND music instructors or advanced music students in voice, brass, piano, strings, woodwinds and percussion instruments as well as the new classical guitar offering. Program is open to people of all ages interested in pursuing their musical ability.

Registration for both the music lifelong learning program and the class piano lessons begins January 4, with lessons beginning in mid-January and running through May. Class piano lessons will be offered from 7 to 8 p.m. Mondays beginning January 18.

More information on both the music lifelong learning program and the class piano lessons is available by calling the UND music department at 777-2644.

FmHA Staff Attends TRF District Meet

Staff members of the local Farmers Home administration (FmHA) county office attended a district meeting in Thief River Falls recently.

Meeting was conducted by John P.W. Friederichs, district director, who discussed farm lending policies for 1982. He explained that it will be necessary to begin farm planning for 1982 early so FmHA will know what budget needs are for 1982. If the demand for loans exceeds the loan fund supply, it will be necessary to obtain this information early in the year so as to advise the FmHA national office in Washington.

Friederichs has asked respective county supervisors to begin the process of analyzing credit needs for existing borrowers and to have this completed by Feb. 15, 1982.

"We will need to rely on PCAs, commercial banks and other lenders in our area to supply more of the credit needs for our borrowers," Friederichs stated. He said this would be accomplished through subordination of the government's security position to commercial lenders. However, loand made by other lenders in the areas under the subordination agreement will be serviced and supervised just as if FmHA had made the loan.

Friederichs urges all presently indebted FmHA borrowers to contact their local FmHA county office as quickly as possible if it appears they will need a loan for 1982 operating expenses and are unable to obtain credit from their regular lender.

Reagan Plan Encourages Mn. CETA Head

Bill Brumfield, head of the Minnesota CETA directors' association said that he was encouraged with the Reagan administration's recent comments on the future of employment and training programs.

"President Reagan's proposal to increase the basic funding from $1.6 billion to $2.4 billion indicates that he appreciates the need for employment and training programs, particularly in times of increasing unemployment," said Brumfield, chairman of the Minnesota prime sponsor association.

Brumfield directs the comprehensive employment and training act programs in Hennepin county.

"We don't necessarily concur with the specifics of the Reagan proposal," Brumfield said, "but we're going to be working with the U.S. department of labor to develop the new law.

"By and large we work with the untrained and chronically unemployed," Brumfield said. "If the CETA programs get cut sharply, many of our clients will have no alternative but to go on welfare. To me, it makes more sense to pay people to train for work."

Brumfield said many employers have used CETA programs offering tax credits and wage reimbursements as a means of training people for jobs in their businesses.

More than 39,300 persons participated in CETA programs in Minnesota during the year that ended last September 30.

The cost of training per participant was $1,524, Brumfield said. "That's an investment which is repaid when participants become taxpayers."

Budget director David Stockman had proposed the $1.6 billion figure. Reagan's $2.4 billion budget recommendation came after labor secretary Raymond Donovan personally appealed to the President for more money.

Gift Giving Will Help Reduce Taxes

Annual gifts can provide for the future of your spouse, children or heirs. Gift-giving can also be a way to transfer wealth and reduce taxes. Whatever your reason, whether you plan to give regularly or occasionally, the Minnesota Society of CPAs suggests you know the tax regulations governing gifts.

Although 1981 gift tax rules are unchanged by the new tax law, changes will occur in 1982. CPAs advise familiarizing yourself with the present standards and next year's changes to take advantage of gift exemptions.

Current limit for annual tax free gifts if $3,000. In addition, each person has an exemption for $175,625 which can be used over the course of his or her life, or to offset estate taxes. These limits represent the amount of the gift that is tax-exempt. For example, if you give your child $5,000 in 1981, only $3,000 of the gift falls under the annual gift tax exclusion. The other $2,000 can be deducted from your lifetime exemption which then leaves you $173,625 to distribute, plus your annual exclusion per recipient for future years.

Gifts above these amounts are taxed at the gift rate; which can run as high as 70 per cent.

Remember, too, the gift exclusion is figured per individual. If you and your spouse agree, you can double your gift to any recipient. For 1981, then, your allowed exclusion can actually total $6,000 per recipient.

How much impact does the exclusion for a gift really have? According to CPAs, much depends on your income and your tax bracket. Let's say you and your spouse have one child and a combined income of $50,000. Without any deductions you are in the 49 per cent tax bracket. If you save $6,000 for your child and invest this at 12 per cent interest compounded annually, you will have approximately $4,600 in interest, or a total of $10,600 at the end of 10 years, after taxes. If instead your child were given the $6,000 and invested it, your child would have approximately $12,100 in interest, or a total of $18,100 at the end of 10 years, assuming no other income.

To effectively transfer the income tax consequences to your child, you have to put the cash in their control (or in trust), or give them the actual income producing property, for example the stock or bond.

Depending on the size of the gift and the accumulation of the fund, you may or may not benefit by opening an account in trust for the recipient, say CPAs. There are different kinds of trusts and varying degrees of control which the giver exerts over the fund. With most trust funds, the recipient can gain control at age 18 or 21. CPAs remind you that to qualify for the exemption neither the principal nor the interest should be used to pay for ordinary parental obligations, such as food, clothing or shelter. The money can, however, be used to advance the education of the child. Under the new tax law, gifts for school or health care do not decrease either the annual gift limit or the lifetime limit.

Are dividends from stock exempt from tax also? CPAs say the gift or transfer of the stock is not taxable for income tax purposes until the stock is sold, although the value of the stock is subject to the gifting rules just discussed. Dividends, except for the $200 individual tax exclusion, are taxable; but, once again, the recipient will probably pay a lower tax on the income than the giver (the dividend exclusion goes back to $100 per individual after 1981). When the stock is sold, the capital gains are taxed at the recipients tax rate unless the stock is sold within two years after being given to the trust. In such cases, the donor's tax rate applies.

In 1982, gift tax allowances will increase. After January, the annual gift tax exemption applies to gifts of up to $10,000 while the lifetime allowance increases to $250,000. Lifetime amount continues to increase until it reaches $600,000 in 1987. $10,000 annual exclusion will stay at $10,000 ($20,000 if you and your spouse consent to gift-splitting).

When giving gifts, CPAs advise you to bear in mind not only your estate and tax planning, but also your present finances. Gifts should not leave you financially strapped.

TOYS WERE PILED on three tables like this at the Toys For Tots project held at Franklin Middle School Saturday. These had been picked over by the shoppers, leaving a larger percentage of games and puzzles. Out of three tables like this, only one box of toys was left when doors were closed that afternoon. They were donated to the county welfare department for distribution to needy families.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

A measure included in the Omnibus Tax bill vetoed by the Governor would have removed loopholes in Minnesota income tax laws which allow large oil companies reductions in the amount of taxes they pay the state. The proposed legislation would produce at least $35 million in revenue the first year.

The tax would apply if the company (a) extracts or produces crude oil, (b) refines crude oil, and (c) markets or distributes petroleum products in Minnesota. Cooperatives are specifically exempted from the proposed law.

The proposed tax has 3 major elements. First, the method of figuring major oil companies' income will be changed, because some Legislators are convinced these corporations are not paying their fair share of taxes. Under present law, multi-state businesses may select one of 2 formulas for determining the portion of their income attributable to Minnesota. Both are 3-part formulas based on Minnesota sales, payroll, and property compared to sales, payroll, and property of their operations outside the state.

The first formula, the arithmetic method, weighs each factor equally. The second formula weighs the sales factor more heavily (70 per cent) than property and payroll (15 per cent each), because sales contribute more to overall profit than payroll or property.

The new bill would require oil companies to use the weighted formula, thus placing a greater tax on firms which have little property or payroll in the state but are taking large sums of capital out through sales.

The second element of the proposed tax is elimination of loopholes now used by oil companies to reduce their corporate income tax. Minnesota uses the federal tax code as a guide. The federal code allows deductions for oil depletion allowances and intangible drilling expenses. In the proposed law, these deductions would be eliminated.

Third, the bill provides for attribution of earnings of a subsidiary's stock. The deduction from gross income of dividends received from foreign corporations is also eliminated in some cases. The net effect of these changes would be additional income for the state.

Who would ultimately pay the tax is a major concern. Corporations will most likely try to pass the burden of this new tax formula on to consumers of its products, owners of the corporation, employees, or the owners of capital generally.

Some economists believe the corporate income tax affects pricing and output decisions by corporations. According to this theory, businesses set prices to obtain a given rate of return on their investments after paying all costs. In this view, corporate income tax is simply a cost which companies recover through the pricing structure.

I am not an economist and do not fully understand all the economic theories behind these opinions. But the notion that large corporations price their products to obtain a targeted rate of return has a certain logic. In the case of this tax proposal, the higher taxes would probably be passed on to consumers in the form of higher oil prices and possibly reduced wages for employees.

However, we can question that all of the increased tax would be passed on to Minnesota consumers. It's possible that corporations would have to pass these increased costs on to all their customers around the nation. Because the tax applies only to companies engaged in refining, any prices set by major oil companies for Minnesota alone could be undercut by independent distributors that purchase oil on the national market and merely sell it in Minnesota.

After careful examination of all the issues, I feel this proposed tax measure should be passed during the 1982 legislative session. As always, I would appreciate hearing your thoughts on this proposed legislation.

Sunflower Day January 12 At Breckenridge

Senator Rudy Boschwitz will highlight Sunflower Day '82 on Tuesday, January 12, in Wahpeton, ND. Boschwitz, who will explain the national farm program and its effect on midwestern farmers, says he is determined to prevent agriculture from becoming another scapegoat for a government embargo.

Sen. Boschwitz authored the embargo prevention provision of the national farm bill, which limits the government in the event of farm losses. "In fiscal 1981", explains Boschwitz, "the agricultural net trade surplus of $25 billion represents almost two-thirds of our annual oil import bill and that clearly underscores the importance of ag exports."

Sunflower Day '82 will focus on "Profitable Marketing in a Depressed Economy" and feature marketing specialists and economists on farm pricing and effective marketing. The day-long seminar includes the nation's largest display of sunflower trade exhibits, up-to-date information on cultural practices, insect problems, world weather trends and sunflower hybrids of the future, plus a noon lunch. Sunflower Day '82 is sponsored in co-operation with the North Dakota State School of Science and will be held at the NDSSS Activities Center in Wahpeton, ND.

Author, lecturer and farmer Merrill Oster will address the Sunflower Day audience on "An Optimistic View of Farming in the '80's". Oster, founder of Professional Farmers of America, and publisher of the Pro Farmer Newsletter, takes positive view of farm pricing and the use of futures for profit. John Roach of Perry, IA, will present the world outlook for corn, sunflower, wheat and soybeans. Roach is a featured guest on the public broadcasting systems weekly "Market to Market" television program.

"The New Setting for Agricultural Policy" will be addressed by Dr. Edward Schuh, head of the agriculture and applied economics department of the University of Minnesota. Dr. Schuh, a member of President Ford's council of economic advisors and a former deputy undersecretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, is currently president of the American Agricultural Economics association.

Sunflower Day '82 is free and open to the public.

Growers Upset With Federal Wheat Program

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers is very dissatisfied with wheat provisions of the new farm bill that passed both the Senate and the House of Representatives and now has been signed by the President.

According to Wheat Grower president Fred Kreps of Felton, the new farm bill, with its $3.55 price support loan for wheat and target prices of $4.05 per bushel for 1982 and escalating to $4.65 by 1985, is substantially better than the administration's first proposal of a $3.20 loan and no target prices at all.

"But," Kreps stated, "the safety net that the farm bill is to provide to protect producers from excess supplies or government interference is totally inadequate and is considered so even by many of the Senators and Congressmen who felt compelled to vote for it."

According to Kreps, the secretary of agriculture, John Block, was instrumental in writing the final version of the farm bill and must take full responsibility for any deficiencies in it. "The bill would support farm income at least a dollar per bushel under full cost of production." Kreps stated. "This will do little to help farmers facing high interest rates and increasing input costs."

According to Kreps, the administration is moving toward its stated goal of lowering the level of government involvement in agriculture on the grounds that they are pursuing a market-oriented economy. However, to this point Kreps emphasized the administration has provided little more than lip service to further the export expansion program. Rather threats of new embargoes, proposals to reduce the P.L. 480 export assistance program and cutbacks in matching funds for the commodity organization's export market development programs all point to a desire to keep farm prices low, he said.

Kreps concluded, "It is now up to agriculutal interest to be sure the administration follows through by allowing open access to all export markets for U.S. farm commodities and by providing the necessary tools to encourage grain to move into the export market.

UMC Holiday Doubleheaders

Class AA Northwest Athletic Conference members Thief River Falls and Crookston will get to see what the best in Region 8A has to offer Tuesday and Wednesday when the Prowlers and Pirates are matched against Warren and Argyle in a pair of holiday high school basketball doubleheaders at the new University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) gymnasium.

Tuesday night Thief River Falls is paired against Warren at 7 and Crookston is pitted against Argyle at 8:45.

Wednesday the match-ups are reversed as Thief River Falls plays Argyle at 7 p.m. and Crookston faces Warren at 8:45.

Same format will be used for the junior varsity portion of the event both afternoons. On Tuesday, the Thief River Falls junior varsity plays Warren at 1:30 p.m. and Crookston plays Argyle at 3. On Wednesday it'll be Thief River Falls vs. Argyle at 1:30 p.m. and Crookston vs. Warren at 3.

As mentioned before, the UMC event matches the Big schools vs. the Small schools, and in this instance, the smaller Class A teams will be favored to defeat the larger Class AA opponents.

Warren is the defending District 31 and Region 8A champion. The Ponies are 3-0, including a recent 55-54 double-overtime win over a Marshall County Central team that is rated the District 32 favorite and a Region 8A challenger this year. The Ponies' balanced attack against the Nordics featured Brian Ljunggren with 17 points, Dan Carlson 14 and Dennis Olson 10. Warren already owns a 47-42 opening-game win over Crookston.

Argyle, tabbed the preseason favorite in Region 8A in 1981-82, is 2-0, including a recent 46-34 win over rival Stephen, also considered to be a Region 8A contender. Center Steve Holloway led the Eagles with 16 points and 11 rebounds in that one, with big Robert Hapka, an all-stater on the Eagles' state champion nine-man fotball team this fall, grabbing 15 rebounds — eight off the offensive boards. Forward Terry Moe added 12 points, while shophomore guard Don Magnusson handed out seven assists and came up with three steals.

Argyle coach Warren Keller says the UMC games will be a good test for the Eagles. "The two games will be very difficult for us (because) both AA schools are more physical than some of the teams on our schedule. But we should match up well with both teams, and we are looking forward to playing Crookston and Thief River Falls."

That's part of the problem for the Prowlers and Pirates. The smaller schools get "fired up" to play the Class AA teams. They want to prove they're just as good, if not better than the larger, more-publicized schools. Conversely, the Class AA teams go into the game on a one-way street. If they win, it's something their fans expected — beating a smaller opponent. If they lose, they're ridiculed.

But these are two classy teams the Prowlers and Pirates will be facing. The match-ups could produce some good, close, entertaining basketball, with the Big School vs. Small School angle thrown in for added interest. To lose to either the Ponies or Eagles would hardly be a shame for the Prowlers and Pirates, and a win would be a fine accomplishment.

Crookston has a 2-2 record to date — all against Class A competition. The Pirates own wins over Tri-County and Fertile-Beltrami, with losses coming at the hands of Warren and Mahnomen.

Thief River Falls is 2-1 with wins over Roseau 39-30 and Grafton 41-40 followed by a loss to defending North Half Region 8AA champion Moorhead 59-36 in the latest outing.

The Prowlers' defensive average of 43.0 points per game is outstanding. If they continue that trend they'll win their share of ball games this year — if they can get their offense going. Right now the Prowlers average just 38.7 points per game, and it's doubtful they'll win many with that figure.

Miscellaneous

+Early-season ratings in Section 8 high school hockey by Don Olson of KTRF radio in Thief River Falls shows No. 1 — Roseau; No. 2 — East Grand Forks; No. 3 — Moorhead; No. 4 — Fergus Falls. +Bemidji, Thief River Falls' Jan. 8 opponent in the Lincoln gym to start the Prowlers' 1981-82 NWAC schedule, lost its fourth straight game Tuesday when sophomore guard Greg Seliskwer took an in-bounds pass at center court following a Bemidji turnover with six seconds to play and beat the Lumberjacks' defenders to the free throw line where his 15-foot shot found the net as the buzzer sounded in a 58-57 Crosby-Ironton win. Selisker scored a game-high 23 points, 17 in the second half when the Rangers overcame a 10-point deficit. Sophomore Dave Lawrence scored 19 points for Bemidji.

Ken Moum Sky-High Counting Canada Geese In South Dakota

(Editor's note: the following arcticle, featuring former Thief River Falls resident Ken Moum, appeared recently in the Sioux Falls Argus Leader).

by Kevin Woster
Argus Leader Staff

About this time each year, Ken Moum gets sky-high for a scientific look at Canada geese populations on the Missouri River.

Usually, he also gets sick.

"I've only tossed my cookies once," the writer-photographer for the South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks Department said. "But I always get semi-sick. You know, a little rotten. I should get hazardous duty pay."

At least once a year, Moum's nauseating job is to ride the rear seat of a Piper Super Cub as state pilot Joe Marbach circles, loops and climbs in the unsteady skies above the Missouri. Moum must hang onto his lunch and Nikon 35 mm camera long enough during these maneuvers to photograph geese swimming, flying and resting below.

It's all in the name of wildlife conservation. But even Marbach, a sturdy pilot with 19 years flying experience in department planes, admits the flying is tough.

"We've got nothing but problems on this thing," Marbach said. "If we're really going after them we'll get down to about 100 feet, and maybe get the air speed down to 70 mph. It's hard to get the birds in the picture, and we have a little problem with air sickness."

The "little" problem has so far belonged only to Moum. "He's the only one I've been able to get to go along on this thing," Marbach said.

Other wildlife officials shake their heads in sympathy with Moum and his stomach, but agree the flight is necessary to manage Canada geese. Tom Kuck, state waterfowl specialist, said the photographs give the department a much more accurate count of birds on the river.

For years, Kuck said, boilogists and conservation officers estimated the number of geese on the river by visual counts. And on a weekly basis, the eyeball method is still used.

But three years ago the department began using photographs to periodically check the visual counts. Human eyes were found to be lacking.

"For a couple of years running the photos ran about 60 per cent higher than the eyeball counts," Kuck said. "I think we're getting much better information now."

Now the photo flights are balanced against the more numerous, but less precise, visual counts. Biologists believe the result gives them a fairly accurate waterfowl count.

This year, Moum suffered through just one photo flight — made last Thursday. He fired five rolls of film and within the next two weeks will check more than 100 8x10-inch black-and-white prints. The film frames are marked and will be kept in order to prevent duplication during the count.

The next step in the counting process is nearly, but not quite, as unpleasant as Moum's job, officials agree. Each bird photographed on the river must be counted individually.

The stacks of prints are sent to the Northern Prairie Wildlife Research Center in Jamestown, N.D., for the actual count. There, a secretary who doubles as a goose counter will take over.

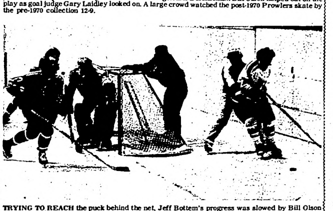
— Highlights Of LHS Old-Timers Hockey Game —

A LEG SAVE by goalie Jeff Noel kicked out a breakaway shot by John Wangberg Saturday in the Lincoln high school Old-Timers hockey game played in the old arena in downtown Thief River Falls. Wangberg's post-1970 Prowlers (through 1975) "won" the game 12-9 before a near-capacity crowd in the re-dedication of the remodeled old arena.

JACK HOPPE, who was the goalie on the 1953-54 undefeated state championship Lincoln high school hockey team, returned to the nets Saturday for the Prowlers' Old-Timers game and turned aside this first period scoring chance for Tim Engelstad. Defenseman Bill Olson helped out on the play as goal judge Gary Laidley looked on. A large crowd watched the post-1970 Prowlers skate by the pre-1970 collection 12-9.

SERVING AS captains of the two teams involved in Saturday's Lincoln high school Old-Timers hockey game in the old arena were Dale Wennberg (left) and Tom Goddard, who had this second period scoring opportunity turned aside by goalie Danny Sullivan. Goddard's post-1970 squad decisioned Wennberg's pre-1970 team 12-9 in a friendly game that entertained a near-capacity crowd that helped re-dedicate the remodeled old arena.



TRYING TO REACH the puck behind the net, Jeff Bottem's progress was slowed by Bill Olson Saturday during the first period of the Lincoln high school Old-Timers hockey game played in the old arena. Goalie Jack Hoppe kept an eye on things, as did teammate Mark Lund and goal judge Gary Laidley. The game, under the sponsorship of the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association, drew a large crowd for the re-dedication of the remodeled old arena.

Ice Fishing

Precautions for your safety and that of your family when ice fishing all begins when you enter the lake ice to place your house.

First step is to drive upon safe ice. Check the area with other fishermen or wardens. Always drive your vehicle with windows down, and the car doors wide-open when driving across the ice. This is the purest insurance for safety in event the ice gives-way and may allow you time and a way out of the vehicle before the car submerges, taking you and the passengers with it.

No matter how many times you drive back upon the ice, following other car routes. Make certain every time that the ice is still safe and strong enough to hold your cars.

Several years ago, we lost dear friends to the waters below who had neglected to check out the ice, and who had not opened windows or doors After their car submerged. They were unable to open doors or windows due to the electric system. When located, they were ten feet from shore in about six feet of water.

Yes, we had advised them about safety rules for ice-fishing. In fact, we had taught them how. This is why this column was written. Please teach your girls and boys or parents, why they must know all about the lake. It is important to know if it has been listed as ready for fishing (checked for ice thickness). Lastly, watch for springs under the waters, and if fishing seasons are open for certain types of fishing.

National Wildlife Federation
News Release

National Wildlife Federation (NWF) has filed suit against U.S. Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt in a move to protect the nation's prime farmland from what it called strip mining without any environmental controls.

NWF, along with seven other conservation and civic groups, asked a federal court to overturn a regulation, issued by Watt, that would allow many existing strip mines on prime farmland to sidestep a federal law requiring restoration of mined land.

"Secretary Watt's regulation would undermine the federal laws that sought to protect farmland from coal mining in the first place," said Norman Dean, attorney for NWF. "It would open up vast areas of prime farmland to strip mining without providing for any environmental controls."

Specifically, the suit challenges Watt's omission of a deadline from a regulation he issued in September to implement the so-called grandfather clause of the surface mining reclamation and control act of 1977. According to NWF attorneys, the grandfather clause of the act established exemptions for mines operating at the time the legislation was passed, so that coal mining companies would have time to develop the technology for restoring strip-mined farmland to its original condition, as required by the act. The Carter administration had proposed a 1982 deadline for these so-called "grandfather clause" exemptions.

Without a deadline or cut-off date, the suit charges, Watt's regulation provides no practical limits to strip mining on prime farmlands. If not overturned, it "will permit surface mining of coal on hundreds of thousands of acres of prime farmland without any showing that coal operators have the technological capability to restore the lands to their premining productivity," says the NWF complaint, filed in the District of Columbia's U.S. District Court.

Joining the NWF in the suit are the Iowa and Illinois wildlife federations, the environmental policy institute, and four other civic and environmental organizations in Illinois. Also named as a defendant in the suit is Richard Harris, director of the office of surface mining, reclamation and enforcement within the U.S. Department of the Interior.

The suit claims that Watt's regulation violates the intent of the surface mining reclamation and control act. It also maintains that Watt unlawfully implemented the regulation, because he did not obtain the approval of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture as required by the surface mining act.

Illinois, which contains half of the nation's prime farmland on which strip mining occurs, would be hardest hit by Watt's regulation, according to NWF attorneys. "Most of the strip mining in Illinois occurs on two coal seams," said Dean. "Watt's regulation would allow the 56 existing mines on those seams to continue mining under the grandfather clause as long as the reserves last. That leaves most, if not all, of Illinois' best farmland unprotected by the new regulation." According to Dean, not one existing coal mine in Illinois is yet obliged to meet the prime farmland requirements of the surface mining act.

Watt's regulation, without any deadline for compliance, will result in a loss of productive farmland, increased water pollution from increased erosion and stream sedimentation, aesthetic damage, and the destruction of wildlife habitat, the suit alleges.

Illinios and Iowa wildlife federations are state affiliates of the NWF, a conservation and education organization with more than 4.5 million members and supporters throughout the United States.

Fish, Wildlife Aid Hits $107 Million

Secretary of the Interior James Watt has announced that $107 million in federal aid funds have been apportioned to the 50 states, Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands and the Mariana Islands for sports fish and wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs.

This apportionment, obtained from excise tax collections in fiscal year 1981, is the first of two installments distributed this year to be used by the states to finance their fish and wildlife restoration programs. The second installment will be distributed after the tally of fiscal year 1981 tax receipts is completed by the Treasury Department. Last year, more than $114 million in federal funds were distributed to the states.

Of the total funds available, $74.5 million are for wildlife restoration, $21 million for fish restoration and $11.5 million for hunter safety programs.

Funds for wildlife restoration and hunter safety programs come from an 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, a 10 per cent tax on pistols and revolvers and an 11 per cent tax on certain archery equipment. Distribution of wildlife restoration funds is based on a formula which takes into account the number of hunting license holders and the land area of each state.

Fish restoration funds come from a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing rods, reels, creels and artificial baits, lures and files. Distribution of the funds is made according to a formula based on the number of fishing license holders and the land area of each state.

Ken Moum Is Counting Geese

"I do it after work," Judy Harr said. "I get home about 5 (p.m.) and count from then until about 10. Then I count all day on Saturday and Sunday."

Harr uses an electronic counter with a fine point and actually punches a minute hole in each goose on each of the hundreds of photos. The counter automatically records the numbers with each punch.

The work is tedious and a strain on the eyes. Last year Harr punched more than 300,000 geese. But she said the work is enjoyable

"Nobody can believe that, but it's fun work, Harr said. "I make kind of a game out of it, seeing if I can guess how many birds I'm going to count on the picture. Usually, I'm way off."

One of the biggest challenges is lining up the series of overlapping photographs so that no birds are counted twice, she said. To do this she uses landmarks, ice formations, or unique groups of birds to mark count lines. She marks the areas that have and have not been counted on each picture, estimates the percentage of ducks — they appear much small on most photos — and eventually comes up with goose totals.

She said she would much rather handle her end of the job than take over for Moum up in the air.

"I don't think I could take that," she said.

Films Shown At Our Saviour's This Thursday

"A Thief in the Night," a motion picture about Bible prophecy, will be shown at Our Saviour's Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Thursday at 8 p.m.

"A Thief in the Night" is a dramatic portrayal of what could happen when Jesus Christ returns. This story centers around Patty Meyers, a young woman caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future. What happens when this thinking finally catches up with her provides the drama.

"A Distant Thunder" will also be presented Thursday at Our Saviour's Lutheran that evening.

"A Distant Thunder," a 78 minute color film, is a sequel to "A Thief in the Night."

Patty, the leading character in "A Thief in the Night," is among a large number of people held prisoner because they have not received the Mark of the Beast. Patty and her two friends, Wenda and Sandy escape the attention of the authorities for a time. When Wenda and Sandy attempt to help an elderly man, they are arrested by an armed patrol, but manage to warn Patty their hiding place has been discovered.

Augustine, Hanson Share In Enthusiasm On Co-op Merger

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

To hundreds of members of Midland Cooperatives and Land O'Lakes, Inc., throughout the Times area, merger of the two large regional cooperatives on January 1 will go unnoticed. But for two Thief River Falls community people, the merger takes on major significance and is a transaction with which they are totally familiar and of which they heartily approve.

Marlan Augustine and Si Hanson are long-standing directors of the two cooperatives. Augustine, who farms southeast of Holt, is the senior member of the 36-member Land O'Lakes board in years of service, having served all but one year since 1958. Hanson has been a member of the Midland board for 11 years, currently serves as first vice president and was a member of Midland's five-man merger committee.

Thief River Falls is one of two Minnesota communities to have its residents serving on boards of both cooperatives. Henry Sommers of Pine City is on the Midland board and Al Wannous of Pine City is on the Land O'Lakes board. There are many communities in the Midwest, however, which have Midland and Land O'Lakes cooperative operations since the regional co-ops serve much of the same area.

Hanson and Augustine share in the opinion that it is the responsibility of directors of regional cooperatives to watch out for the best interests of the individual member owners back home. Both have based their board service on that premise and both believe that the merger of Midland into Land O'Lakes makes solid economic sense for the members. "It's their business and their dollars," Hanson said.

Members apparently agreed with their regional boards and management. In a merger vote conducted through the mail late in November, 91 per cent of Land O'Lakes members and 96 per cent of Midland members approved the merger. Both boards had unanimously agreed on the merger in October. On January 1 the equity of Midland members will be exchanged for an equal amount of Land O'Lakes equity. Local cooperative boards will make their own decisions on whether or not mergers locally would be beneficial.

Management of the two cooperatives estimate that the merger will save about $6 million annually by eliminating duplication and improving efficiency. The savings are expected to include $4 million in operating costs and $2 million in administrative expenses.

And both Marlan Augustine and Si Hanson are satisfied they had a hand in making a major decision that will be of benefit to their farmer neighbors.

Marlan Augustine

Cooperative mergers aren't something new to Marlan Augustine who has seen a number of changes in cooperative operations during his 22 years of service on the Land O'Lakes board. While never leaving the home farm three miles east of Holt, he has represented three different districts on the regional cooperative board.

As creameries grew in number and were at their peak, he served on the District 17 board. When creameries merged, closed or were sold, expanded District 14 came into being. And in 1970 when Land O'Lakes merged with Felco, District 18 was created. It extends in a strip about two counties wide from the Canadian border down the western edge of Minnesota to Pope county with the entire state of North Dakota thrown in for good measure.

Also serving from District 18 is Claire Sandness of La Moure, ND, since each of Land O'Lakes' 18 districts has two directors. Sandness is chairman of the Land O'Lakes board, and the only member of the board whose father was also previously a board member.

Except for three and a half years of military service in World War II, Marlan has been a resident of this area of Minnesota. Born at Mercy hospital in Thief River Falls — one of few hospital births 62 years ago — he grew up on the parental John P. Augustine dairy farm. His father established the 192-acre farm when he came to this area from Goodhue county. Marlan and his son Eldon now operate 1,400 owned and rented acres and have a 100-head beef cow-calf operation. The dairy cattle were sold four years ago, after the herd was increased from 15 to 40 milk cows over the years.

"My interest has always been in dairying," Augustine admitted. "A nice herd of dairy cows along the road still turns my head when I'm traveling. I can't say I miss the early morning milkings and the back-straining labor, but I do miss two generations of herd development and a regular milk check. Dairying carried us over quite a few rough spots in our farming business. Grain and beef farming has meant a whole new budgeting process."

How could a dairy farmer find the time to slip away to Minneapolis for a couple of days every month for a board meeting and be gone frequently for local creamery meetings or district meetings?

"I know it put a load on my wife and family many times," he admits. "But I always had a full-time employee during all those years on the board. Kenny Smith was my hired man for 17 years. A lot of the time I didn't even leave any instructions for him, just tell him. I would be gone for a certain time. If there were any problems, we took care of them when I got home."

Demands on his time were great. At one time there were 34 local creameries in his district, and most expected him to attend their annual meetings. He also expected to attend and spoke at as many as he could. In addition to his two-day regular board meetings every month but July, he served on committees and was given special assignments by the chairman.

He tried to attend one national convention a year

MARLAN AUGUSTINE of rural Thief River Falls has been a member of the board of directors of Land O'Lakes, Inc., since 1958 with the exception of one year when another director was elected to serve. He is the senior member of the 36-member board in years of service and has worked on several mergers, including the merger of Midland Cooperatives into Land O'Lakes on January 1. "This merger went the smoothest of any of them," he said. "We have many of the same members and the philosophies of both co-ops are much the same."

SI HANSON of rural Thief River Falls is first vice president of the Midland Cooperatives board of directors and one of a five-member committee from the Midland board which developed the merger with Land O'Lakes. "We discussed merger with the Grain Terminal association (GTA), CENEX and Farmland Industries as well as Land O'Lakes," Hanson said. "The agreement with Land O'Lakes is the best for all concerned and should save the farmer members from $5 million to $7 million a year."

Si Hanson

Viewing the 11 years he has served on the Midland Cooperatives board as an educational opportunity which few are fortunate enough to experience, Si Hanson is awaiting with interest the results of the merger with Land O'Lakes, Inc., which he worked hard to accomplish.

"It's just plain common sense," Hanson said. "There were four major regional cooperatives headquartered in the Twin Cities area, covering the same territory and sending their trucks out day after day. Midland has been looking at mergers for the last 10 or 12 years at least, and actively seeking a merger for over a year. We feel the agreement with Land O'Lakes will be beneficial for everyone."

Hanson was one of five members of the Midland board who served on the merger committee. Others were Glen Garing, Black River Falls, WI; Del Burns, Wausau, WI; Mel Patrie, New Hampton, IA; and Lynn Balback, Springfield. The committee efforts meant a great deal of travel and time spent in meetings and conferences beyond the regular board of directors service.

Now entering the second year of his fourth three-year term as a Midland director, Hanson serves on the executive board as first vice president of the cooperative. Each of Midland's 15 districts has one director on the board. The regular meeting schedule includes a three-day board of directors meeting every other month. Frequently there are special meetings or other commitments related to board service.

For instance, Hanson also serves as Midland's representative on the board of directors of CF Industries, a Chicago-based inter-regional cooperative owned by a number of large cooperatives. CF Industries owns phosphate mines, natural gas production, nitrogen fertilizer production facilities, an ocean-going ship, rail facilities and extensive barge operations. Through the cooperative system farmers are direct owners in these fertilizer production and shipping facilities.

Membership of the CF Industries board has given Hanson additional travel opportunities, participating in visits to mines and other operations owned by the cooperative. In January he will attend the annual meeting of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives in Washington, DC, and his wife, Marge, will be one of 50 women selected for a luncheon meeting with First Lady Nancy Reagan.

In addition, Si serves on the nominating committee for Mutual Service Insurance company as Midland's representative. He also attends district and state meetings of the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives, a state lobbying association.

Like most of the regional cooperative directors, Hanson didn't simply walk in and say he wanted to serve on the board. He has been a member of the board of directors of Comsumers Cooperative — a Midland affiliate — in Thief River Falls for 26 years and has served as chairman for a number of years.

For five or six years prior to his election to the Midland board he was chairman of Midland's District 5, which

Set Hearings On Protected Waters Areas

Explanation of the preliminary plan for protected waters on public and private lands in Marshall county will be presented at hearings to be conducted by the Minnesota department of natural resources at 7 p.m. Wednesday, January 6, in Middle River and Thursday, January 7, in Warren.

Hearing at Middle River will be in the community center while the meeting in Warren will be at the courthouse.

Land owners whose property may be affected by the plan have been notified of the hearing, which is intended to be an informational event. Involved are tracts of land 10 acres of larger in size containing types 3, 4 and 5 wetlands. State law says such lands may not be drained without a permit from the state department of natural resources.

Plan Meetings On Hazardous Waste Sites

Three more meetings have been scheduled in the region to add more members to the committee and advisory group discussing plans and steps to be taken in opposing hazardous waste sites in the region.

Meetings have been held in Goodridge and Grygla and the next three are scheduled as follows: January 5, 7:30 p.m., Hallock, courthouse meeting room; January 7, 7:30 p.m., meeting room of the city auditorium in Thief River Falls; and January 8, 7:30 p.m. in Crookston. Place for the meeting in Crookston has not been confirmed at this date.

Family Loses Home To Fire; Shower Slated

An open house shower for the David Qualey family, which lost its mobile home and all possessions in a fire early Tuesday morning near Goodridge, will be conducted Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Ekelund Lutheran church dining hall near Goodridge.

David Qualey, his wife Lisa, their three-year-old daughter Nicole and three-month-old son Justin fled the mobile home about 4 a.m. Tuesday when fire broke out in the area of the water heater. They escaped in night-clothes and without shoes into the sub-zero cold, got a pickup truck started and drove to the Eugene Fiedler farm about a mile away. Qualey has been employed at the Fiedler farm.

Goodridge fire department responded to the call but was unable to save any of the home or its contents. The family spent Tuesday night at Mrs. Qualey's parents' home, the Harold Sellers of Grygla, and Fiedler is helping David look for rental housing today.

Being sought through the open house shower Sunday are household items, linens and bedding, clothing and other homemaking items. David wears a size 17 shirt, size 38 pants with 32-inch inseam; Lisa wers a size 14 to 16 dress; Nicole wears a size 5 or 6 in children's clothing; and Justin wears baby clothing in the six-months to a year size range.

Friends and neighbors who are sponsoring the open house shower will serve lunch during the 1 to 5 p.m. event.

County Contracts With Hospital For Services

At the recommendation of the county social services board, the Pennington county board of commissioners Tuesday voted to contract for mental health and mental retardation services in 1982 with Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls rather than the Northwestern mental health center in Crookston.

According to county social services director Gary Erickson, the 1982 contract with the day-night psychiatric unit of Northwestern hospital is for a negotiated total of $75,000. Last year the county contracted with the hospital for $33,000 in services in mental health and mental retardation.

Under a unique agreement with the mental health center, the county will receive approximately $30,000 in refunds for unused services in 1981. For 1982 the mental health center had requested a $78,102 contract and offered a $20,000 refund for a net contract of $58,102. A contract equivalent to 1981 with Northwestern hospital would have boosted the total to more than $90,000 for 1982.

With the hospital assuming responsibility for services previously provided by the mental health center, the county should show a savings from 1981 expenditures for mental health and mental retardation in 1982.

Approval of the 1982 contract negotiated with sheriff's

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Kathryn Goodrich And David Madison Wed Here

The Evangelical church in this city was the scene of the recent ceremony uniting Kathryn Goodrich and David Madison in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Goodrich of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Dean Madison of Pine City.

Rev. Donald Peres officiated at the double ring ceremony. Ann Goodrich, sister of the bride, played a flute solo, "Wedding Song," preceding the processional. Paul Carlson, Golden Valley, uncle of the bride, was the organist. He played Lohengren's "Bridal Chorus" for the processional as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. The bride joined the groom in singing "Song for a Christian Wedding" and Ross and Jane McAfee, Pine City, friends of the couple, sang duets, "The Wedding Prayer" and "Make Us One." David Harrison, Rochester, sang "God, A Woman and a Man."

Rev. Donald Ranstrom, Davis, CA, uncle of the bride, read "Prayer for a Bride and Groom" by Louis Paul Evans as the couple knelt in prayer.

Enhancing the chancel setting were candlabras holding leather leaves and babies' breath, with delicate pink bows and looped streamers. Large potted ferns graced the altar rails. The pews were hung with ferns and pink bows.

The bride was attired in a candlelight ivory qiana gown. Her sleeveless gown had an empire waist, and the molded bodice featured a sheer yoke of English tulle edged with a wide band of Schiffli lace, enhanced with pearls and iridescents. The A-line skirt formed a chapel length train and was edged with chantilly lace. Her Montilla style veil was of imported bridal illusion, edged with chantilly lace. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of fresh pink roses, silk stephanotis, babies' breath and leather leaves.

Ann Elizabeth Goodrich served her sister as maid of honor. Her gown of delicate pink flowers on an ivory background featured an off the shoulder ruffle and was trimmed in ivory lace and pink satin ribbon. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and ivory roses, white stephanotis and babies' breath tied with pink satin looped streamers.

Other attendants were Debbie Jacot, Pine City; Kayleen Wetzel, NE; and Michelle Homa, Fremont, NE, college friends of the bride. Their gowns and bouquets matched the maid of honor's attire. Their dainty gold necklaces were a gift from the bride.

The groom was attended by his brother, Doug Madison, as best man. Groomsmen were David Prins, Amboy; Gary Nagel, Madison, WI; and Marc Criley, Pine City, friends of the groom. Serving as ushers were Mark Goodrich, Minneapolis and Craig Goodrich, brothers of the bride; Mark Roubinek, Pine City, friend of the groom; and Bryan Anderson, friend of the bride.

The groom wore an ivory tuxedo with tails, satin lapels and a ruffled shirt. His attendants, as well as the ushers, wore ivory tuxedos and ruffled shirts. Their boutonnieres were of a single pink rose with babies' breath.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of dusty pink. The groom's mother chose a pink dress with a short chiffon cape. Their identical corsages were pink sweetheart roses and babies' breath with an ivory bow.

Honored guests included Mrs. Ruth Jordan of Madison, WI, paternal grandmother of the bride and Mrs. Lillian Carlson, Golden Valley, maternal grandmother of the bride.

Diane Cork served the bride as personal attendant.

A catered dinner, hosted by the parents of the groom, was held at the bride's home following rehearsal the previous evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Carlson, Minneapolis, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Vic Cottrell of Waverly, NE, aunt and uncle of the groom, served as hosts and hostesses for approximately 200 guests attending the reception following the wedding ceremony in the church parlors.

Punch was served by Lynnette Cottrell of Waverly, NE, the groom's cousin, and Cynthia Hess, a friend of the bride. Mrs. Kathy Carlson, aunt of the bride, seated at a lace covered table highlighted with a miniature bride and groom, registered guests as they arrived for the ceremony.

Waitresses at the reception were Jennifer Madison, Joni Madison, Jacqui Madison and Cindy Cottrell, cousins of the groom and Julie Ranstrom, Davis, CA, cousin of the bride. Mary Schroeder, friend of the bride, served as flower person. Gift receivers were Kristin Carlson and Laurie Ranstrom, cousins of the bride.

The four-tiered wedding cake was iced in ivory and featured pink roses, winged cherubs and delicate stringwork on the cake tiers. Topping the cake was a white satin dove and bells. Mrs. Sharon Carlson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Myrna Madison, aunt of the groom, served the wedding cake. Mrs. Roberta Ranstrom and Mrs. Alyce Mae Madison, aunts of the bride and groom poured coffee.

For their honeymoon trip to Winnipeg, the bride wore a white gauze peasant style dress, hand painted with pastel flowers and pearls on the bodice. Fresh flowers adorned her hair.

The couple is at home at 435 S. 10th St., Pine City where the bride attends Pine City Vo-Tech institute will complete a course in fashion and fabric merchandising and management next spring. The bride is a 1980 graduate of Lincoln high school and attended Northwestern college in Roseville. The groom graduated from Pine City high school in 1978 and is presently attending Northwestern college.

Augustine Is Director Of Land O' Lakes

and at least one annual and several other district meetings. He served for seven or eight years on the National Milk Producers Federation, was secretary-treasurer of Cooperative Auditing service of St. Paul, and for 20 years was a director of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association, serving for some time as president. He also served on the board of managers of the Red River Valley winter shows and on the board of the Northwest Dairy Improvement association, sponsor of Northwest Dairy day.

A director and secretary of the Holt Cooperative Creamery association for two years until it closed in 1949, he sold milk to the Thief River Falls Cooperative Creamery association for several years until changing his dairy operation to bulk milk handling. Since the TRF creamery handled only cans of milk, he patronized the Middle River Cooperative Creamery in the 1950's. All were Land O'Lakes affiliated operations, but Augustine earned his membership in the cooperative through the member services division as a customer of the feed mill.

"There were reasons why cooperatives got started and remain strong in the Midwest," Augustine reflects. "Farmers needed better markets for their dairy products, so cooperatives were formed for marketing. Then they needed supplies and organized supply cooperatives. They have done a good job for the family farmer, providing a market for his products and goods and services for his farm operations. And if there were any profits, he shared in the earnings of each of the cooperatives."

When Marlan first joined the Land O'Lakes board in 1958 the cooperative had sales of $188 million. "I couldn't imagine that much money," he said, "and when I told the board president he just told me to knock three zeroes off it and I'd get along fine." Now the cooperative has annual sales of $3.3 billion and with the Midland merger may pass the $4 billion mark in a year or two.

Augustine emphasizes that local cooperatives still have control of their own operations through their local boards. Although he expects the major opportunity for increased efficiency and dollar savings to members will be through local mergers, those decisions will have to be made by the local members and boards.

In addition to Eldon, who is married and living in separate housing on the home farm, the Augustine family includes a son Darryl and daughter Barbara. Darryl is marketing administrator for International Multi-Foods in Minneapolis. Barbara is married to Ronald Moe and they farm near Ashby, raising row crops, beef cattle, hogs and draft horses.

Marlan had told the District 18 membership that he is serving his last term as District 18 director. "I told them the board was all white-haired when I came on it and I want to leave while I'm only grey," he laughed.

Was Land O'Lakes board service a learning experience for him? "It was an education from day one!" he says without hesitation. Then, almost as an after-thought, he adds: "The only thing I can't figure out is why it has taken so long to graduate."

Hanson Serves As Midland Vice President

includes northwestern Minnesota from the Canadian and North Dakota borders south through Clay and Becker counties and east through Beltrami and Hubbard counties. The District 5 chairmanship is now held by Roy Nelson, Goodridge area dairy farmer who is also vice chairman of the Consumers Cooperative board in Thief River Falls.

His local and district service qualified him for the regional directorship and resulted in his election in 1971. As part of his responsibilities in the regional directorship, he presents reports to the district at three out of four quarterly meetings each year. Not only does he bring information from Midland, he encourages members and local managers to share their ideas and problems as well as opinions on strengths of the cooperative.

During his terms on the Midland board, Hanson has witnessed growth of the cooperative from sales of $100 million in 1971 to $523.5 million in 1981. "Co-ops are one way a farmer can have something to say about the way his products are marketed and his supplies are purchased," Hanson said.

Hanson was born in this community and presently owns a 640-acre farm in Silverton township as well as operating an insurance business. The Hansons have a son, Ross, who is married and living in Waconia while working out of the Green Giant food company offices in the Pillsbury building in Minneapolis. Their daughter Linnae is married to Mark Enge and lives near the Hanson home east of Thief River Falls.

Under terms of the merger, the Midland board will be "frozen" for the 1982 calendar year. At the annual meetings of Land O'Lakes in 1983, a new district system and board election procedure will go into effect. That redistricting and procedure will be developed during the coming year.

Hanson could be eligible for election to the reorganized Land O'Lakes board at the 1983 annual meeting. He will be 64 years old then, and Land O'Lakes by-laws specify that no board member can be elected after reaching 65 years of age.

Plans Made For Distribution Of Surplus Cheese

Secretary of agriculture John R. Block recently announced plans to implement President Reagan's authorized release of 30 million pounds of cheese to states for distribution to non-profit organizations for households in need.

U.S. department of agriculture's food and nutrition service regional offices will respond to state requests for commodities through state distribution agents who customarily handle commodities for schools and institutions.

"The food and nutrition service distribution network for commodity programs will be used to the maximum extent possible," Block said. Agriculture stabilization and conservation service will ship the cheese in trucks or railroad car lots to central locations serving as delivery points.

Charitable, non-profit organizations, including food banks, will make cheese available at the local level. Churches and other non-profit groups customarily operate food banks.

These groups will be eligible to participate in the cheese distribution program if they have adequate storage facilities and record-keeping ability as determined by the state.

Additionally, under the farm bill signed by Reagan, food and nutrition service has authority to distribute cheese and other bonus dairy commodities, non-fat dry milk and butter, to Title III elderly program and child care facilities.

A Farmer's Prayer

At the end of a year which has not been a good one for farmers in this area, the following farmer's prayer should be easy to understand:

"As farmers, dear God, give us the patience and wisdom to understand why a pound of steak at $2.80 is 'high' but a cocktail at $1.50 is O.K.

"And Lord, help me to understand why $3 for a ticket to a movie isn't bad but $5 for a bushel of wheat that makes 50 loaves of bread is considered unreasonable.

"A 50-cent soft drink at the ball game is acceptable, but a 20-cent glass of milk for breakfast is inflationary.

"Cotton is too high at 65 cents a pound but a $20 shirt is viewed as a bargain.

"And corn is too steep at three cents worth in a box of corn flakes, but the flakes are sold at a restaurant for 50 cents a serving.

"Also, Lord, help me to understand why I have to give an easement to the gas company so it can cross my property with its gas lines, and before they get them installed the price of gas has doubled.

"And while you're at it, dear God, please help me understand the consumer who drives by my field and raises his eyes when he sees me driving a $30,000 tractor that he helped put together, so he could make money and drive down the right-of-way they took from me to build a road so he could go hunting and skiing."

"Amen."

On Second Thought . . .

Following was written by Lloyd Mathews, editor of the Empire Press which served Waterville and Wenatchee, Washington:

It occurs to me that all of us are taking part in one of the greatest detective mysteries of all time.

Nobody has been able to crack this case yet — not the FBI, not the CIA, not even Scotland Yard.

They're all looking for clues, of course — but this one is so tough that not even Sam Spade and Clint Eastwood could do it justice.

Consider these facts:

Only a decade ago, the United States was a happy and prosperous country. It was known as "the land of plenty."

Plenty of money, that is.

There was a chicken in every pot and two snowmobiles in every garage. All the women were beautiful, and all the men were strong and silent.

Things were so wonderful in those days that even Howard Cosell had a pleasing personality.

But the forces of crime and-or evil were at work.

And slowly, bit by bit, it all went sour.

People started going broke.

The cities went broke.

The counties went broke.

The states went broke.

And finally, the federal government itself went broke, with its debt up to $1 trillion.

Somebody had stolen all our money.

Looking back, it seems incredible that such a vast amount of money could disappear without anyone seeing the thieves. But that's exactly what happened.

When this colassal theft was first noticed, all the major investigative agencies in the world went to work on the case.

But they've all come up empty-handed. There's nobody in custody, and not a clue to be found anywhere.

That doesn't mean there aren't suspects, though.

Everybody has a suspect. And everybody is a suspect.

Taxpayers think the government did it, stealing their money through taxes.

Internal Revenue thinks the taxpayers did it, stowing their money away where IRS couldn't get its hands on it.

The President thinks the Congress did it, throwing money away on projects that should be handled by the private sector.

Congress thinks the bureaucrats did it, stealing the money for use in their own little departments.

Ralph Nader thinks the oil companies and other big corporations did it. He keeps offering evidence, but nobody pays any attention to him.

The oil companies say the Arabs did it.

The Arabs say they're innocent, but they've offered to chop off the hands of whoever did it.

New York City baseball fans claim Reggie Jackson is the culprit, taking more money than he could ever have use for — or ever be worth.

Other suspects include the banks, computers and the Artesians.

Peronally, I think it's like an old Agatha Christie novel I once read — everybody did it.

Obviously, the job was too big for one individual or one corporation. After all, there used to be a lot of money in this country.

But the world's greatest detectives have been using economists and the economists are trying to find a single culprit.

That just isn't going to work.

And as soon as the authorities figure that out, we're in for some real problems.

Now that we're so impoverished, where are we going to get the money to build a jail that big?

Who Screams Loudest?

Following comments are from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

Ever wonder why government bureaucrats are among those screaming the loudest over cuts in funding for social welfare programs: Consider these recent quotes from William E. Simon, a former U.S. cabinet member:

"From 1965 to 1976 the amount of government money spent for 'social welfare' functions exploded from $77 billion a year to more than $331 billion — an increase of better than $250 billion. If we had taken this $250 billion increase and simply given it to the 25 million poor people, we could have given each and every one of them an annual grant of $10,000 — which, for a family of four, is an income of $40,000 a year.

We could have made all those people relatively rich. But we didn't. So where is the money?

Prominent among those receiving such funds are people that ponder the methods of helping poor people or administer government programs that allegedly render services to them.

"So, to the extent that we increase funding for such programs, we are actually transferring money from people who are relatively poor — the taxpayers — to the people who are relatively rich — people who work for, or with, the government."

And here's another figure that should shock you — Actuarial estimates show that taxpayers now contribute $4.50 for every $1 a person on the federal payroll pays toward his or her pension. Federal pensions are soaring to astronomical heights because of twice-a-year indexing for inflation.

And some of the biggest beneficiaries of the soaring pensions are former congressmen who wrote and passed the pension laws. A former Massachusetts representative in the U.S. House retired in 1973 after 14 years in Congress. His pension was $1,560 per month. Within 2½ years it rose to $2,095. As of right now his pension is $3,420 per month. He estimated it will soar to $6,000 a month by 1990 given an inflation rate of only six per cent per year.

Playing With TV News

It was interesting to read a column by Tom Braden a short time ago, following the announcement by a television network that it would increase its evening newscast from half an hour to an hour. The network indicated it planned in depth coverage with greater explanation.

"Nonsense," Braden wrote. "Stories will be covered strictly in accordance with how they play. . . There are certain things which television covers very well. Action scenes. Mob scenes. Quick statements by prominent people. Quick questions and quick answers. These play.

"But if you want a full explanation, if you want thorough understanding, if you want to examine both sides of the question, if you want authoritative opinion expressed in logic requiring more than a couple of sentences you'll still have to read your newspaper."

Braden should known. He derives part of his livelihood from television and he claims no prejudice against it. But he points out that many major news items — which receive columns of type in the daily papers — are given only a line or two from a television announcer while film is being readied for something that will "play".

That is the situation which will continue with television news whether time available is half an hour or a full hour or more. "The moment the news is not exciting nor dramatic, the moment it won't 'play', it will cease to be news," Braden says.

Interesting Opinions:

AMERICAN CHRISTMAS was observed this year by Carlos Parra Garcia of Mexico City, who spent Christmas eve at the Tress Noel home here and Christmas day at the Herman Knoll residence in Stephen. Carlos was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lawson and family of Enderlin, ND. Mrs. Lawson is the former Linda Noel. Carlos lived with the Lawson family in 1979 for two months through the Intercabio program of the Catholic church. This year the 14-year-old told his parents all he wanted for Christmas was to spend it in the United States with the Lawson family. He will visit here until January 6. Veto Message

Last week I vetoed the bill passed by the DFL-controlled Legislature aimed at solving Minnesota's budget problems by tremendously increasing state taxes.

Not only did the DFL bill go too far in increasing the tax burden of our citizens, but it also did too little to reduce government expenditures.

In view of the economic conditions confronting our workers, farmers and business-people, I was appalled that the bill only reduced government expenditures by $261 million, while proposing that more than $650 million of our budget problem be met through tax increases or deferred into future years (see chart).

The DFL bill represents a permanent tax hike that will result in over $800 million in tax increases in the next 3½ years (see chart).

There is no good time to add to the burden of the taxpayer, but economic hard times are the worst time to do so.

We must act decisively to meet a projected budget problem of $768 million by the end of the current biennium in June 1983. The problem is the result of a severe national recession and the overextension of state programs. The state has guaranteed support for many programs when it cannot guarantee the revenue will be forthcoming.

The plan I proposed last month to meet these problems is a decisive plan. It recognizes that the economy may weaken even more, so now is the time to reduce our spending base.

My plan calls for a cut in state spending of more than $630 million.

To lessen the immediate effect of the proposed cuts on local governments, school districts and higher education, my plan included the creation of a State Aids Stabilization Authority. This authority would enable local governments, schools, colleges and universities, if they so choose, to spread up to half the amount of the reduction over five years.

Also, to lessen the blow, my plan proposes that state agencies, as much as possible, meet the cutback through attrition rather than layoffs.

My proposal relies on the ability of local officials to achieve spending cuts in the programs and services they manage.

DFL leaders, however, have persisted in claiming that for every dollar of local aid that is cut, a new dollar of property taxes will have to be raised. They have thrown around predictions of huge property tax increases of more than $500 million with partisan carelessness. This is nonsense.

DFL leaders assume that local communities would rather raise taxes than cut their expenses.

My plan will result in deep cuts in spending at all levels of government. The DFL plan will not.

The DFL plan focuses on big increases in income taxes at a time when Minnesotans already pay one of the highest income tax rates in the United States, and the DFL intend to hide the increase by changing the indexing that has already occurred. Indexing prevents your income taxes from going up faster than inflation.

My plan, on the other hand, recognizes that in order for taxes to be kept as low as possible, taxpayers must understand the real cost of local services. It returns greater discretion to local communities.

Because the DFL bill was seriously flawed, I vetoed it. However, we will not solve our recession-caused budget problems until some kind of plan is passed by the Legislature and signed into law by me. Therefore, Independent-Republican leaders and I stand ready to work with DFL leaders in coming up with an agreeable bill.

Retirement Nest Egg

With the exception of Jack Benny — who never got past his 39th birthday — all of us face the prospect of planning for our retirement years.

Your retirement years could be a lot brighter if you start now to take advantage of one of the most important changes in the 1981 tax reform legislation.

The changes make Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) available to virtually every working person. Also, the amount of earnings that you can contribute to your IRA is increased.

What does all this mean to the average working person? It means that you can start accumulating a retirement nest egg without paying a single penny in taxes during your earning years.

The new law takes effect Jan. 1, 1982, and it's a big break for people who want to save for their own retirement, for example, working husband and wife, both 40 years old, can each start putting up to $2,000 a year in an IRA. If they earn 9 per cent interest, by the time they retire at age 65 they would have a combined total of $369,296. And, they won't pay a cent in taxes on either their investment of their earnings until they retire and start drawing out the funds. By that time they will almost certainly be in a lower tax bracket.

What is an IRA, how does it work and who is eligible? Here are the answers to some of the most important questions about your future security.

What is an IRA? An IRA is a retirement nest egg account. Taxes on the savings and investments are deferred until the worker retires (at age 59½ or later) and starts drawing income from the account.

Who is eligible? After Jan. 1, 1982, any worker can set up an IRA, even if the person is covered by an employer's pension plan or a Keogh plan. Previously, IRA's were limited to persons who were not covered by a pension or Keogh plan.

How much can you contribute to an IRA? The new law allows an individual to put up to 100 per cent of your wages — up to $2,000 per year — into an IRA. For example, even if you only work part time and make $2,100 in 1982, you can still put $2,000 into an IRA.

How about an IRA for your spouse? If you and your spouse are both employed in paying jobs, you each can establish an IRA and contribute up to $2,000 per person every year. If your spouse is not employed, separate accounts can still be set up for both of you. You can contribute up to $2,250 to the IRAs. That amount can be split any way you like between the two accounts, as long as no more than $2,000 per year goes into one of the accounts.

What are the benefits of an IRA? The biggest advantage is the tax break. The money you put into an IRA is tax deductible. If you put $2,000 into an IRA, you get a $2,000 tax deduction. If your tax rate is 25 per cent, that means a $500 tax savings — a savings that is available even if you don't itemize your deductions. On top of that tax savings, the earnings on your investments are not taxed until you withdraw the money. By that time, you will likely be in a lower tax bracket. Of course, the biggest advantage is that you are saving for a secure retirement. Two thousand dollars a year builds a big nest egg in a surprisingly short time.

What are the drawbacks? If any of the money in your IRA is withdrawn before you reach 59½ years of age — unless you become permanently disabled — you will be penalized 10 per cent of the amount withdrawn. In addition, you will have to pay ordinary income tax on the amount withdrawn.

Where can you set up an IRA account? IRAs can be established at banks, savings, and loan institutions, mutual funds, money market funds and other financial institutions that offer IRAs. Under certain conditions you can switch your IRA from one account to another, but be sure to check with a qualified financial adviser before making any changes. Also, under the new law, your employer can modify the company's retirement plan so that you can voluntarily contribute extra money to the pension plan where you work and still qualify for the benefits of an IRA.

What happens if you die before retirement? An IRA is treated like other property; in other words, it goes to your beneficiaries but is not included in your estate for tax purposes provided that the money is paid out on a regular basis over a period of at least three years. Important changes that we won in the area of estate tax reform mean that you can leave your IRA to your spouse in a lump sum and not be taxed.

What about divorce? Another important change we made (this came out of my Economic Equity Act) is available to non-earning divorced spouses who had IRAs for at least five years while they were married. In these cases a divorced wife will be able to continue making contributions to her account of up to $1,125 per year from her alimony.

$69.5 Million Is Released For Fuel Aid

Congressional approval of a new continuing appropriations resolution will release a total of $69.5 million to Minnesota for low income energy assistance.

Continuing resolution, signed by President Reagan, sets the federal appropriation at $1.752 billion nationally of $352 million more than the administration's requested level of $1.4 billion.

As part of the total allocation, the Minnesota department of economic security received a grant award of $13.8 million in November and now has received an additional $13.8 million. Minnesota should have received 60 per cent of the funds by Christmas.

Local agencies statewide began taking applications for energy assistance December 1. Applications are accepted at either the local community action agency or the county social service department.

Quie noted the energy assistance program will give priority consideration to low income elderly and handicapped persons.

More than 116,000 low income households received energy assistance last year.

"The diligent efforts of Minnesota's congressional delegation to obtain passage of the appropriation should be commended," Quie said.

State Lands Are Leased For Development

State executive council has approved the economic development of certain state lands by private enterprises by awarding peat and copper-nickel mining leases and by approving the sale of a tract of timber, according to Gov. Al Quie.

"Just as the iron ore and taconite industries have added tremendously to the state's economy, we must continue to develop the other natural resources that we're fortunate to have within our boundaries," Quie said.

Fleet Development Management Corp., Mora, was awarded a peat mining lease for 25 years on 629 acres in St. Louis county.

Lehmann Exploration Management, Inc., a Minnesota corporation, was awarded a copper-nickel mining lease for 50 years on 200 acres in Beltrami county.

Approval was given to the department of natural resources to sell a timber stand of black spruce covering about 130 acres in Beltrami county. Tract of timber, appraised at approximately $40,000, will be offered at auction next year.

Legal Services Explains 'As Is' Products

"Implied warranties," "Limited warranties," "Warranties of Merchantability," and "Warranties of fitness for a particular purpose" are all warranties which usually protect you when you purchase consumer goods. However, if you sign a contract that says sold "as is", you give up your right to protection under these warranties, according to the Central Minnesota legal services community legal education program.

"As is," means that the product you bought doesn't have to work. It can have parts missing and if it breaks down, the seller is under no obligation to fix it or replace it. "As is" or "with all faults" contracts are often used in the sale of used cars. In certain cases, "as is" may mean that the car is in such bad shape that it could fall apart as soon as it's driven off the lot. If this happens, there are no warranties to force the seller to fix the car.

Sometimes consumers purchase items without signing a written contract. If no "as is" notice is posted or given to you, you will still have warranties imposed by law, (such as the "warranty of merchantability"). Unless you give up this warranty by signing an "as is" contract, or by receiving an "as is" notice, the item must do what it was manufactured to do, i.e., a toaster must toast.

Beware of "as is" contracts, although they are legal, you may be harmed by purchasing something that doesn't work. If you are not sure what a contract means, ask for an explanation. If you are still dissatisfied, you probably should not sign the contract.

It pays to know and use the law. (This information by the Community Legal Education Program of Central Minnesota Legal Services is meant to help you learn your rights, but does not provide complete answers to individual legal problems. If you need legal help, see your family attorney or call your legal service office which serves low-income persons.)

THE NEW TAX-DEFERRED INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS — IRA'S

It's nice to have someone take care of you. But it's even nicer to feel confident that you can take care of yourself. Especially when you retire.

To start building that confidence, talk to the professionals at the Northern State Bank about setting up a tax-deferred (IRA) individual retirement account.

Starting in 1982, IRA's will be available to almost everyone. You don't have to be rich to afford an Individual Retirement account. Anyone in any walk of life can have the IRA's. You can deposit any amount up to $2,000 per year. We'll even help you set up a convenient payment schedule. Letting you make your deposits by the week, by the month, or whatever suits you best.

You then deduct the annual investment from your taxable income. And no federal taxes on the interest until you start withdrawing funds (minimum age 59½).

Then you retire and really lead the life of Riley.

For complete details about the new IRA's, talk to the professionals at the Northern State Bank. Then you won't have to worry about the social insecurity tomorrow.

Next Year Get 'Em All

Dave is such an avid bowler he spends New Year's eve at the alley. Jokingly he says "I've gotta practice because next year I'm gonna get 'em all."

Many of us look at next year with similar hopes. We want to excel. We want things to be perfect. We want our every effort crowned with success.

But Dave knows 1982 won't bring all strikes — and we know it will not fulfil all our superlative hopes.

The beginning of a new year is a time to evaluate our goals, measure them against what God expects of us, and seek His help in achieving right aims and purposes.

Before the New Year begins, and after it is underway, the church is where we all should be seeking what it takes to make 1982 a better year.

REPORT

Small businesses are essential to the growth and vitality of the nation's rural and urban economies. Nationally, the 12 million small business operations in the United States account for over 97 per cent of all American companies.

Small businesses generate jobs. Data from Fortune Magazine shows that the nation's 1,000 largest corporations contributed only half of one per cent of the new jobs created from 1969 to 1976. In the same period, businesses with fewer than 500 employees generated 86.7 per cent of the private sector's new jobs. The majority of these companies were businesses with 20 or fewer employees.

The Private Industry council believes that the creation of jobs in rural Minnesota is directly linked to the health of the local business economy. If each of the more than 20,000 small businesses in rural Minnesota could create only one new job through growth and expansion, Minnesota's unemployment problems would be significantly reduced.

Besides the generation of jobs, small businesses affect the economic well being of rural towns and cities in rich and diverse ways. Small businesses in rural areas typically are operated by the people who started and own them. Such owner-managers involve themselves in the day-to-day operations of their businesses. They know employees by name and deal face to face with customers, suppliers and neighbors every day. They are often accountable to their local townspeople in ways that large corporations do not have to be. Most owner-managers have a stake in the well-being of their local communities and participate actively in civic affairs.

Numerous studies comparing the quality of life in rural towns composed of small businesses with that of rural towns dominated by large corporations headquartered and owned elsewhere indicate that the former have healthier and higher income levels, more balanced and stable economic lives, and greater civic participation. Another important advantage is that a broad base of small enterprises gives communities a cushion of relative self-sufficiency against slow-downs in the nation's economy.

The PIC has developed a guide entitled "Financing Small Business in Rural Minnesota". Subjects covered are: "Writing a Business Plan", "Using the Banks", "Working with the SBA", "Private Sources of Financing", "Other Public Sources", "Hiring Incentives and Tax Credits" and "Where to Get Help".

Soo Line Sun Powered RR Signals Tested

Railroad grade crossing signals powered by the sun are now undergoing extensive testing on a Soo branch line in North Dakota.

Signal installation, located on State Trunk Highway 32 near Dahlen, is the first on Soo Line's seven-state system to use solar cells to generate all the electricity needed to operate the signals.

In technical terms, the solar system is called a "photo voltaic power generator." It uses an array of five solar energy panels to gather the suns rays and convert them to electricity to power conventional signal equipment and charge batteries. During daylight hours, the solar panels charge batteries as well as provide direct power to raise and lower crossing gates, operate warning lights and activate bells. At night, batteries provide power for the signals.

While the solar system puts out its maximum power during bright sunny days, it will continue to generate electricity during days when skies are overcast. A standby power capability provided by the batteries enables the signals to continue to operate through a 15-day period if insufficient sunlight is available to power the equipment.

Solar-equipped signals offer an alternative for powering signal installations in rural areas where conventional electric service is either costly to provide or not readily available. In many cases the cost of solar equipment compares favorably with the expense of running electric lines over long distances to a signal installation.

System went into operation in May and is being closely monitored to determine its performance. A second set of solar powered signals is planned for installaton next spring on Soo's mainline near Lowry. Its design requires the use of 10 solar panels to generate power for signal use.

Only Laws Enforced Are 'Useful' Ones

Laws, as they appear in law books, often contain words such as prohibit, prevent, must, may not or illegal. These words may be misleading to most people. It is a common belief that because a law exists and because it mandates certain action, people will automatically comply. This is often not true; it may be up to you to ensure the law is followed. Laws in and of themselves are not "magic".

By being aware of your legal rights, you may discourage other people from discriminating against you, denying you benefits, or breaking other laws. Some merchants, whether through ignorance or because of disrespect for the law, violate your legal rights. If no one complains or takes action, nothing will be done. You must, (1) understand laws that protect you; (2) question whether your legal rights are being infringed upon; and (3) challenge lawbreakers.

Very often, if you assert yourself, the illegal behavior will be stopped. Later if you still cannot resolve the problem hire an attorney. He or she will refer to the law, use it when representing you and ask the court to enforce it. Only laws which are enforced are "useful". (This information by the Community Legal Education Program of Central Minnesota Legal Services is meant to help you learn your rights, but does not provide complete answers to individual legal problems. If you need legal help, see your family attorney or call your legal service office which serves low-income persons.)

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, would you please answer a very important question for me? My relatives and I argue every year about whether it is right for a Christian to drink alcoholic beverages or not. Would you please answer from the Bible how you feel about this.

A. The Bible is very clear on this subject, if you are searching for the truth and not for excuses. I am convinced that it is wrong to drink any alcoholic beverages for pleasure or entertainment.

The Bible teaches that there are three kinds of wine mentioned in the scriptures. 1. A New wine or sweet wine which we call grape juice, the fruit of the wine which was used at the last supper, freshly squeezed, unfermented. 2. A Drinking wine, which was 4 parts water and one part wine. The wine was put into the water to purify the contaminated water of that day. 3. A Fermented wine, a wine that is alcoholic, and intoxicates, inebriates, excites the spirits, disorders the senses, dulls the intellect, and demoralizes a persons character, just to name a few.

The Bible definitely teaches that Spiritual leaders are not to drink intoxicating beverages, and were to set a good example before their people.

Leviticus 10:9-10 says to the priest, "Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations: and that ye may put a difference between holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean."

I Timothy 3:3 mentions that pastors are not to be given to wine (the intoxicating kind).

Proverbs 23:29 L. B. says "Whose heart is filled with anguish and sorrow? Who is always fighting and quarreling? Who is the man with bloodshot eyes and many wounds? It is the one who spends long hours in the taverns, trying out new mixtures. Don't let the sparkle and the smooth taste of strong wine deceive you. For in the end it bites like a poisonous serpent; it stings like an adder."

Proverbs 20:1 says "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Habakkuk 2:15 says "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him, and makest him drunken also, that thou mayest look on their nakedness."

Isaiah 28:7 teaches "But they also have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way; the priest and the prophet have erred through strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine, they are out of, the way through strong drink; they err in vision, they stumble in judgement."

Luke 1:15 says "John the Baptist was to neither drink wine nor strong drink during his ministry."

During the Old Testament period anyone who wanted to be Holy and live close to God, took a Nazarite Vow: They were to seperate themselves from wine and strong drink, and shall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of strong drink, neither shall they drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moist drapes, or dried; all the days of his separation he is holy unto the Lord.

I trust that we as Christians will try to live just as holy in our generation.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

WATCH YOUR ENERGY

YOU MAY BE ABLE TO SAVE SOME ENERGY WITHOUT REALLY UPSETTING YOUR LIFESTYLE IF YOU PAY ATTENTION TO THESE FOUR SUGGESTIONS FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH.

USE THE VENTILATOR FANS IN YOUR KITCHEN AND BATHROOM SPARINGLY DURING THE HEATING SEASON. IN JUST ONE HOUR THEY CAN BLOW AWAY A HOUSEFUL OF WARMED AIR.

DON'T LET HEATED AIR GO UP YOUR CHIMNEY. IF YOU'RE USING YOUR FIREPLACE AND YOUR HEATING SYSTEM, CLOSE OFF THE ROOM THE FIREPLACE IS IN AND OPEN A WINDOW NEAR THE FIRE ABOUT AN INCH.

A GLASS FRONT OR A GLASS SCREEN INSTALLED OVER AN OPEN FIREPLACE CAN PREVENT THE LOSS OF WARM AIR THROUGH THE FLUE AND STILL PRESENT YOU WITH THE BEAUTY OF A FIRE.

IF YOU HAVE A FORCED AIR HEATING SYSTEM, CHECK THE DUCT WORK FOR AIR LEAKS ANUALLY. A SMALL LEAK MAY BE COVERED WITH DUCT TAPE. INSULATION OF DUCTS SAVES ENERGY ALSO. THESE TIPS ARE FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH—AN ENERGY EFFICIENCY PROGRAM FROM THE ELECTRIC UTILITY INDUSTRY.

WATCH YOUR ENERGY
WANT TO BE ENERGY EFFICIENT? HERE ARE TWO SUGGESTIONS FOR YOU.
FOR SAFETY'S SAKE, AS WELL AS TO USE ENERGY EFFICIENTLY, NEVER LEAVE AN IRON ON ALONE. IF YOU MUST STOP IRONING TO ANSWER THE PHONE, THE DOOR, OR A FAMILY MEMBER, SHUT THE APPLIANCE OFF.
IF YOU HAVE A FOOD DISPOSER, RUN IT WITH COLD WATER, NOT HOT. COLD WATER SOLIDIFIES GREASE SO IT CAN BE GROUND UP AND FLUSHED AWAY, MAKING THE APPLIANCE WORK BETTER. THESE TIPS ARE FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH—AN ENERGY EFFICIENCY PROGRAM FROM THE ELECTRIC UTILITY INDUSTRY.

It's beginning to sound like a broken record: good defense, no offense.

Those words were used repeatedly this past fall when discussing both the Lincoln high school and Northland community college football teams. Both the Prowlers and Northmen played outstanding defense, but could muster little if any offense as they struggled through losing seasons.

Now the same label has been tagged on the Lincoln high school basketball team. Through four games the Prowlers' defense has been solid, giving up just 42.5 points per game. Bill Musselman wrote a book and got a job as the University of Minnesota basketball coach by getting his Ashland, Ohio team defensive average down to 39.9.

But the Prowlers are averaging a miserable 38.3 points per game on offense. They broke the 40-point barrier only once (a 41-40 win over Grafton) in their first four games. Last night three minutes of overtime didn't produce a thing in a 41-37 loss to Warren.

"The offense is there," insists Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt, "but the ball just isn't falling in for us. We had good shots," he said after the Prowlers finished a 17-for-45 night shooting (38 per cent), "but they just wouldn't go in. I hope it's not contagious."

Still, it's hard to be down on a team that works as hard as the Prowlers do on defense.

"I have to praise the kids for their hustle and determination," said Hunt. "They play hard; they never give up."

Thief River Falls, after returning to the sparkling University of Minnesota-Crookston gymnasium for the second half of the two-day, four-team UMC holiday classic tonight (Wednesday) against Argyle, opens its 1981-82 Northwest Athletic Conference schedule Friday, January 8, when the Prowlers host rival Bemidji.

The new UMC facility is impressive. The spacious complex, which will seat about 3,000 spectators, will house the 1982 Region 8A boys and girls basketball tournaments.

Top Hockey Teams Visit TRF

Top-notch hockey teams will be visiting the Thief River Falls sports arena within the next week as Northland community college and Lincoln high school teams tackle highly-regarded opponents.

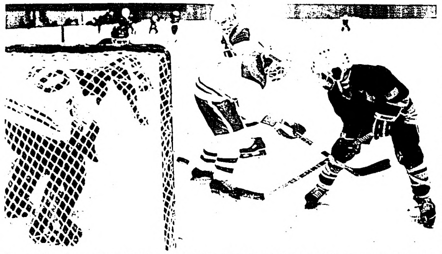
Concordia, one of the best small-college hockey teams in the country, will be in Thief River Falls to play Northland Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. The Cobbers might be too much for the Northmen, but the series could provide some great hockey for interested fans.

East Grand Forks, ranked behind Roseau in the state-wide Associated Press power poll, but considered the top team in northwestern Minnesota right now by Section 8 high school hockey followers, visits Thief River Falls Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. game against Lincoln.

It'll be a tough assignment for the young Prowlers, who have had their ups and downs this winter. The 7-0 Green Wave is rolling right now and the Prowlers will have to come up with an outstanding game to stay with them. But again, there promises to be some great hockey.

Miscellaneous

+Under the direction of second-year head coach Mark Storhaug, a former Lincoln high school swimming standout, the Bemidji girls high school swimming team completed its best season ever in 1981, finishing 9-1 in dual meet competition. The Lumberjills, who had topped the .500 mark just once in seven previous seasons, lost only a teachers strike forfeit-decision to Park Rapids, a team they had swamped 54-29 earlier in the season.



FINAL GOAL of the game was scored by Thief River Falls' Jim Brieland, who shot the puck past Roseau goalie Sid Thompson at 12:59 of the third period during Monday's Bantam A match-up in the McDonald's Pee-Wee A, Bantam A hockey tournament being played in Thief River Falls. Roseau won the game 7-3. Eight Pee-Wee A teams and eight Bantam A teams competed in the three-day event that was scheduled to be completed today (Wednesday) in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Prowlers Lose To Red River 7-4

Thief River Falls' stretch of strong hockey, which had produced successive wins over Bemidji, Fargo South and Moorhead, continued through the first period Tuesday against Grand Forks Red River as the Prowlers and Roughriders skated to a 2-2 draw. But the string ended there, and Red River finished with a 7-4 victory in the Grand Forks arena.

"We played a very good first period, and apparently decided to take the rest of the night off," reported Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who watched the Prowlers' record level at 3-3 with the loss. They tackle highly regarded East Grand Forks Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

Thief River Falls, after giving up an early goal to the Roughriders' Paul Norgart, went ahead 2-1 in the first period on goals by Tom Kenville and Rick Engelstad spaced just 55 seconds apart. Red River got a 2-2 tie out of it, though, when Jens Gjerset scored in the final minute of the period.

Red River's Tom Montgomery and Thief River Falls' Jerry Hallamek matched second period goals for a 3-3 game, but the Roughriders scored twice in a 33-second span on goals by Montgomery and Dan Richards to go ahead 5-3.

Mitch Semanko pulled Thief River Falls within 5-4 by scoring at the 14:58 mark of the second period, but that's as close as the Prowlers got. Montgomery completed a hat trick performance at 3:12 of the third period and Richards hit an open net at 14:16 to wrap it up.

The Roughriders out-shot the Prowlers 41-19.

Pee-Wee, Bantam Finals Today

Finals were scheduled to be played today (Wednesday) in the McDonald's Pee-Wee A and Bantam A hockey tournament being played in Thief River Falls.

Eight Pee-Wee A teams and eight Bantam A squads competed in two-division, round-robin scheduling Monday and Tuesday to determine today's finals in the sports arena that matched the River East Royals of Winnipeg against Bemidji at 11 a.m. in the Pee-Wee A championship game, while the Winnipeg Monarchs played International Falls at 1 p.m. for the Bantam A crown.

In third place games earlier this morning, Crookston and Brandon, Man. met for Pee-Wee A honors, while East Grand Forks and Roseau battled for the Bantam A spot.

River East Royals reached the Pee-Wee A finals with a perfect 3-0 record within the American Division where they beat Thief River Falls 6-2, blanked Crookston 8-0 and shut out Warroad 8-0. Bemidji got the nod over Brandon for the National Division title game berth by beating Brandon 5-2 while tying Fergus Falls 2-2 and playing to a 5-5 draw with International Falls. Brandon was 2-1 in the close National Division finish.

Winnipeg Monarchs breezed through the American Division with a 3-0 record to reach the Bantam A finals, beating Roseau 10-1, Crookston 12-2 and Thief River Falls 7-4. International Falls advanced through the National Division by beating Fergus Falls 7-1 and East Grand Forks 9-5 while losing to Bemidji 7-3. The Bemidji squad, coached by Thief River Falls native John Wangberg, missed a spot in the finals and the third place game as well when East Grand Forks scored with just one second remaining on a long shot that was deflected into the net by a Bemidji defenseman in a first-day 5-5 tie.

Host Thief River Falls teams found wins hard to come by. In Pee-Wee A play, Thief River Falls was winless in three tries, losing to Crookston 8-2, the River East Royals 6-2 and Warroad 3-2. In Bantam A play, Thief River Falls opened with a 15-5 win over Crookston, but lost to Roseau 7-3 and fell to the Winnipeg Monarchs 7-4.

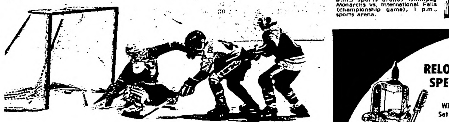
National Division standings — International Falls 2-1-0; East Grand Forks 1-1-1; Bemidji 1-1-1; Fergus Falls 1-2-0.

Today's games — Roseau vs. East Grand Forks (third place), 9 a.m., sports arena; Winnipeg Monarchs vs. International Falls (championship game), 1 p.m., sports arena.



GREAT GOALTENDING by Shayne Anderson, like this save against Peter Dobrowolski of the River East Royals, kept Thief River Falls in the game Monday, but the Winnipeg-area team eventually won by a 7-3 score. The Pee-Wee A game played in the old arena was part of the McDonald's Pee-Wee A, Bantam A youth hockey tournament played in Thief River Falls, Monday, Tuesday and today.

Saturday-Sunday Hockey Series . . .

Concordia Skaters To Test Northland Squad

Northland community college hockey team will take a step up on the ladder of competition this weekend when the Northmen end their two-week holiday break by hosting Concordia college of Moorhead in a two-game weekend series in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Game times will be 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Let it be understood that the Northmen will be facing the Cobbers' varsity. They play the Bemidji State University junior varsity for the second time Monday at 6 p.m. at Bemidji, but since Concordia doesn't field a junior varsity program, coach Al Rice will bring his main guns here, a perennially strong squad that placed third in the 1981 NCAA Division II national tournament.

The Cobbers are staffed by a large contingent of Roseau high school products who will renew their rivalry with 12 Thief River Falls skaters, plus three Warroad graduates and two East Grand Forks alumni on the Northland roster.

"We're looking forward to the games," said Northland coach Tom Goddard, who indicated the Northmen like

BUMPED BY Warren defender Brian Ljunggren as he tried to maneuver near the base line, Thief River Falls' Randy Naeseth drew a foul and wound up making one of two free throws in the second quarter of Tuesday's high school basketball game played in the University of Minnesota-Crookston holiday classic. The Ponies edged the Prowlers 41-37 in overtime.

Deer Harvest Highest In 13 Years, Says DNR

Firearms deer hunters registered 89,656 deer this fall, according to Joseph Alexander, commissioner of Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. The figure is up 31 per cent from the 1980 registration, he said.

Total deer harvest last year was 77,000 after adjustment to the rate of registration. Using the same registration rate, this would mean a total harvest of 101,000 deer in 1981, the highest since 1968, said the commissioner.

Rate of registration is determined by surveys conducted during several months following each season.

Preliminary count of firearms deer licenses sold this year is reported by county auditors to be 373,000. The final tally for 1980 was 348,124.

"Based on these figures, the final success ratio will be around 27 per cent," the commissioner said. It was 18 per cent in 1979 and 23 per cent last year.

Increasing deer harvest is a result of the expanding deer population over most of the state, said Alexander.

"The relatively mild winters of the past three years and state hunting regulations that limit the number of does taken are primarily responsible for the increase."

Area Sports Teams Re-Open Schedules

Area high school basketball teams resume their 1981-82 schedules next week after a nearly two-week holiday break for most clubs.

A pair of games Tuesday will find Marshall County Central (3-1) hosting Greenbush and Middle River (3-1) at McIntosh-Winter.

On Friday, January 8, Goodridge (3-2) hosts Red Lake Falls; Plummer (0-6) entertains Oslo; Grygla-Gatzke (3-2) visits Lake of the Woods; Marshall County Central tackles East Grand Forks on the road and Middle River is at home against Roseau.

Area girls basketball teams re-start their seasons next week as well. On Tuesday, Middle River (1-4) hosts Lake of the Woods and Grygla-Gatzke (4-1) entertains Tri-County.

Games Thursday, January 7, will have Goodridge (1-4) at Red Lake Falls; Middle River at Tri-County; and Grygla-Gatzke at home against Badger.

Plummer (1-4) hosts Oslo Friday, January 8, while Marshall County Central (5-0) visits Warren Saturday, January 9.

Northmen Will Host Cobbers

the challenge of being an underdog against a proven hockey power instead of being able to breeze through an easy match-up against an inferior foe. "This will definitely be a boost for our program. It's as good a competition we can find in this area. We're looking forward to it; we hope it provides some entertaining hockey for the fans."

Northland went into the holiday break on a high note, sweeping defending Minnesota junior college athletic association champion Mesabi 11-6 and 8-4 to go along with a 4-4 overtime tie against the Bemidji State junior varsity.

"We were playing well, then we went into our break," mentioned Goddard. "Whether or not we can pick up where we left off is the big question."

Goddard said the 2-0-1 Northmen were moving the puck well and breaking out of their zone effectively prior to the holiday break. Only rarely did the Northmen simply dump the puck and chase it. He said he was satisfied with the Northland power play, but wanted to improve upon the penalty-killing situation, which includes cutting their penalties down. Like most coaches, he would also like to see Northland's goals-against average lowered.

The games against Concordia and Bemidji begin a demanding two months worth of work for the Northmen, who will be playing 19 games in 44 games. The Minnesota North Stars, pointed out Goddard, also play 19 games in 44 games.

Northland returns to MJCAA competition Jan. 9-10 at Hibbing. The Northmen and Rochester were the only MJCAA teams to go into the holiday break with unbeaten records — both 2-0.

AFTER SNARING a rebound with one hand, Thief River Falls guard Kevin Sanders hit a fall-away jump shot from the base line and also drew a foul in completing a first quarter three-point play against Warren Tuesday in the opening game of the holiday high school basketball classic being played at the new University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) gymnasium. Brian Ljunggren of the Ponies and Steve Kruta of the Prowlers looked on. Warren won 41-37 in overtime. Sanders was the Prowlers' leading scorer with 11 points.

Prowlers Drop Overtime Decision To Ponies 41-37

Thief River Falls, after gaining a dramatic tie in the final seconds of regulation time, failed to score a point in a three-minute overtime period Tuesday and wound up losing a low-scoring 41-37 decision to Warren in the opening game of the holiday high school basketball classic being played in the new University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) gymnasium.

Argyle handled Crookston 51-40 in the second half of last night's doubleheader. The Ponies and Eagles will try to make it a Class A sweep over their Class AA opponents tonight when Argyle and Thief River Falls meet at 7 p.m., followed by a Warren vs. Crookston match-up at 8:45.

Thief River Falls and Warren battled each other on even terms throughout the physical defensive struggle. The Prowlers started strong in leading 9-7 at the end of the first quarter, but then struggled, especially on the boards, in the second period in falling behind 19-18 at halftime. It was 27-25 Warren as the third quarter came to a close and the Ponies owned the game's biggest margin, 34-29, with 3:19 remaining in regulation time when guard Dan Carlson completed a one-man fourth quarter assault against the Prowlers. Carlson scored seven of his game-high 22 points during that time.

"That was Carlson's best game," confirmed Warren coach Gary Schuler. "He just took it upon himself to go at them in the fourth quarter."

But Thief River Falls battled back. Kevin Sanders drilled a long jumper and Steve Kruta put in a one-handed push-up on a great twisting drive to make it a 34-33 game with 2:27 remaining. The Ponies sandwiched three free throws around a long jumper by Mark Gere to lead 37-35 with 20 seconds left, but three other misses at the line kept them from putting the game away in regulation time.

Thief River Falls' Randy Naeseth rebounded one of those missed free throws with 17 seconds to play and the Prowlers had a shot at a tie. They knotted it 37-37 when guard Kent Kainz hit his only basket of the game — a swish from deep in the corner on an in-bounds pass with six seconds on the clock. It didn't look like an ideal shot selection . . . until it went through.

Warren called an immediate time-out but could only get off a desperation half-court shot at the buzzer that wasn't close to the basket.

Thief River Falls, continuing a season-long struggle on offense, was handicapped further going into overtime with Sanders, the Prowlers' leading scorer with 11 points, and center Eric Bondy on the bench. They both fouled out late in the fourth quarter.

A lob pass underneath to forward Brian Ljunggren made it 39-37 Warren with 1:56 to play. That was the only field goal in overtime. Carlson and center Craig Peterson both made the first shots on 1-and-1 free throw situations in the next 45 seconds to sew it up. There was no scoring over the final 71 seconds of overtime.

That it was a defensive struggle was no surprise to either coach.

"Defense has kept us in most ball games," acknowledged Schuler, whose defending Region 8A champion Ponies remain unbeaten by the smallest of margins — winning four games by a combined total 11 points.

"Same old thing," sighed Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "I'm satisfied defensively, but the offense . . ."

Thief River Falls shot just 38 per cent from the field (17-for-45), but that was still better than Warren's 36 per cent effort (14-for-39). The Ponies won it by making 13 of 26 free throws, including an 8-for-16 second half figure at the line. The Prowlers, meanwhile, were a less-busy 3-for-7 shooting free throws, 1-for-1 in the second half.

The Prowlers felt they should have been given more free throw opportunities, but Schuler noted, "We feel we play physical basketball, but it's nothing compared to the way Thief River plays. We just don't see teams that physical."

Turnovers were even at 25 apiece and Warren finished with a small 25-23 edge on the boards, yet both coaches said rebounding played an important factor in the outcome.

"We got some offensive rebounds in the first half, and we really intimidated them on the defensive boards in the second half," pointed out Schuler.

"Warren had eight offensive rebounds in the first half, and that really hurt," agreed Hunt. "Our lack of blocking out, especially on the offensive boards, was the difference."

The UMC holiday classic is also featuring junior varsity competition in the afternoon. Yesterday Warren limited Thief River Falls to just two first quarter points en route to a 32-19 win and Crookston beat Argyle 42-34. Thief River Falls junior varsity, 2-2 for the year, met Argyle this afternoon, while Crookston played Warren.

NWAC Schedule Resumes Tues.

Northwest Athletic Conference (NWAC) high school basketball race, limited to just one game before the holiday break, will resume with a pair of league games next week when Crookston visits East Grand Forks Tuesday and Bemidji travels to Thief River Falls Friday, January 8.

Fergus Falls is the early season NWAC leader by viture of its 53-38 victory over defending conference champion Bemidji.

A wide-open first place battle is expected to develop during the 1981-82 conference basketball schedule — the final year of league play since the NWAC will fold next spring after 28 years of operation.

While the conference has been in existence for nearly three decades, basketball has been an NWAC-sponsored event for only 10 years, beginning in 1972-73 when Fergus Falls and Breckenridge were admitted into the league. One of the stipulations for their entrance was the addition of basketball.

Prior to that, according to Jim Carrington of Bemidji, a long-time conference publicist, attempts to compete for a basketball title had been defeated by the league, usually by a split vote, with Bemidji among the opponents. The feeling was that the league race would detract from the ultimate goal of pointing the entire season toward gaining a state tournament berth.

Ironically, in recent years Bemidji has been one of the chief benefactors from the conference race, winning the NWAC title the past six years, sharing the title with Thief River Falls in 1979-80, including some years when the Lumberjacks have struggled to win six or seven games a year.

Traditionally the basketball race has been close, with the title being decided on the final games. Complicating matters is the point system used by NWAC teams. Games between teams meeting just once a year are worth two points in the league standings, while wins during two-game, home-and-home arrangements are worth one point.

Fergus Falls faces each 1981-82 NWAC foe just once, while Bemidji and East Grand Forks face each other only once. Crookston and Thief River Falls play home-and-home sets with every NWAC for except Fergus Falls.

New Wildlife Protection Law Put In Effect

President Reagan has signed into law legislation that doubles fines and increases other penalties for violating the Lacey act, the nation's oldest and most basic wildlife protection law. The Lacey act makes it illegal to transport in interstate or foreign commerce any wildlife that is taken, possessed, bought, or sold in violation of the laws of states or other countries.

Lacey act originally was passed in 1900 to curb market hunting and to help states protect their wildlife against interstate and foreign trade in wildlife and wildlife products. Although the act has been amended several times, the penalty provisions have been inadequate to discourage escalating illegal trade in increasingly high-profit wildlife products.

"The Lacey act amendments give us the tough tools we need to combat the illegal trade that is making damaging inroads on the world's diminishing fish, wildlife and plants," Interior Secretary James Watt said.

He pointed to the enormous profits being made, with aphrodisiac powders made from rhino horn selling for $600 an ounce in the Far East; handbags made from crocodile selling for $400 to $1,200 in Europe; and the hyacinth macaw, a beautiful purple parrot, selling for $8,000 in the United States.

"Now that the penalties more closely match the profits," Watt said, "I fully expect violations to decrease as prosecutions become more vigorous and sentences more severe."

Under the new amendments, violators charged with serious offenses now face possible felong charges with maximum fines of $20,000 and jail sentences of up to five years. Conviction on misdemeanor charges now can bring a $10,000 fine and a one-year jail term.

Extent of illegal traffic in wildlife is unknown but is estimated to run as high as 10 to 25 per cent of the legal trade. More than a quarter-million wildlife items with a declared value of over a half-billion dollars are legally imported and exported from the United States in fiscal year 1980. This included over 31 million individual raw wildlife parts (feathers, fur, teeth, etc.), 13 million birds, 5 million reptiles, 45 million molluska and 46 million individual products manufactured from wildlife. In addition, another 945 tons of raw and manufactured goods such as sea shells, scrap fur and scrap leather were imported.

"These figures are particularly staggering when you realize that they include only declared shipments that are legally documented," Watt said.

New legislation also combined a similar measure protecting fish, the black bass act of 1926, with the Lacey act and extended coverage for the first time to certain plants and to additional items such as fish roe and coral.

Watt had warm praise for conservation groups, state wildlife agencies, and other organizations "who have worked tirelessly to help us put teeth in the Lacey act, as these amendments do."

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

Final games were scheduled today (Wednesday) in the McDonald's Pee-Wee A and Bantam A hockey tournament, but Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (THRAHA) teams will be right back in action tomorrow.

Thursday's schedule will find the Eagles Pee-Wee A and VFW Bantam A teams at Grafton for 11:15 a.m. and 1 p.m. games, respectively.

On Saturday, the Eagles Pee-Wee A and VFW Bantam A teams host Detroit Lakes at 12 noon and 1:30 p.m., respectively, in the sports arena, while the Pee-Wee B Whites entertain Roseau at 1 p.m. in the old arena.

Sunday's schedule has the Pee-Wee B Blues and the American Legion Bantam B teams playing Hallock at 1 and 3 p.m., respectively, in the old arena.

In last week's play, Shawn Armstrong's second goal of the game with 58 seconds remaining in overtime gave coach Larry Joppru's Pee-Wee B Blues a 4-3 victory over Red Lake Falls Sunday afternoon in the old arena. Jason Boughton and Mike Nelson scored earlier for the winners, who now own a 2-2 record.

American Legion Bantam B team, coached by Curt Ness, beat Red Lake Falls 3-2 on Scott Heinze's goal at 7:05 of overtime. Ron Glauque and David Winjum scored Thief River Falls' other goals. The winners are now 1-4-1.

Coach Rory Anderson's VFW Bantam A team lost to Warroad 11-7 for a 1-5 record.

In the "big" game of the week, the post-1970 Prowlers beat the pre-1970 Prowlers 12-9 in the Lincoln high school Old Timers hockey game in the rededication of the remodeled old arena. A "full house" watched the Saturday night game. It was a fun night for everyone involved and could turn into an annual event, reported John Michael Anderson, who supplies information for this weekly youth hockey column. TRFAHA officials would like to thank all the players, officials, workers and fans who were at the game for a job well done, said Anderson.

Top sellers in the 1981 TRFAHA youth hockey candy sale completed earlier were Shawn Armstrong and Steve Sabo, who shared the top honors by selling 95 boxes apiece.

A tribute to Dear Wife and Loving Mother and Grandmother.

SHOULD YOU GO FIRST

Should you go first, and I remain
To walk the road alone,
I'll live in memory's garden, dear,
With happy days we've known.
In spring, I'll wait for roses red,
When fades the lilac blue,
In early fall, when brown leaves call
I'll catch a glimpse of you.
Should you go first, and I remain
For battles to be fought,
Each thing you've touched along the way
Will be a hallowed spot.
I'll hear your voice, I'll see your smile,
Though blindly I may grope,
The memory of your helping hand
Will buoy me on with hope.
Should you go first, and I remain
To finish with the scroll,
No length'ning shadows shall creep in
To make this life seem dull.
We've known so much of happiness,
We've had our cup of joy,
And memory is one gift of God
That death cannot destroy.

—A. K. Rowsell

Some Real "Wisdom" From Big Brother

Regular readers of this column know that from time to time, I devote this space to the "Wisdom of Big Brother" and recount some of the more outrageous ways in which the government wastes our money and interferes in our lives. Please be assured that this feature will continue.

However, in keeping with the spirit of kindness and generosity that marks the holiday season, I would like to demonstrate that if we look hard enough, there really are a few pearls of wisdom amidst all the seaweed.

First honors go to — are you ready for this? — the Congress. Despite a recent epidemic of cold feet on Capitol Hill, Congress was dragged kicking and screaming to some very wise decisions in 1981, among them:

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, the largest tax reduction package in history. I am told that even some members who voted against it are now sending newsletters home to their districts to crow about the many new incentives for saving and investing. Across-the-board tax cuts, the availability of individual retirement accounts to all workers, and the indexing of tax brackets beginning in 1985 are truly revolutionary provisions that will profoundly affect the future spending plans of the federal government.

The budget cuts: Federal spending is still not under control, but the first step away from a 40 year habit is the hardest, and Congress took it. Planned increases in federal spending have been reduced by some $140 billion over the next three years.

Block grants: Congress made significant progress toward reducing federal paternalism and returning authority to state and local governments by folding many specific programs in the health, education and community development areas into block grants.

In addition to Congress, other "Brothers" deserve a tip of the hat:

Ronald Reagan's "junkyard dogs," better known as inspectors general, have rooted out more than $2 billion in waste, fraud and abuse in federal agencies after just six months of scrutiny. No doubt there are many more bones buried in the federal junkyard.

Then, there's the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. This agency recently took the peculiar step of returning $21.7 million from its 1981 budget to the Treasury, rather than embarking on a last-minute spending spree for pencils and desk blotters as is the usual practice in the bureaucracy.

Finally, consider the case of Frank Mankiewicz, president of the taxpayer-funded National Public Radio network (NPR) and liberal warhorse of the Democratic party. In a deferential bow to reality, Mankiewicz announced recently that rather than cry over the budget cuts that had afflicted NPR, he would embark on a new campaign to wean the network from federal dollars through fund-raising activities in the private sector. "We're the first 'formally federal grantee' to embark on this step," Mr. Mankiewicz stated. "It's fairly thin ice out there. It's chancy, but it's the only way we can go." Welcome to the marketplace, NPR!

State's Land Values Fastest Rising In U.S.

Back in 1971, the going price for an acre of Minnesota farmland averaged just $231, according to USDA. Ten years later, this had increased by exactly $1,000 to $1,231 per acre.

It's true that inflation has pushed up land values. But what about "real" values?

The "real" value of land simply means that inflation has been taken into account. During the past 10 years — and allowing for inflation — Minnesota land values have more than doubled, gaining faster than any other state in the entire nation.

During the past year, "real" U.S. farmland values dropped while Minnesota scored a five per cent gain in land values... and that's after a high inflation rate of 11 per cent was taken into account. Over the last decade, state farmland values have grown steadily higher than the national average.

Minnesota farmland isn't uniform, by any means. Its diversity is evidenced by the fact that Minnesota ranked among the top five states in a wide variety of 1980 crops (corn, soybeans, spring wheat, wild rice, oats, barley, sunflowers, sugarbeets, flax, rye, red clover and timothy seed, and processing sweet corn and green peas).

According to a study by the University of Minnesota, land values have grown most in areas where cash crops dominate.

While land values are higher in the southwest, southeast, and west central, the northwest district recorded the highest percentage increase in land values in the last two years — a 24 per cent increase in 1979 and a 14 per cent gain in 1980.

The climb in land values has both good and bad points. It helps farmers obtain badly-needed loans because they can use their farmland as collateral. On the minus side, it's hard on beginning farmers because they can't afford such high prices.

With the current ratio of low farm prices and higher production costs, however, it's fortunate that at least one aspect of the farm economy has stayed healthy, the USDA report notes.

1st Queen Of Hearts Fund Raiser Planned

American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, inc., announces its first annual Queen of hearts fund-raiser.

This statewide fund-raising contest is open to all women, 18 years and older. Participants will collect votes at the cost of $1 per vote. Votes will be secured between February 1 and March 31, 1982. Individual collecting the most votes will become the 1982 Queen of Hearts. Deadline for applications is January 22, 1982.

Women, 18 and over, can enter either individually or they may be sponsored by a business. A $45 registration fee must be submitted with the application.

Queen of Hearts will be crowned at a celebrity banquet April 3 at the Registry hotel in Bloomington. As an official representative of the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, the Queen of Hearts will make numerous appearances throughout the state for the heart association fund-raising events.

Winner of the contest will receive a prize package worth over $1,000 including a trip for two to Las Vegas donated by Jade Tree Travel. Prizes will also be awarded to the first and second runners-up, with incentive prizes given to fund-raising efforts throughout the event.

Funds raised by Queen of Hearts participants will enable the Minnesota affiliate to increase its support for heart research, public and professional education and community service programs in the state of Minnesota.

Although efforts by the American heart association have resulted in a 20 per cent decline in heart disease deaths over the last 10 years, heart disease still claimed the lives of 975,550 Americans, including 17,000 Minnesotans last year. Only through continued efforts of research, community programs and professional and public education will America's number one health problem be controlled.

American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, is the only statewide health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel disease.

Applications for Queen of Hearts fund-raiser are available from the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, 4701 W. 77th St., Minneapolis, MN, 55435, 835-3300 for metro area or toll-free 1-800-862-6044.

CRS Continues Food Program For Poland

Catholic relief services executive director Bishop Edwin B. Broderick announced recently that Catholic Relief services (CRS) would continue its food program for Poland as long as emergency supplies are needed. Martial law was declared in Poland December 13.

Broderick, who recently returned from a week-long visit to Poland, said "CRS has already distributed 17 million pounds of food valued at more than $10 million. We do not anticipate that there will be any interruption in either the shipments or the distribution."

CRS foodstuffs, sent to Poland for distribution by the Catholic bishops there, include meat, milk, cereal, flour, cheese and baby food. Commodities have been donated by food producers and purchased from the U.S. commodity credit corporation with monies donated by the American public. A major donation of flour, rice and oil, valued at more than $10 million, was announced by President Ronald Reagan at Thanksgiving. It is expected that such humanitarian aid will not be curtailed.

Describing his Thanksgiving visit to Poland, Broderick said he was impressed by the methodical manner of distribution through the dioceses and parishes in Poland. "There is great accountability for the food," he said, "and I can assure you that every bit of it is getting to those who need it most."

While in Poland, Broderick addressed the general council of Polish Bishops. "I assured the biships that we intend to continue our emergency food program as long as it is needed," said Broderick. "They were extremely touched by the generosity and caring of the American people. Archbiship Josef Glemp, the Polsih primate, personally thanked me for the involvement of the concerned people of America."

Archbishop Glemp, said Broderick, recalled the early days of CRS aid to Poland, from 1943 to 1957, and remarked that "CRS has always been a great help and we in Poland appreciate both the material and spiritual support of its donors."

Contributions to help continue the program may be sent to: Catholic Relief Services, Tribute to Poland Fund, 1011 First Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Broderick expressed gratitude to the people throughout the U.S. who have donated $2.6 million for CRS assistance in Poland and added that "I pray each day that we will be able to provide enough aid to the people of Poland to help them through this extremely rough winter."
